Charges Whiskey Trust "Sits Pretty In Washington"

SOLON SAYS REPEAL THUS FAR FAILURE

Rep. O'Connor Says Prohibition Preferable to Condition at Present

PRICES ARE ATTACKED

Distiller Claims Efforts to Get Aid From Government Are Fruitless

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(UP)—Rep. O'Connor, Dem., N. Y., for years one of the leaders of the house wet bloc, charged today at a joint committee hearing on liquor tax legislation that a "gluttonous whisky trust" was "sitting pretty in official Washington" and because of its activities, repeal thus far had been a failure.

O'Connor, whose efforts started the movement for legalization of 3.2 beer, declared members of the "whisky trust" had persuaded agriculture department officials to prohibit liquor importations "to a great extent, under the guise that the foreign products are not made out of American grain."

Earlier today Harvey H. Smith, representing Kentucky distillers, charged that a "whisky trust" existed and that he had attempted and failed to obtain aid from the government to disorganize it.

Yesterday a former Holyoke, Mass., wholesale liquor dealer testified that a "trust" was in existence and that he feared he would be harmed if he revealed "too much of its operations."

O'Connor said he understood government officials had been persuaded, in "violation of the law," to permit distillers to rectify whisky on the premises and to sell directly to retailers.

"Our liquor laws had always prohibited the distiller doing these portions of the business," he said, "but this 'whisky crowd' is 'sitting pretty' in official Washington today.

"If the situation that exists today is what we must have as a consequence of repeal, give me prohibition," O'Connor shouted, pacing back and forth in front of the committee table and waving his arms.

Rep. Cochran, Dem., Mo., attacked high prices and demanded a tax low enough to permit sale of good whisky at $1.50 per quart.

"If repeal is to succeed," he said, "you must place whisky within the reach of the poor man. You must remember that the 18th amendment can be brought back. If we don't succeed in getting low prices, we'll have a reaction which we'll all be sorry for."

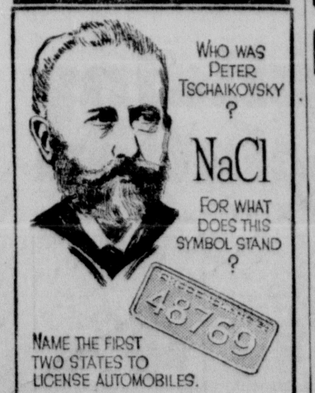

96 SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES ARE RIFLED

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(UP) — A check was being made today to determine the amount of loot obtained by seven robbers who rifled 96 safety deposit boxes of the Unity Trust and Savings bank while holding five men prisoners.

While a mid-day crowd of Christmas shoppers passed outside the bank, closed a year ago, the men armed with cold chisels and sledgehammers, as well as shotguns and pistols, took possession.

Operators of the vaults said it probably would take several days to determine the amount of cash and negotiable securities obtained, but said it might be as high as $100,000.

JOHNSON WILL BACK POLICIES OF ROOSEVELT

California Senator Says Nation Also Will or Go to Hell Economically

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(UP)—The country will either go through with President Roosevelt or go to hell economically, Senator Johnson, Republican, California, said today in a conference with 20 newspaper men who swarmed into his office on his arrival from California.

While reserving his own independence of judgment, Johnson said he intended to support the Roosevelt program.

"The country," he said, "is going through a complete economic revolution."

Speaking of congress last June, Johnson said:

"In my opinion there is a determination on the part of most of the people to carry on and carry through."

In response to questions, Johnson said he knew nothing of published reports that he had been summoned here by President Roosevelt to discuss either appointment to the United States supreme court or prospective public works appropriations.

The senator was enthusiastic over the potentialities of the Roosevelt policies and expressed the opinion that the "ultimate consequences will be re-alignment of political and economic lines."

"There are certain to be political alignments possibly different from those in the past," Johnson added. "There is a loosening of party lines. A revolution is taking place and social implications of it must affect politics.

"Either the country is going through with Mr. Roosevelt or it is going to hell economically in my judgment. The charming little coterie of gentlemen in New York who used to direct the fate of the country can't do anything except surreptitiously during the next year or two and perhaps for ten years.

HIGHWAY PROJECTED FOR 100 MILE HOUR

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 14.—(INS)—Prospect of a transcontinental super-highway allowing 100-mile-an-hour speed and bringing California less than two days from New York by private auto was a future transportation possibility being studied today by state highway officials.

Linking major cities of the United States with a super-highway of four lanes separated by gravel strips, these strips marking the division between fast and slow lanes, has already been considered in a nation-wide survey as a solution for road congestion. This proposal was regarded by California officials as an assured project, although it was not expected to materialize for many years.

Traffic congestion and lagging motor cars were regarded as major problems of California's 75,000-mile road network.

COACH OF COLUMBIA CREWS FOUND DEAD

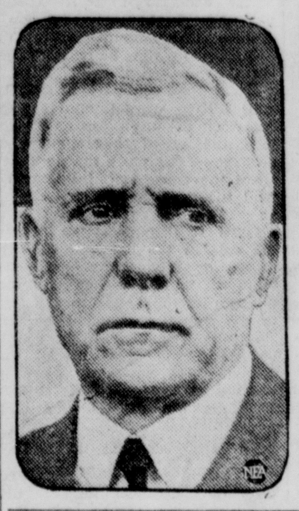

SOUTH CHATHAM, Mass., Dec. 14.—(UP)—The body of Richard J. (Young Dick) Glendon, 34, famous coach of Columbia university's crew, was found today after an extended search by friends and relatives who were alarmed by his failure to return home from a hunting trip.

Glendon apparently was a victim of shooting. The body was left untouched pending arrival of a medical examiner to determine circumstances of the death.

Patrolman Benjamin Rollins, one of a posse which had searched all night for the missing coach, found the body alongside a fence about a mile and a half from the Glendon home.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 14.—(UP)—Romance flowered again today in the life of 72-year-old James A. Reed, thunder-maker of the senate for 18 years.

His companion in the new venture was Mrs. Nell Quinlan Donnelly, whose unransomed release in one of the first of the current series of sensational kidnapings was credited to "Fighting Jim, the gentleman from Missouri."

The union was unheralded. Twenty guests attended a dinner party at Mrs. Donnelly's apartment last night. At the end of the meal they were told that theirs was the role of wedding guests.

Judge John C. Pollock, of the Kansas City, Kan., United States district court, performed the ceremony.

Thus culminated ten years of professional association of the U. S. Senator from 1911 to 1929 and "Nelly Don," 43-year-old garment manufacturer. For a decade he served as her legal counsel.

FARM BUREAU SENDS PRESIDENT PETITION

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(UP)—President Roosevelt was petitioned today in resolutions adopted at the closing session of the American Farm Bureau federation convention to hasten increased incomes for farmers.

Endorsement of the president's recovery measures and a plea that every power of the farm adjustment act be immediately invoked fully to obtain parity of prices for farm commodities were included in resolutions.

The delay in putting the act into full effect, the resolutions charged, is resulting in "the bankruptcy of many more farmers and cannot be further condoned."

8,000,000 MEN GET WORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(UP)—The success of the NRA has shown what sustained public opinion can do and that "under inspiring leadership nothing can stay the progress of a mighty people," Grover A. Whalen, New York NRA administrator, said last night.

Whalen, addressing 2000 persons at a banquet in his honor, said that more than 4,000,000 of the nation's unemployed have been returned to work through recovery efforts and that a like number have been given employment on public projects.

POLICE PROBE INTO PAST OF SLAIN DENTIST

Socially Prominent Women of Pasadena Questioned By Authorities

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 14.—(UP)—The social path that guided Dr. Leonard Siever into some of Pasadena's most fashionable homes was scanned by police today in quest of clues that might explain his sudden violent death.

A number of society women who accepted him as a brilliant conversationalist and cosmopolite were questioned but none bore out one police theory he was shot by an agent of some jealous feminine admirer.

A driving rain pelted down on the dentist's bullet-riddled body throughout the night before it was discovered shortly before dawn by a milk man. It lay sprawled beside his luxurious car, parked in the shadows of the local Masonic cathedral. One shot had entered the head, a second pierced the chest. Two exploded cartridges were found on the sidewalk.

Three Theories

Police subscribed to three theories as to how the 44-year-old bachelor met death:

1. An acquaintance met him as he left his office, a half-block away, walked along with him to his car and shot him through the head as he started to unlock the door.
2. His assailant, acting in revenge, stepped from the shadow of the temple and shot him as he stood beside the car.

BOY IS RUN DOWN BY EARLE WYNEKOOP

CHICAGO Dec. 14. — (UP) — Earle Wynekoop, whose wife his mother is charged with murdering, surrendered to police after his automobile ran down a 9-year old boy last night.

He was released after the parents of the boy, Frank McGovern, indicated they did not wish to prosecute. The boy was injured internally but may recover, physicians said.

Dr. Catherine Wynkoop, Earle's sister, was with him at the time the boy was struck and administered first aid.

Wynekoop was released from custody recently after being held two weeks as an accessory before the fact of the murder of his pretty titian-haired wife, Rheta. Dr. Alice Wynekoop is charged with murder.

Cold Record Shattered; 52 Below Zero

QUEBEC, Dec. 14.—(UP)—A twenty-six year old cold weather record was shattered at Lake Edward, Northern Quebec health resort, during the recent cold spell when the thermometer dropped to 52 below zero. The coldest recorded since 1907 when it went down to 62.

Cold weather has been general all over the Quebec district since last Saturday. Yesterday was 8 below in Quebec City.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—(UP) New raids on fashionable speakeasies widened the split today between a majority faction of the state board of equalization and John C. Corbett, San Francisco member, over the enforcement policy to be followed in administering California's new liquor laws.

LINDBERGHS ARRIVE TODAY AT SAN JUAN

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico., Dec. 14.—(UP)—Col and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived at 11:35 p. m., EST., today after a swift flight from Port of Spain, Trinidad. They flew 800 miles in a sweeping circle over the Windward and Leeward islands, enroute home for Christmas.

They followed the regular course for mail and passenger planes to and from the North and South American continents, and late today were resting at the government house, now within striking distance of the United States.

Today's flight was another "without incident." After leaving Port of Spain, Trinidad, where they had been hampered to some extent by rainy weather and low ceilings, they emerged into the better flying weather generally found in the lesser Antilles.

CITRUS MARKETING PACT IS SIGNED IN CAPITAL TODAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(UP) — Marketing agreements covering interstate shipments of oranges and grapefruit from California, Arizona and Florida were approved today by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace after being signed by a majority of the shippers in each region.

Licenses which apply to all shippers also were signed.

The agreements embody a national citrus stabilization plan including proration of sales. The agreements become effective immediately and it is hoped they will increase shippers' returns for this season's marketing. Licenses are effective December 18.

Texas and Puerto Rico may adhere to the stabilization plan through marketing agreements.

A statement made today by Paul S. Armstrong, general manager of the California Fruit Growers Exchange in connection with the approval of the agreement, follows:

"Signing of the California, Arizona and Florida marketing agreements and licenses in Washington today to be in effect next Monday, December 18, means the result that practically all citrus growers and most of us interested in citrus marketing since last July has been achieved.

"The California Fruit Exchange has appointed its members to the growers advisory committee and distribution committee some weeks ago. Members of these committees from other marketinggroups will be named at once if they have not already been selected and it is up to these men to set up the machinery for operation under the California and Arizona agreement.

"Representatives of the A. A. A. from Washington are now in Los Angeles and at their request, a meeting of the growers advisory committee will be held Saturday, December 16, to discuss plans for the administration of the agreement.

"This agreement places the industry in a position to prorate both navel oranges and grapefruit whenever such proration seems advisable and the fact that the Florida agreement was also made effective means that the national stabilization plan for prorating oranges and grapefruit from both states may be invoked whenever necessary.

"The objective of these agreements is to improve price levels on farm products that are suffering as a result of overproduction or decreased purchasing power."

Project Is Laid Before Water Board

Plan Calls for Bringing Water from Mojave River to This County

A FAR-REACHING plan to augment Orange county's water supply by a possible development of a water project on the Mojave river designed to bring water into the channel of the Santa Ana river from the Mojave was the center of interest in water circle here today after having been brought to the attention of the Orange County Water District board of directors yesterday afternoon in Garden Grove.

Directors of the water district were given to understand that there is a water crop annually of 100,000 acre feet in the Mojave river, and that but 6000 acres of land is being irrigated with the water available.

No action on the plan, which has been estimated to cost from $6,000,000 to $10,000,000, depending on the amount of water diverted to the Santa Ana river, was taken by the directors, but it was decided that next Wednesday the directors would inspect the site of the proposed development and that a special meeting would be held the following day.

Cost of Project

It was understood that the costs of the project, estimated from figures secured from the State Division of Water Rights, would include payments for necessary purchases of land along the Mojave river. The project is designed to divert the surplus water in the Mojave which is said to be wasted at the present time.

Directors expressed the opinion that full consideration must be given to water rights of property owners in the Mojave valley before the project is launched or attempted. The directors believe, however, that there would be no objection to putting the surplus water to a beneficial use, rather than allowing it to be wasted by transpiration and evaporation.

It was claimed that the proposed project would be self-liquidating. According to the tentative plans,

P. G. & E. IS GRANTED RESTRAINING ORDER

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14. — (UP) — Federal Judge Harold Louderback today granted the Pacific Gas and Electric company a temporary injunction restraining the state railroad commission from enforcing its order that the company make a $2,100,000 annual reduction in natural gas rates. First reductions were to have been made Saturday.

The P. G. & E. sought the injunction on the ground that the reductions, ordered Nov. 13, were confiscatory and in violation of the due-process clause of the state constitution. Judge Louderback, in the absence of two fellow jurists, forthwith issued the temporary injunction and said a hearing for a permanent restraining order would be held later.

DELAY EXTRADITION OF CHICAGO BARBER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(UP)—The state department today asked the British ambassador for a delay of 60 days in extraditing John (Jake the Barber) Factor to Great Britain so that he can testify against the Touhy kidnap gang in Chicago.

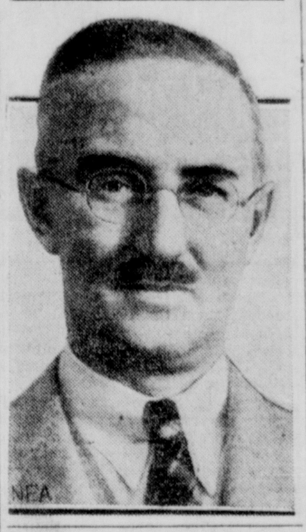

Factor, the Chicago barber who became an international financier, is wanted in England on stock fraud charges. While fighting extradition in Chicago last summer he was kidnaped and held for ransom.

Midwest police believe his testimony will be valuable in the trial of several members of the Touhy gang, charged with a series of kidnapings.

MICKEY MOUSE ON EXHIBIT AT ART INSTITUTE

Walt Disney Returns Where Few Years Ago Teachers Discouraged Him

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(UP)—The antics of Mickey Mouse and fantasies from Silly Symphonies ascended to the stately walls of the Chicago Art Museum today for the winter exhibits of the art institute.

Beside the grim Russian morbidities of Boris Grigoriev, Walt Disney's big bad wolf squared off for a good huff and puff at the house of straw and the little piggies wiggled their way under the bed.

Grigoriev's "Theodore Karamazev" squinted with a leer trying to watch Minnie Mouse chase Pluto the dog just across the gallery.

Sandwiched between Rockwell Kent's austere paintings of Greenland icefields and the classically conceived cows from the brush of the young Frenchman, Eugene Berman, were four rats from Disney's Pied Piper of Hamlin.

Rats Exhibited

The rats, perched on a high moulding, craned forward and down, their little tongues protruding, in a whole-souled gesture of "giving the bird" to the goodly burghers of Hamlin town. That was before the piper came along.

Thus Disney returned to the Chicago Art Institute, where a few years ago instructors told him there was no future for him as an artist. Sadly, Disney laid down his pallette and brush, at that time, and turned to newspaper cartooning.

INSTITUTE MEETING IS NEARING CLOSE

RIVERSIDE, Dec. 14.—(UP)—The Institute of World Affairs neared the end of its week-long convention today by receiving new plans for economic reform.

Asserting that capitalism is inadequate, Dr. Carl Landauer, German educator, stressed the need of planned economy which he predicted will lead up to a system of public management for industry.

"Emergency measures taken in all European countries and in the United States point the way,' he said. "But up to the present these are incomplete.

"At first, only regulation of capitalism is possible but in the end a system of public management for industry will be required.

"Capitalism is not now satisfactory. We can restore confidence only by adopting a system of economy intelligible to the masses. Then political and economic unrest will cease."

SCHOOL BUS STRUCK BY FAST TRAIN

FOG OBSCURES TRACK

Injured Rushed to Hospitals While Parents Are Frantic Over Accident

CRESCENT CITY, Fla., Dec. 14.—(UP)—Eight children were killed and about 35 others, seven of them seriously, were injured, when an Atlantic Coast Line northbound freight train, traveling through fog, today struck a bus loaded with children.

D. H. Niles, 67, driver of the ill-fated bus, was seriously injured. He was brought to the Baptist parsonage here.

The dense fog, coupled with the fact that the fast freight train was not expected at that time, was blamed for the accident.

T. A. Athwell, engineer of the train, reported that he had held the whistle wide open as he approached the crossing five miles south of here. The crossing parallels state highway No. 3 for some distance at this point. It is believed that Niles did not hear the whistle and failed to see the approaching train because of the fog.

Lew Barseow, superintendent of the Crescent City elementary school, which the children attended, and sheriff R. J. Hancock immediately opened an investigation of the fateful ride.

The local Red Cross called a meeting for this afternoon to give assistance to those families who may need aid in burying their dead children.

The home of Dr. E. W. Ford was turned into a hospital as there is no hospital here. Other injured children were taken to the Palatka hospitals.

The three dead of the Smith family are: John, 1; Evelyn, 9, and Frederick, 14. Merle Smith is in a serious condition at the Glendale Terrace hospital. Others of the dead were: Troy Tipton, 14, Elsie Gordon, 15, Eddie McGrady, 10, Hazel McGrady, 13, and Hilda Hardy, 12.

NO CHANGES MADE IN PRICE OF GOLD

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(UP)—The government today set its price on newly-mined American gold at $34.01 an ounce, unchanged for the past 11 days.

Today's Washington price was $2.22 above the world price set in London today.

The London price today was 126 shillings 1 penny, unchanged from yesterday. On the basis of the opening exchange rate for the pound sterling ($5.04 1-4) this was equivalent to $31.79 a fine ounce.

BOY IS RUN DOWN BY EARLE WYNEKOOP

CHICAGO Dec. 14. — (UP) — Earle Wynekoop, whose wife his mother is charged with murdering, surrendered to police after his automobile ran down a 9-year old boy last night.

He was released after the parents of the boy, Frank McGovern, indicated they did not wish to prosecute. The boy was injured internally but may recover, physicians said.

Dr. Catherine Wynkoop, Earle's sister, was with him at the time the boy was struck and administered first aid.

Wynekoop was released from custody recently after being held two weeks as an accessory before the fact of the murder of his pretty titian-haired wife, Rheta. Dr. Alice Wynekoop is charged with murder.

Cold Record Shattered; 52 Below Zero

QUEBEC, Dec. 14.—(UP)—A twenty-six year old cold weather record was shattered at Lake Edward, Northern Quebec health resort, during the recent cold spell when the thermometer dropped to 52 below zero. The coldest recorded since 1907 when it went down to 62.

Cold weather has been general all over the Quebec district since last Saturday. Yesterday was 8 below in Quebec City.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—(UP)—New raids on fashionable speakeasies widened the split today between a majority faction of the state board of equalization and John C. Corbett, San Francisco member, over the enforcement policy to be followed in administering California's new liquor laws.

Corbett had instructed Donald Marshall, chief enforcement officer, to stop his raids after Marshall had closed at least three clubs here. Chairman Richard Collins and other members of the

LINDBERGHS ARRIVE TODAY AT SAN JUAN

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico., Dec. 14.—(UP)—Col and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived at 11:35 p. m., EST., today after a swift flight from Port of Spain, Trinidad. They flew 800 miles in a sweeping circle over the Windward and Leeward islands, enroute home for Christmas.

They followed the regular course for mail and passenger planes to and from the North and South American continents, and late today were resting at the government house, now within striking distance of the United States.

Today's flight was another "without incident." After leaving Port of Spain, Trinidad, where they had been hampered to some extent by rainy weather and low ceilings, they emerged into the better flying weather generally found in the lesser Antilles.

CITRUS MARKETING PACT IS SIGNED IN CAPITAL TODAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(UP) — Marketing agreements covering interstate shipments of oranges and grapefruit from California, Arizona and Florida were approved today by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace after being signed by a majority of the shippers in each region.

Licenses which apply to all shippers also were signed.

The agreements embody a national citrus stabilization plan including proration of sales. The agreements become effective immediately and it is hoped they will increase shippers' returns for this season's marketing. Licenses are effective December 18.

Texas and Puerto Rico may adhere to the stabilization plan through marketing agreements.

A statement made today by Paul S. Armstrong, general manager of the California Fruit Growers Exchange in connection with the approval of the agreement, follows:

"Signing of the California, Arizona and Florida marketing agreements and licenses in Washington today to be in effect next Monday, December 18, means the result that practically all citrus growers and most of us interested in citrus marketing since last July has been achieved.

"The California Fruit Exchange has appointed its members to the growers advisory committee and distribution committee some weeks ago. Members of these committees from other marketing groups will be named at once if they have not already been selected and it is up to these men to set up the machinery for operation under the California and Arizona agreement.

"Representatives of the A. A. A. from Washington are now in Los Angeles and at their request, a meeting of the growers advisory committee will be held Saturday, December 16, to discuss plans for the administration of the agreement.

"This agreement places the industry in a position to prorate both navel oranges and grapefruit whenever such proration seems advisable and the fact that the Florida agreement was also made effective means that the national stabilization plan for prorating oranges and grapefruit from both states may be invoked whenever necessary.

"The objective of these agreements is to improve price levels on farm products that are suffering as a result of overproduction or decreased purchasing power."

P. G. & E. IS GRANTED RESTRAINING ORDER

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14. — (UP) — Federal Judge Harold Louderback today granted the Pacific Gas and Electric company a temporary injunction restraining the state railroad commission from enforcing its order that the company make a $2,100,000 annual reduction in natural gas rates. First reductions were to have been made Saturday.

The P. G. & E. sought the injunction on the ground that the reductions, ordered Nov. 13, were confiscatory and in violation of the due-process clause of the state constitution. Judge Louderback, in the absence of two fellow jurists, forthwith issued the temporary injunction and said a hearing for a permanent restraining order would be held later.

DELAY EXTRADITION OF CHICAGO BARBER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(UP)—The state department today asked the British ambassador for a delay of 60 days in extraditing John (Jake the Barber) Factor to Great Britain so that he can testify against the Touhy kidnap gang in Chicago.

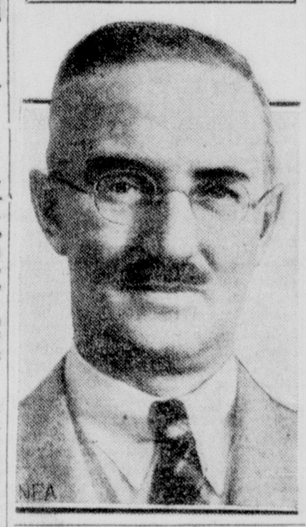

Factor, the Chicago barber who became an international financier, is wanted in England on stock fraud charges. While fighting extradition in Chicago last summer he was kidnaped and held for ransom.

Midwest police believe his testimony will be valuable in the trial of several members of the Touhy gang, charged with a series of kidnapings.

Walt Disney Returns Where Few Years Ago Teachers Discouraged Him

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(UP)—The antics of Mickey Mouse and fantasies from Silly Symphonies ascended to the stately walls of the Chicago Art Museum today for the winter exhibits of the art institute.

Grigoriev's "Theodore Karamazov" squinted with a leer trying to watch Minnie Mouse chase Pluto the dog just across the gallery.

Sandwiched between Rockwell Kent's austere paintings of Greenland icefields and the classically conceived cows from the brush of the young Frenchman, Eugene Berman, were four rats from Disney's Pied Piper of Hamlin.

Rats Exhibited

The rats, perched on a high moulding, craned forward and down, their little tongues protruding, in a whole-souled gesture of "giving the bird" to the goodly burghers of Hamlin town. That was before the piper came along.

Thus Disney returned to the Chicago Art Institute, where a few years ago instructors told him there was no future for him as an artist. Sadly, Disney laid down his pallette and brush, at that time, and turned to newspaper cartooning.

INSTITUTE MEETING IS NEARING CLOSE

RIVERSIDE, Dec. 14.—(UP)—The Institute of World Affairs neared the end of its week-long convention today by receiving new plans for economic reform.

Asserting that capitalism is inadequate, Dr. Carl Landauer, German educator, stressed the need of planned economy which he predicted will lead up to a system of public management for industry.

"Emergency measures taken in all European countries and in the United States point the way," he said. "But up to the present these are incomplete.

"At first, only regulation of capitalism is possible but in the end a system of public management for industry will be required.

"Capitalism is not now satisfactory. We can restore confidence only by adopting a system of economy intelligible to the masses. Then political and economic unrest will cease."

SCHOOL BUS STRUCK BY FAST TRAIN

FOG OBSCURES TRACK

Injured Rushed to Hospitals While Parents Are Frantic Over Accident

CRESCENT CITY, Fla., Dec. 14.—(UP)—Eight children were killed and about 35 others, seven of them seriously, were injured, when an Atlantic Coast Line northbound freight train, traveling through fog, today struck a bus loaded with children.

D. H. Niles, 67, driver of the ill-fated bus, was seriously injured. He was brought to the Baptist parsonage here.

The dense fog, coupled with the fact that the fast freight train was not expected at that time, was blamed for the accident.

T. A. Athwell, engineer of the train, reported that he had held the whistle wide open as he approached the crossing five miles south of here. The crossing parallels state highway No. 3 for some distance at this point. It is believed that Niles did not hear the whistle and failed to see the approaching train because of the fog.

Lew Barseow, superintendent of the Crescent City elementary school, which the children attended, and sheriff R. J. Hancock immediately opened an investigation of the fateful ride.

The local Red Cross called a meeting for this afternoon to give assistance to those families who may need aid in burying their dead children.

The home of Dr. E. W. Ford was turned into a hospital as there is no hospital here. Other injured children were taken to the Palatka hospitals.

The three dead of the Smith family are: John, 1. Evelyn, 9, and Frederick, 14. Merle Smith is in a serious condition at the Glendale Terrace hospital. Others of the dead were: Troy Tipton, 14, Elsie Gordon, 15, Eddie McGrady, 10, Hazel McGrady, 13, and Hilda Hardy, 12.

NO CHANGES MADE IN PRICE OF GOLD

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(UP)—The government today set its price on newly-mined American gold at $34.01 an ounce, unchanged for the past 11 days.

Today's Washington price was $2.22 above the world price set in London today.

The London price today was 126 shillings 1 penny, unchanged from yesterday. On the basis of the opening exchange rate for the pound sterling ($5.04 1-4) this was equivalent to $31.79 a fine ounce.

Quality of the water in the Mojave area is said to be excellent and has an unusually small amount of saline in its content.

Water board directors pointed out at the meeting that the board has not adopted the plan, but is merely discussing the feasibility of the project. Investigations and reports so far made have been done by private interests and not by authorization of the board, it was stated

The senator—his townsmen still accord them the title—said he and his bride would return "sometime before Jan. 1" and would hold open house at the Reed home on New Year's Day.

The wedding was the second for both the bride and groom. Reed's first wife died last year. Mrs. Donnelly was granted a divorce from Paul Donnelly on Nov. 13, 1932 on grounds of "indignities."

This divorce was a sensation scarcely less unexpected than the kidnaping of Mrs. Donnelly, released afer 34 hours imprisonment with the demanded $75,000 ransom unpaid. The couple had been married 26 years. Theirs was considered the "ideal romance."

The Donnelly Manufacturing company, one of Kansas City's major industries employing more than 1,000 persons, originated from the youthful "Nelly Don's" dissatisfaction with formless, untidy house dresses. She designed a frock of her own. Friends exclaimed over it.

In the garret of their then-humble home, Mrs. Donelly installed a couple of power machines. By leaps and bounds this start developed into the gigantic concern.

When the Donnellys were divorced, a 50-50 settlement of family holdings was effected. Mrs. Donnelly took over all stock in the manufacturing company and retained its leadership.

Reed was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president in 1928 and 1932. Each time Mrs. Donnelly, now Democratic national committeewoman, campaigned for him.

board told Marshall to go ahead with the raids.

The enforcement officer reportedly announced that he would listen to "the last one that talks to me."

Evidently he had listened to the Collins faction last for shortly after Corbett's instructions, Marshall visited the embassy club and the Backyard club and arrested the alleged bartenders.

Both sides in the dispute hastened to explain their positions in enforcing the state law forbidding selling liquor over the bar and of dispensing the newly legalized alcoholic drinks through any source other than retail liquor stores.

"Since federal, state, county and city authorities have failed to oust speakeasies, how can the board of equalization do it?" Corbett said in advising a delay in enforcement until at least January 1, and recommending a change in the law.

He was answered by Fred E. Stewart, a member of the board, who said from San Diego:

"We are empowered to enforce the state liquor regulations and we are going to do it. If Corbett doesn't like the way the law is being enforced he may resign."

Collins, Corbett, Stewart and H. G. Cattell comprise the board empowered to administer the liquor control laws.

PLANS PROSECUTION OF CHAS. MITCHELL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(UP) Acting Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau disclosed today that he had rejected proposals for an out of court compromise of the government's income tax case against Charles E. Mitchell, former head of the National City Bank of New York.

"I have decided that it is in the public interest to go ahead with the ordinary legal processes to collect the tax," Morgenthau said.

Heavy income tax assessments were levied against Mitchell as a result of disclosures before the senate stock market investigating committee regarding transfers of stock among members of his family.

Criminal action also was instituted against Mitchell, but he was acquitted on these charges.

TONG WAR BREAKS OUT IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Dec. 14.— (UP) — Knives flashed in a new outbreak of Tong war in Montreal's Chinatown today, sending six Chinese to hospital and 16 to police cells.

Three of the victims may die. They are Jim Lee, 32, stabbed many times; Lim Wong, 26, fractured skull and numerous knife wounds, and Nan Chu, 51, bruised and stabbed about the head. The other three injured were sent home after treatment.

The battle broke in a Chinese restaurant in the heart of Chinatown. When police radio cars and reserves arrived in response to a riot call they found a mob of Chinamen battling in the street with knives and iron bars. Many fled at approach of police.

YOUTH IS HELD ON TRANSPORT CHARGE

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 14.—(UP)—Accused of transporting 16-year-old Lorna Dunphy from Seattle to Sacramento, Vernon Willis, 18, was held in custody today following his arrest by federal agents who traced the couple here.

The girl was placed in the county detention home pending word from her parents. She became acquainted with the youth at a Seattle stage depot while waiting for a bus to Aberdeen, she told officers. They went to Portland and later to Eugene, Ore., where their funds became exhausted, she said. The remainder of the journey to Sacramento was made by freight train.

Federal Agent T. P. Geraghty signed a complaint charging Willis with violation of the Mann act.

THREE INJURED IN TRAFFIC CRASHES

When cars driven by W. W. Dungan, Garden Grove and William H. Arens, Huntington Beach, collided at West First street and Buaro road at 8 a. m. yesterday, Mrs. J. Hansen, 42, 210 1-2 Main street, Huntington Beach, received slight injuries.

Glen R. Mead and H. H. Long, sailors, received injuries late Tuesday night when the car driven by Mead struck an electric light post on South Los Angeles street, Anaheim. Long suffered a broken shoulder and head injury while Mead sustained an injured ankle. Both were given emergency treatment at the Anaheim Sanitarium. Their two women companions were not hurt.

POLICE PROBE INTO PAST OF SLAIN DENTIST

the least creditable by investigators, even though his wallet and watch were missing. They believed the robbery evidence was a blind, designed to cover up the real motive.

Probe Into Past

Investigating his past life, police learned his talents as conversationalist and a patron of the muses, gained him access to many society homes. He was said to have been ardently in love with one woman but distributed his attentions among others. From this group of acquaintances, police hoped to unearth some clue that might explain his death.

One posible clue proved worthless when police learned that a cryptic note, calling for a 11:30 appointment, was writen by Mrs. Mary Rockwell, a Hollywood patient. Mrs. Rockwell said the note, which was found on the victim's person, referred to an appointment she had with him the morning of the slaying. She said she gave him a kiss as she left the office.

"I threw my arms around him and said, 'here's a Christmas kiss for you,' she told officers. "He seemed quite taken aback."

Mrs. Rockwell said she merely knew him as a good friend for a number of years and that there was no romance between them.

Unhappy In Love

Dr. Leon G. Lyons, Hollywood dentist, who had known Siever for several years, said he had become embittered by an unhappy love affair. The victim had told him he had "lost all faith in women," Lyons said because he discovered the woman with whom he was in love had been unfaithful to him.

Detectives learned Siever was to have had a dinner engagement with Mrs. Edna Hearst at the latter's home in "Millionaires' Row" in exclusive Orange Grove avenue. He was to have first called for Mrs. Frances Coen Cook, socially prominent divorcee, and driven her to Mrs. Herbst's home. He was bound for Mrs. Cook's home when he was shot, police said.

The caretaker of the Masonic temple said he heard no gunshots. This was explained by the fact that the rain had been continuous throughout the afternoon and evening, deadening the reports. The caretaker said he naticed the parked car a short time before the milkman passed but he did not get up to investigate.

Siever's real name was Leopold Siev. He was born in Sibar, Russia, and educated at the University of Michigan, graduating in 1916. He became a dentist after taking a course at the University of Southern California.

HUGE MERGER UNDER STUDY IN CAPITAL

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(UP)—Wide benefits to the nation's telephone, telegraph and radio systems through the government's merger plan were seen in communication circles today, although official comment was withheld pending a more complete study of the proposals.

The gist of unofficial comment was that the present competitive basis is wasteful because of plant and personnel duplications and that the leading communication companies have long discussed mergers.

Little change in the telephone business is expected, but it was considered possible that ultimate recommendations would be for a merger of all domestic telegraph and radio services and a separate consolidation of all communications with foreign connections, cable or radio.

SCHOOL BOARD UNABLE TO REACH AGREEMENT ON FUND FOR SCHOOL REPAIR WORK

With tomorrow set as the deadline for accepting the $815,000 already apportioned this district from the R. F. C. fund under the Green bill for rehabilitation of high school and elementary school buildings, the Santa Ana board of education at a special meeting this morning failed to reach a decision.

The board adjourned at noon to go to Compton and interview members of the school board in that city relative to the loan already utilized there and, under the present plan will meet again tomorrow afternoon and attempt to agree on whether or not the loan shall be accepted.

The decision to confer with the Compton board of education came after a delegation from the Tustin Elementary School district appeared at the meeting this morning and declared that once the contract is signed the State Board of Architects has complete control of building operations financed under the Green bill.

G. R. Seacord, of the Tustin board, declared that the Compton district submitted plans to the state board of architects and had them approved. The contracts, when awarded, called for expenditure of $41,000. Seacord declared that after building operations were under way the state board of architects insisted on changes and additions which ran the total amount of the operation up to $68,000. The additional expense, he said, was forced by the state architects for additions of what they termed essentials.

Seacord declared that the Tustin district has applied for $45,000 and is of the opinion that if the contract is signed the state will insist that the entire amount be used. He declared that the state architects can add to or subtract from the state building code as they see fit.

Contract Opposed

W. M. Burke, member of the Santa Ana board of education is opposing the signing of the contract on the grounds that if $700,000 is borrowed for the purpose of rehabilitating the high school buildings, the state, through Andrew Hill jr., and Allison and Allison, architects employed by the school board will insist that the entire amount be spent for construction of new buildings.

For the preliminary application for funds under the Green bill Allison and Allison prepared three proposals, one for complete rebuilding of the quake damaged buildings and two proposals for repairing those buildings which could be repaired to comply with the state code and rebuilding the auditorium which has been condemned and is closed. Hill has informed the board that should the board accept the entire $700,000 any portion of the amount that is unused may be returned to the state.

The board met last night and was unable to reach an agreement and decided to adjourn until this morning. In the meantime a copy of the contract was sent to Assistant District Attorney W. F. Menton for his opinion. He informed the board that it was a binding contract.

Two Favor Contract

Dr. Margarete Baker and Rolla Hays, members of the board, favored signing the contract on the grounds that the board is responsible for the safety of the students and, under the law, must provide school facilities. Dr. Baker said that she is confident the voters will approve the plan when they are informed as to the necessity.

Both Dr. Baker and Hays based their support of the contract on the expressed belief that, while the board signs the contract for $700,000 for high school reconstruction, any amount not used may be returned and that the state will not insist on new construction if plans for rehabilitation can bring the structures within provisions of the state code.

Burke declared that he is opposed to signing the contract unless the people first have an opportunity to vote on the matter and express their opinion. He also suggested that, as the high school district bonding capacity is approximately $400,000 it might be possible to finance rehabilitation through a bond issue and the board retain control of building operations.

Dr. Baker and Hays led the fight for accepting the loan on the grounds that the state cannot force the district into anything that is not approved by the board members. They pointed out that the contract provided that all plans, specifications and cost estimates must be approved by the board of education, R. F. C. board and the state school building agencies before bids can be called for.

They pointed out that the board had employed Allison and Allison as architects to give the board advice and if this advice is not heeded they asked 'whose advice shall we follow?' They also pointed out that, when plans for rehabilitation or rebuilding are accepted by the state and the contract is awarded on a bid that is lower than the amount of the state loan, the amount of the lowest bid is all that can possibly be spent. Dr. Baker declared that if Allison's plan No. 2, for rehabilitation is accepted the amount set forth in contracts is the limit of expenditure.

Burke took the attitude that Hill and Allison would convince the board of the need for new buildings and added that it was only natural as the more money that is spent the more commission will be paid the architect.

Up To Board

Hays replied declaring that in his opinion the board must either repair or reconstruct the school buildings and in his opinion there is every method open to the board to determine what shall be done. "We are five responsible people," he said, "and were placed upon the board to represent the people and we do have the final approval of plans before bids are called for."

He declared that he believes that when the people of Santa Ana know how essential the rehabilitation program is and that the bonding capacity of district is almost all utilized they will approve the signing of the contract. He said that he is of the opinion that the people will approve because they will believe that the board of education will approve expenditures of only such amounts as are essential to rehabilitation of the buildings. He also asked what would be the result if the board applied for only such money as was recommended by J. S. Fluor and Jules Markel as members of a contractors' committee and then found that their proposals would not pass the state code requirements.

Last night when the possibility of financing the work through a bond issue was discussed Dr. Baker asked the board the question, "Why fool ourselves into thinking that we could carry a bond issue," and stressed the importance of putting the schools in order. That, she declared, is a duty that the board members owe the people and one that must be fulfilled. Obtaining money from the state, she said, appears to be the only method available for doing this.

of the Art museum, said:

"Disney's work is worthy of a place on museum walls. His ingenuity and draftsmanship entitle him to this place. This type of cartoon is a distinct form of artistic expression."

Bid Bad Wolf

Visitors to the gallery agreed with Harshe. One group paused before a scene in which two little pigs were towing the big bad wolf along as he clings to their tails.

"Such fluidity of line," a spectator murmured.

Disney's own comment for this scene can be read in the title.

"Git along little doggies," their creator advices the pigs.

A few feet away the Gingham dog is tearing the stuffing out of a calico pillow.

"He catches the spirit of action," critics told spectators, "he arrests action and jells it."

All the plates in the Disney collection were drawn on cellophane just as they are prepared for photography. Each plate is about the size of an old-fashioned geography book. In the next gallery, however, a six-foot canvas is necessary to show Paul Kleinschmidt's modernistic portrait of a woman combing her hair.

The Pied Piper of Hamlin is leading a million mice and rats in her direction.

before the senate stock market committee have been stripped so bare that there no longer are any of them to be reckoned with at all. There is one consolation. While we've known only a little about finance we know now that the great leaders of finance know nothing about it!"

Johnson described the path on which the country is moving as leading toward a "leveling of humanity" in which labor has an unparalleled opportunity.

"There is a different alignment among human beings," Johnson continued, "because the great captain of industry who thought he could dispose of his employes as he saw fit is a thing of the past."

Johnson was doubtful as to the appearance of a new party in climax to administration policies but conceded that the circumstances are more favorable today than in 1912 when he and Theodore Roosevelt led the Progressive movement to defeat at the polls, explaining that now "everything has gone topsy-turvey to loosen party lines but to say that there is going to be a change of label—I don't know."

An aqueduct would be constructed to carry the water from the Mojave river down to this section. If there is a surplus which reaches here, it would be used to replenish the underground basin in Orange county.

Quality of the water in the Mojave area is said to be excellent and has an unusually small amount of saline in its content.

Water board directors pointed out at the meeting that the board has not adopted the plan, but is merely discussing the feasibility of the project. Investigations and reports so far made have been done by private interests and not by authorization of the board, it was stated

WILL ROGERS says:

BEVERLY HILLS, Dec. 14. —(To the Editor of the Register:) Say, these gold dollar arguments are dying down. Used to pick up a paper and all you could see was what "Mr. Got His" had to say about money but now you don't hear a peep. Everybody seems to be trying to get ahold of any kind. This would be an awful good time to pass off some Confederate money.

They are holding a big peace conference in South America, just a drive and two niblick shots away from the war. Every time there is a big conference, they always have a war to go with it. I was in Geneva a couple of years ago at a conference when Japanese recruiting officers come in and drafted their delegation to go help take Manchuria.

Yours

newspaper photographers."

The senator—his townsmen still accord them the title—said he and his bride would return "sometime before Jan. 1" and would hold open house at the Reed home on New Year's Day.

The wedding was the second for both the bride and groom. Reed's first wife died last year. Mrs. Donnelly was granted a divorce from Paul Donnelly on Nov. 13, 1932 on grounds of "indignities."

This divorce was a sensation scarcely less unexpected than the kidnaping of Mrs. Donnelly, released afer 34 hours imprisonment with the demanded $75,000 ransom unpaid. The couple had been married 26 years. Theirs was considered the "ideal romance."

The Donnelly Manufacturing company, one of Kansas City's major industries employing more than 1,000 persons, originated from the youthful "Nelly Don's" dissatisfaction with formless, untidy house dresses. She designed a frock of her own. Friends exclaimed over it.

In the garret of their then-humble home, Mrs. Donelly installed a couple of power machines. By leaps and bounds this start developed into the gigantic concern.

When the Donnellys were divorced, a 50-50 settlement of family holdings was effected. Mrs. Donnelly took over all stock in the manufacturing company and retained its leadership.

Reed was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president in 1928 and 1932. Each time Mrs. Donnelly, now Democratic national committeewoman, campaigned for him.

EQUALIZATION BOARD BREECH WIDENS TODAY

board told Marshall to go ahead with the raids.

The enforcement officer reportedly announced that he would listen to "the last one that talks to me."

Evidently he had listened to the Collins faction last for shortly after Corbett's instructions, Marshall visited the embassy club and the Backyard club and arrested the alleged bartenders.

Both sides in the dispute hastened to explain their positions in enforcing the state law forbidding selling liquor over the bar and of dispensing the newly legalized alcoholic drinks through any source other than retail liquor stores.

"Since federal, state, county and city authorities have failed to oust speakeasies, how can the board of equalization do it?" Corbett said in advising a delay in enforcement until at least January 1, and recommending a change in the law.

He was answered by Fred E. Stewart, a member of the board, who said from San Diego:

"We are empowered to enforce the state liquor regulations and we are going to do it. If Corbett doesn't like the way the law is being enforced he may resign."

Collins, Corbett, Stewart and H. G. Cattell comprise the board empowered to administer the liquor control laws.

PLANS PROSECUTION OF CHAS. MITCHELL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(UP) Acting Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau disclosed today that he had rejected proposals for an out of court compromise of the government's income tax case against Charles E. Mitchell, former head of the National City Bank of New York.

"I have decided that it is in the public interest to go ahead with the ordinary legal processes to collect the tax," Morgenthau said.

Heavy income tax assessments were levied against Mitchell as a result of disclosures before the senate stock market investigating committee regarding transfers of stock among members of his family.

Criminal action also was instituted against Mitchell, but he was acquitted on these charges.

TONG WAR BREAKS OUT IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Dec. 14.— (UP) — Knives flashed in a new outbreak of Tong war in Montreal's Chinatown today, sending six Chinese to hospital and 16 to police cells.

Three of the victims may die. They are Jim Lee, 32, stabbed many times; Lim Wong, 26, fractured skull and numerous knife wounds, and Nan Chu, 51, bruised and stabbed about the head. The other three injured were sent home after treatment.

The battle broke in a Chinese restaurant in the heart of Chinatown. When police radio cars and reserves arrived in response to a riot call they found a mob of Chinamen battling in the street with knives and iron bars. Many fled at approach of police.

YOUTH IS HELD ON TRANSPORT CHARGE

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 14.—(UP)—Accused of transporting 16-year-old Lorna Dunphy from Seattle to Sacramento, Vernon Willis, 18, was held in custody today following his arrest by federal agents who traced the couple here.

The girl was placed in the county detention home pending word from her parents. She became acquainted with the youth at a Seattle stage depot while waiting for a bus to Aberdeen, she told officers. They went to Portland and later to Eugene, Ore., where their funds became exhausted, she said. The remainder of the journey to Sacramento was made by freight train.

Federal Agent T. P. Geraghty signed a complaint charging Willis with violation of the Mann act.

THREE INJURED IN TRAFFIC CRASHES

When cars driven by W. W. Dungan, Garden Grove and William H. Arens, Huntington Beach, collided at West First street and Buaro road at 8 a. m. yesterday, Mrs. J. Hansen, 42, 210 1-2 Main street, Huntington Beach, received slight injuries.

Glen R. Mead and H. H. Long, sailors, received injuries late Tuesday night when the car driven by Mead struck an electric light post on South Los Angeles street, Anaheim. Long suffered a broken shoulder and head injury while Mead sustained an injured ankle. Both were given emergency treatment at the Anaheim Sanitarium. Their two women companions were not hurt.

Probe Into Past

Investigating his past life, police learned his talents as conversationalist and a patron of the muses, gained him access to many society homes. He was said to have been ardently in love with one woman but distributed his attentions among others. From this group of acquaintances, police hoped to unearth some clue that might explain his death.

One posible clue proved worthless when police learned that a cryptic note, calling for a 11:30 appointment, was writen by Mrs. Mary Rockwell, a Hollywood patient. Mrs. Rockwell said the note, which was found on the victim's person, referred to an appointment she had with him the morning of the slaying. She said she gave him a kiss as she left the office.

"I threw my arms around him and said, 'here's a Christmas kiss for you,'" she told officers. "He seemed quite taken aback."

Mrs. Rockwell said she merely knew him as a good friend for a number of years and that there was no romance between them.

Unhappy In Love

Dr. Leon G. Lyons, Hollywood dentist, who had known Siever for several years, said he had become embittered by an unhappy love affair. The victim had told him he had "lost all faith in women," Lyons said because he discovered the woman with whom he was in love had been unfaithful to him.

Detectives learned Siever was to have had a dinner engagement with Mrs. Edna Hearst at the latter's home in "Millionaires' Row" in exclusive Orange Grove avenue. He was to have first called for Mrs. Frances Coen Cook, socially prominent divorcee, and driven her to Mrs. Herbst's home. He was bound for Mrs. Cook's home when he was shot, police said.

The caretaker of the Masonic temple said he heard no gunshots. This was explained by the fact that the rain had been continuous throughout the afternoon and evening, deadening the reports. The caretaker said he naticed the parked car a short time before the milkman passed but he did not get up to investigate.

Siever's real name was Leopold Siev. He was born in Sibar, Russia, and educated at the University of Michigan, graduating in 1916. He became a dentist after taking a course at the University of Southern California.

HUGE MERGER UNDER STUDY IN CAPITAL

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(UP)—Wide benefits to the nation's telephone, telegraph and radio systems through the government's merger plan were seen in communication circles today, although official comment was withheld pending a more complete study of the proposals.

The gist of unofficial comment was that the present competitive basis is wasteful because of plant and personnel duplications and that the leading communication companies have long discussed mergers.

Little change in the telephone business is expected, but it was considered possible that ultimate recommendations would be for a merger of all domestic telegraph and radio services and a separate consolidation of all communications with foreign connections, cable or radio.

SCHOOL BOARD UNABLE TO REACH AGREEMENT ON FUND FOR SCHOOL REPAIR WORK

With tomorrow set as the deadline for accepting the $815,000 already apportioned this district from the R. F. C. fund under the Green bill for rehabilitation of high school and elementary school buildings, the Santa Ana board of education at a special meeting this morning failed to reach a decision.

The board adjourned at noon to go to Compton and interview members of the school board in that city relative to the loan already utilized there and, under the present plan will meet again tomorrow afternoon and attempt to agree on whether or not the loan shall be accepted.

The decision to confer with the Compton board of education came after a delegation from the Tustin Elementary School district appeared at the meeting this morning and declared that once the contract is signed the State Board of Architects has complete control of building operations financed under the Green bill.

G. R. Seacord, of the Tustin board, declared that the Compton district submitted plans to the state board of architects and had them approved. The contracts, when awarded, called for expenditure of $41,000. Seacord declared that after building operations were under way the state board of architects insisted on changes and additions which ran the total amount of the operation up to $68,000. The additional expense, he said, was forced by the state architects for additions of what they termed essentials.

Seacord declared that the Tustin district has applied for $45,000 and is of the opinion that if the contract is signed the state will insist that the entire amount be used. He declared that the state architects can add to or subtract from the state building code as they see fit.

Contract Opposed

W. M. Burke, member of the Santa Ana board of education is opposing the signing of the contract on the grounds that if $700,000 is borrowed for the purpose of rehabilitating the high school buildings, the state, through Andrew Hill jr., and Allison and Allison, architects employed by the school board will insist that the entire amount be spent for construction of new buildings.

For the preliminary application for funds under the Green bill Allison and Allison prepared three proposals, one for complete rebuilding of the quake damaged buildings and two proposals for repairing those buildings which could be repaired to comply with the state code and rebuilding the auditorium which has been condemned and is closed. Hill has informed the board that should the board accept the entire $700,000 any portion of the amount that is unused may be returned to the state.

The board met last night and was unable to reach an agreement and decided to adjourn until this morning. In the meantime a copy of the contract was sent to Assistant District Attorney W. F. Menton for his opinion. He informed the board that it was a binding contract.

Two Favor Contract

Dr. Margarete Baker and Rolla Hays, members of the board, favored signing the contract on the grounds that the board is responsible for the safety of the students and, under the law, must provide school facilities. Dr. Baker said that she is confident the voters will approve the plan when they are informed as to the necessity.

Both Dr. Baker and Hays based their support of the contract on the expressed belief that, while the board signs the contract for $700,000 for high school reconstruction, any amount not used may be returned and that the state will not insist on new construction if plans for rehabilitation can bring the structures within provisions of the state code.

Burke declared that he is opposed to signing the contract unless the people first have an opportunity to vote on the matter and express their opinion. He also suggested that, as the high school district bonding capacity is approximately $400,000 it might be possible to finance rehabilitation through a bond issue and the board retain control of building operations.

Dr. Baker and Hays led the fight for accepting the loan on the grounds that the state cannot force the district into anything that is not approved by the board members. They pointed out that the contract provided that all plans, specifications and cost estimates must be approved by the board of education, R. F. C. board and the state school building agencies before bids can be called for.

They pointed out that the board had employed Allison and Allison as architects to give the board advice and if this advice is not heeded they asked 'whose advice shall we follow?' They also pointed out that, when plans for rehabilitation or rebuilding are accepted by the state and the contract is awarded on a bid that is lower than the amount of the state loan, the amount of the lowest bid is all that can possibly be spent. Dr. Baker declared that if Allison's plan No. 2, for rehabilitation is accepted the amount set forth in contracts is the limit of expenditure.

Burke took the attitude that Hill and Allison would convince the board of the need for new buildings and added that it was only natural as the more money that is spent the more commission will be paid the architect.

Up To Board

Hays replied declaring that in his opinion the board must either repair or reconstruct the school buildings and in his opinion there is every method open to the board to determine what shall be done. "We are five responsible people," he said, "and were placed upon the board to represent the people and we do have the final approval of plans before bids are called for."

He declared that he believes that when the people of Santa Ana know how essential the rehabilitation program is and that the bonding capacity of district is almost all utilized they will approve the signing of the contract. He said that he is of the opinion that the people will approve because they will believe that the board of education will approve expenditures of only such amounts as are essential to rehabilitation of the buildings. He also asked what would be the result if the board applied for only such money as was recommended by J. S. Fluor and Jules Markel as members of a contractors' committee and then found that their proposals would not pass the state code requirements.

Last night when the possibility of financing the work through a bond issue was discussed Dr. Baker asked the board the question, "Why fool ourselves into thinking that we could carry a bond issue," and stressed the importance of putting the schools in order. That, she declared, is a duty that the board members owe the people and one that must be fulfilled. Obtaining money from the state, she said, appears to be the only method available for doing this.

of the Art museum, said:

"Disney's work is worthy of a place on museum walls. His ingenuity and draftsmanship entitle him to this place. This type of cartoon is a distinct form of artistic expression."

Bid Bad Wolf

Visitors to the gallery agreed with Harshe. One group paused before a scene in which two little pigs were towing the big bad wolf along as he clings to their tails.

"Such fluidity of line," a spectator murmured.

Disney's own comment for this scene can be read in the title.

"Git along little doggies," their creator advices the pigs.

A few feet away the Gingham dog is tearing the stuffing out of a calico pillow.

"He catches the spirit of action," critics told spectators, "he arrests action and jells it."

All the plates in the Disney collection were drawn on cellophane just as they are prepared for photography. Each plate is about the size of an old-fashioned geography book. In the next gallery, however, a six-foot canvas is necessary to show Paul Kleinschmidt's modernistic portrait of a woman combing her hair.

The Pied Piper of Hamlin is leading a million mice and rats in her direction.

JOHNSON WILL BACK POLITICS OF ROOSEVELT

before the senate stock market committee have been stripped so bare that there no longer are any of them to be reckoned with at all. There is one consolation. While we've known only a little about finance we know now that the great leaders of finance know nothing about it!"

Johnson described the path on which the country is moving as leading toward a "leveling of humanity" in which labor has an unparalleled opportunity.

"There is a different alignment among human beings," Johnson continued, "because the great captain of industry who thought he could dispose of his employes as he saw fit is a thing of the past."

Johnson was doubtful as to the appearance of a new party in climax to administration policies but conceded that the circumstances are more favorable today than in 1912 when he and Theodore Roosevelt led the Progressive movement to defeat at the polls, explaining that now "everything has gone topsy-turvey to loosen party lines but to say that there is going to be a change of label—I don't know."

A WORD OF COMFORT

At the moment your grief overshadows everything else in life but the great reality is your love. Your sorrow at temporary separation from your dear one is a corollary and an accompaniment of an abiding love.

The reunion which God has promised requires that you live at your best in the light of that certainty. Your grief will not become less but God will give you strength to bear it and you will become increasingly conscious of the nearness of your loved one.

GAEL-BRONCO BREAK TO BE HEALED SOON?

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—(INS)—Because St. Mary's was unsuccessful in scheduling a 1934 football game with either Stanford or Southern California, and Santa Clara likewise was unsuccessful in landing a place on the Trojan schedule, reports were again current today that the athletic breach between the Gaels and Broncos may be patched up.

It was pointed out that the Gaels and Broncos played before 60,000 fans in their "Little Big Game" this year and that either school could beneficially use the proceeds from such a gate in 1934.

RE-ELECT HEAD OF CWA, RELIEF GROUPS HERE

Orange county's enlarged Civil Works Administration committee and Emergency Relief committee reorganized this morning and immediately set about the task of approving work projects.

In the reorganization meeting J. K. McDonald, chairman of the original committee was re-elected chairman of the interlocking groups. The Rev. George Warmer, Santa Ana, newly appointed member of the group, was named vice chairman and R. B. Newcom, of Orange, and a member of the original group, was named secretary.

The committees are faced with the task of approving all Civil Works projects by tomorrow.

Immediately after reorganizing the group convened as a Civil Works Administration committee to consider and approve projects submitted by the engineering advisors. When this task is completed the matter of administration personnel will be taken up.

The two groups, of which the membership is the same, were enlarged Tuesday by action of the board of supervisors in response to a request by a committee representing mayors of all Orange county municipalities.

The augumented boards met yesterday and spent the entire day in conferences with a representative of R. C. Branion, California director of Federal projects, and Curry, who has been heading the work of both groups.

WATER BOARD TO OPPOSE USE OF FEDERAL FUNDS ON WORK HARMFUL TO ORANGE COUNTY

Vigorously opposing any water spreading work in Cucamongo creek, tributary to Santa Ana river, the board of directors of the Orange County Water District, meeting yesterday afternoon in Garden Grove, adopted a formal resolution expressing disapproval of such water spreading.

While the adoption of the resolution was the only official action taken in opposition to water spreading, the board established its policy of opposition to water spreading which is harmful to the interests of Orange county water users.

This was accomplished in the form of a motion adopted expressing opposition to any spreading harmful to Orange county interests. The motion adopted included the proviso, considered an important move of the board, that formal protests be filed with government officials opposing the use of federal funds and labor in the spreading projects which are believed to halt the natural flow of water to Orange county via the Santa Ana river.

The suggestion was made by Director Roy Browning, who pointed out that if the protests are lodged with government officials opposing use of federal money and labor in spreading activities for private interests, it will bring about formal hearings, when the Orange County Water district will be able to present its side of the case. Director William Schumacher said the move would aid in establishing the amount of water Orange county is entitled to get from tributaries to the Santa Ana river

Spreading operations in Cucamonga, near Upland, seriously affect the rights of water users in Orange county, the resolution adopted declared. It expressed "vigorous opposition" to any works which tend to impede the normal flow of the stream or which will tend to spread water in the stream and impede the normal flow down the stream in its ordinary course. The resolution will be sent to the Cucamonga Basin Protective association.

Another matter which came to the attention of the board was the waste of water through using too much water by Orange county agriculturists in irrigation. Director Browning, after the matter had been brought up by Director William Mauerhan, declared one-third of the water used in irrigation in the county could be saved by an educational program to acquaint growers with the proper amount of water to use. Farm Adviser Harold E. Wahlberg was lauded for his work along this line.

The directors authorized the preparation of another resolution opposing spreading water in San Antonio creek, another tributary to the Santa Ana river.

Great Britain imported more dairy products in 1932 than any other country.

DOCTOR HOLDS DRIVER OF CAR WAS NOT DRUNK

Correcting published reports in The Register that he was intoxicated at the time of an accident in which Miss Rhoda Patchett of Newman was killed, Alfred Mays stated today that the physician who examined him at the Orange County hospital said he had been drinking but was not intoxicated.

At the coroner's inquest, evidence was presented that both Mays and James Usher, riding with him, had been drinking before the accident and that a small bottle of whiskey was found near the wreck. Dr. James Farrage testified that Mays was not intoxicated but showed evidence of drinking.

Mays was held to answer in the justice court yesterday on a charge of manslaughter. The wreck occurred November 26 near Doheny Park after the car in which the trio was riding skidded 465 feet and then overturned several times.

Augmenting rainfall totals in Orange county to such a point that 10 out of 23 communities in the county have more rain at this time than at the same time last year, a spotted rainfall during the past 24 hours boosted Orange county totals.

In the first general storm since last spring, Santa Ana received .30 inches of rain during the 24-hour period, making a total of 1.58 for the storm, 2.18 for the season as compared with 2.81 last year.

Santiago canyon received the heaviest rainfall during the 24 hours, with a total of 1.48 inches for the period, bringing the total for the storm to 3.31 inches and for the season to 4.29 inches as compared with 3.70 inches at the same time last year.

Irvine and Campbell station both received .70 inches during the 24 hours past. Communities which have passed the total at this time last year are Yorba Linda, Santiago Dam, Brea, Orange, McPherson, Villa Park, West Orange, Olive Campbell Station and Fullerton.

The United States Weather Bureau predicted the weather would be cooler tonight with frost in exposed places.

VALLEY WATER PROJECT TOPIC AT FARM MEET

A large number were in attendance last night at the joint meeting of the West Orange and Foothill Farm centers at the Intermediate school in Orange when a debate on the proposed $170,000,000 Central Valley Water project was held with Assemblyman Ford Chatters of Lindsay taking the affirmative and W. O. Harris, past president of the Kiwanis International the negative side of the question.

Chapters declared that the issue was not a bond issue but an enabling act. Harris refuted this statement and declared that in substance the project is a bond issue and sooner or later will be found to be such. He stated that people in this part of the state have developed their own water projects and have not asked for help in doing so.

C. A. Palmer, president of the Foothill Farm center presided. Senator Nels T. Edwards introduced the speakers. At the close of the debate A. B. Rousselle gave a short talk on the proposed $640,000 harbor bond issue.

A WORD OF COMFORT

At the moment your grief overshadows everything else in life but the great reality is your love. Your sorrow at temporary separation from your dear one is a corollary and an accompaniment of an abiding love.

The reunion which God has promised requires that you live at your best in the light of that certainty. Your grief will not become less but God will give you strength to bear it and you will become increasingly conscious of the nearness of your loved one.

GAEL-BRONCO BREAK TO BE HEALED SOON?

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—(INS)—Because St. Mary's was unsuccessful in scheduling a 1934 football game with either Stanford or Southern California, and Santa Clara likewise was unsuccessful in landing a place on the Trojan schedule, reports were again current today that the athletic breach between the Gaels and Broncos may be patched up.

It was pointed out that the Gaels and Broncos played before 60,000 fans in their "Little Big Game" this year and that either school could beneficially use the proceeds from such a gate in 1934.

ROACH-STRUB UNION TO GIVE L. A. RACES

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—(UP)—Hopes of Southern California horse racing fans for a track of their own soared today when it was announced that Hal Roach and Dr. Charles Strub, San Francisco baseball magnate, will finance the venture.

After three days of bickering, the Hollywood film producer and Strub decided to combine forces and expend in the neighborhood of $1,000,000 for a plant in the vicinity of Los Ankeles. The track will be in operation next fall or winter. No site was announced.

Bert Culp, Santa Ana, committed to the jail on a possession of liquor charge, will be confined until December 30 after voluntarily asking imprisonment to serve out the balance of his $111 fine. RE-ELECT HEAD OF CWA, RELIEF GROUPS HERE

Orange county's enlarged Civil Works Administration committee and Emergency Relief committee reorganized this morning and immediately set about the task of approving work projects.

In the reorganization meeting J. K. McDonald, chairman of the original committee was re-elected chairman of the interlocking groups. The Rev. George Warmer, Santa Ana, newly appointed member of the group, was named vice chairman and R. B. Newcom, of Orange, and a member of the original group, was named secretary.

The committees are faced with the task of approving all Civil Works projects by tomorrow.

Immediately after reorganizing the group convened as a Civil Works Administration committee to consider and approve projects submitted by the engineering advisors. When this task is completed the matter of administration personnel will be taken up.

The two groups, of which the membership is the same, were enlarged Tuesday by action of the board of supervisors in response to a request by a committee representing mayors of all Orange county municipalities.

The augumented boards met yesterday and spent the entire day in conferences with a representative of R. C. Branion, California director of Federal projects, and Curry, who has been heading the work of both groups.

S. A. Veteran Dies In Oakland Hotel

Word was received here today of the death of Edwin G. Carleton, who lived in Santa Ana for the last three years and who died suddenly recently in an Oakland hotel.

He was a disabled war veteran and went to the Philippines for service in 1899 with a group of Santa Anan soldiers. He was a member of the Spanish War Veterans and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Graveside services were held at the National cemetery, at Presidio, San Francisco.

WATER BOARD TO OPPOSE USE OF FEDERAL FUNDS ON WORK HARMFUL TO ORANGE COUNTY

Vigorously opposing any water spreading work in Cucamonga creek, tributary to Santa Ana river, the board of directors of the Orange County Water District, meeting yesterday afternoon in Garden Grove, adopted a formal resolution expressing disapproval of such water spreading.

While the adoption of the resolution was the only official action taken in opposition to water spreading, the board established its policy of opposition to water spreading which is harmful to the interests of Orange county water users.

This was accomplished in the form of a motion adopted expressing opposition to any spreading harmful to Orange county interests. The motion adopted included the proviso, considered an important move of the board, that formal protests be filed with government officials opposing the use of federal funds and labor in the spreading projects which are believed to halt the natural flow of water to Orange county via the Santa Ana river.

The suggestion was made by Director Roy Browning, who pointed out that if the protests are lodged with government officials opposing use of federal money and labor in spreading activities for private interests, it will bring about formal hearings, when the Orange County Water district will be able to present its side of the case. Director William Schumacher said the move would aid in establishing the amount of water Orange county is entitled to get from tributaries to the Santa Ana river

Spreading operations in Cucamonga, near Upland, seriously affect the rights of water users in Orange county, the resolution adopted declared. It expressed "vigorous opposition" to any works which tend to impede the normal flow of the stream or which will tend to spread water in the stream and impede the normal flow down the stream in its ordinary course. The resolution will be sent to the Cucamonga Basin Protective association.

Another matter which came to the attention of the board was the waste of water through using too much water by Orange county agriculturists in irrigation. Director Browning, after the matter had been brought up by Director William Mauerhan, declared one-third of the water used in irrigation in the county could be saved by an educational program to acquaint growers with the proper amount of water to use. Farm Adviser Harold E. Wahlberg was lauded for his work along this line.

The directors authorized the preparation of another resolution opposing spreading water in San Antonio creek, another tributary to the Santa Ana river.

Great Britain imported more dairy products in 1932 than any other country.

DOCTOR HOLDS DRIVER OF CAR WAS NOT DRUNK

Correcting published reports in The Register that he was intoxicated at the time of an accident in which Miss Rhoda Patchett of Newman was killed, Alfred Mays stated today that the physician who examined him at the Orange County hospital said he had been drinking but was not intoxicated.

At the coroner's inquest, evidence was presented that both Mays and James Usher, riding with him, had been drinking before the accident and that a small bottle of whiskey was found near the wreck. Dr. James Farrage testified that Mays was not intoxicated but showed evidence of drinking.

Mays was held to answer in the justice court yesterday on a charge of manslaughter. The wreck occurred November 26 near Doheny Park after the car in which the trio was riding skidded 465 feet and then overturned several times.

WILSON TO SPEAK AT FORUM FRIDAY

J. Stitt Wilson, of Berkeley, will discuss the Central Valley Water project which will be voted on at the December 19 election at an open meeting of the People's Forum at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night, it was announced today.

Wilson, a former mayor of Berkeley, is well known in Orange county where he has lectured on numerous occasions. No admission is charged and the public is invited to hear the discussion.

C. E. UTT FAVORS COUNTY HARBOR IMPROVEMENT

Reflecting the reversal of opinion in favor of the Orange County Harbor improvement by many who have opposed other bond issues but are supporting the harbor project, is a public statement made today by C. E. Utt, pioneer rancher and large property owner in the district.

"I have said that I would not vote for any bonds for any purpose," Utt declared, "but I have changed my mind. With the government contributing $2 for each one we pay, and also supervising the works, it seems to me a golden opportunity which it would be unwise to let slip.

"The small sum which we pay, together with the larger sum which the Federal government contributes, will constitute a total amount large enough to make the harbor a fact rather than an expectation.

"I have been acquainted with Newport Bay for around 60 years, and have watched its growth from a place of no assessed value to one with an assessment roll of nearly six million dollars.

"I have no doubt at all that the next half century will show far greater growth for that locality than the past. Why this great growth? It is not due to its agricultural wealth or opportunities, but rather solely to salt water—next to fresh water our greatest asset. I repeat, the Pacific ocean, next to fresh water, is our greatest asset.

"We have exploited our horticultural possibilities to a high degree, and are beginning to develop our manufacturing opportunities.

"But we are only at the beginning of reaping the wealth the Pacific ocean offers us as a playground and a commercial empire.

"If we are ever to receive our share of this potential wealth we will presently have to provide the harbor, and instead of paying one-third, we will later have to pay the full cost.

"We are potentially as rich as we ever were. The present depression will presently pass in spite of all we can do to prevent it. Prosperity is purely impersonal and will return just as soon as we are ready for it. Let us prepare to receive our share of it.

"In my opinion, this harbor improvement will not cost us one cent.

"Indeed, I expect it will pay the present taxpayers a profit by the larger tax rolls which it will provide."

CONFERENCE OF AVOCADO MEN SET SATURDAY

Called by Orange County Farm Adviser Harold Wahlberg at the request of avocado industry groups the avocado conference will be held Saturday morning, starting at 10 o'clock in Wahlberg's office. This will be an informal conference for the purpose of discussing the possibility of market stabilization, Wahlberg who arranged the conference as representative of the university extension service, said.

Alexander Johnson, secretary of the California Farm Bureau Federation, will preside as chairman during the conference. Porter Taylor of Washington, D. C., in charge of the special corps division of the agricultural adjustment administration, will be among the speakers. F. R. Wilcox, marketing specialist of the university extension service, will speak outlining the progress made in the program of market stabilization for crops other than avocados.

Among groups to be represented at the conference will be the calavo growers and independent groups from San Diego, Orange and Los Angeles counties.

LEGION, ELKS PLAN PARTY FOR CHILDREN

Consideration of plans for a Christmas entertainment for children of Santa Ana will feature the regular meeting of Santa Ana Post No. 131, American Legion, at Getty Hall tonight, it was announced today.

This year the Legion is joining with the Santa Ana Elks club, which has staged the Christmas event for children in years past, in staging the program on Sunday, December 24, in the afternoon at Birch Park, according to Robert E. Walker, in charge for the Elks.

Santa Claus will make a personal appearance at the Christmas party, and will distribute candy to hundreds of children who are expected to be in attendance.

A comprehensive program is being worked out for the holiday feature. The Legion end of the function is in the hands of a committee headed by George E. Kellogg, prominent in Legion activities and a member of the crack Santa Ana Legion drum and bugle corps. Assisting Kellogg are J. B. Casteix, Frank D. Corey, William H. Penn, Lloyd M. Banks, Glen Cave, Harry S. Pickard, Arthur W. Angle and Harold R. Brown.

Initiatory work will be done by the drum corps team at the meeting tonight and the Auxiliary Glee club will entertain.

HANNA A. TUTTLE CALLED BY DEATH

Mrs. Hanna A. Tuttle, 84, resident of Santa Ana for the past 10 years, died yesterday following a brief illness.

She is survived by two sons, Merle I. Tuttle, 1206 South Birch street, Santa Ana; and LeRoy Tuttle, of San Pedro, and one daughter, Mrs. Charles Luck, Marshfield, Wisconsin.

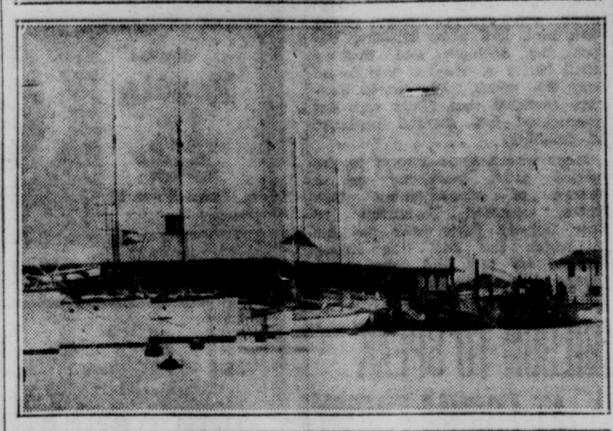

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow from the chapel of the Harrell and Brown Funeral home, 116 West Seventeenth street.

Interment will be made in Inglewood cemetery.

World Affairs Council Meets At Y. W. Tonight

Sam Hurwitz, well known Santa Ana business man, S. M. Davis, attorney and T. H. Glenn, teacher at the Junior college will be the speakers at tonight's session of the Santa Ana Council of International Relations. The meeting will be held at the Y. W. C. A. and will be preceded by a dinner to be served at 6:30 p. m.

The subject for discussion is "The Present Situation in Germany."

Davis will review the life of Adolf Hitler and Hurwitz will discuss the treatment of racial and political minorities in Germany. Glenn will outline the reaction of foreign countries to Hitler's policies.

In announcing the meeting it was said that those who do not care to attend the dinner are invited to arrive at 7:30 to hear the speakers.

SANTA ANA P. O. TO KEEP OPEN ON SATURDAYS

Santa Ana postoffice will remain open until 6 o'clock this Saturday afternoon and Saturday afternoon of next week to aid in the Christmas rush, it was announced today by Postmaster Terry E. Stephenson.

Mailers were urged today to mail Christmas packages for eastern destinations either today or tomorrow to make sure that they will be delivered by Christmas time. While postal officials did not discourage later mailing for eastern points, it was pointed out that the sooner the mailing is done the better.

At the same time, Superintendent of Mails L. F. Harvey warned residents of Santa Ana not to write too much on Christmas cards sent out, pointing out that only Christmas messages, such as "Best Wishes," "Christmas Greetings," etc., are permissible if the cards are to go for a cent and a half instead of three cents.

It was pointed out that hundreds of cards mailed at the postoffice today under the lower rate had to be turned down because senders made letters out of Christmas cards.

BODY FOUND IN SEA OFF DOHENY PARK

Found floating near the shore at Doheny Park, the body of an unidentified man was recovered by officers last night and removed to the Divel Funeral home in San Clemente, pending inquest arrangements by Coroner Earl Abbey.

Abbey, Deputy Sheriff Herman Zabel and Divel were called to the coast last evening after a man known only as "Johnny" said he had seen a body in the surf. After a search of several hours, the victim had not been sighted and the officers were preparing to go home when they caught sight of an object in the kelp beds. After considerable difficulty, the body was reached and brought to shore.

It is believed that the body had been in the water for several days. The only clothing was a shirt and undergarment while all the teeth had been extracted. The man was from 55 to 60 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighed about 175 pounds.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

H. S. GIRLS TO PRESENT GIFTS TO CHILDREN

Because of the generosity of the Girls' League of the Santa Ana High school, approximately 250 boys and girls of the Fremont school will be made happy for Christmas when they are given presents by the league tomorrow.

Each year the league, under the leadership of Miss Helen Kirkland, league advisor, buys presents for the children of the Fremont school who otherwise would have a bleak Christmas. The gifts will be distributed to the children of the first four grades at a Christmas program staged by the school for the purpose.

Miss Roberta Tuthill, league president, explained that the names of the people of the first four grares were obtained from the school and members of the high school organization volunteered to buy a gift for one or more of the names. Members of the league will be present at the distribution tomorrow.

Assisting Miss Kirkland and Miss Tuthill with the plans are the members of the Girls' League Cabinet which consists of the Misses Jeanette Klatt, Georgiana Irwin, Barbara Crawford, Betty Lee, Julian Woven, Helena Bailey, Valerie Demetriou, Ruth Warner and Dorothy Gowdy.

GRAND ARMY IN ANNUAL DINNER AND ELECTION

J. H. Brown, Tustin, was re-elected commander of Sedgwick Post No. 17, Grand Army of the Republic, at the annual meeting held yesterday afternoon in the K. of P. hall.

Other officers elected were: George D. Campbell, senior vice commander; G. W. Spencer, junior vice commander; W. J. Lieser, quartermaster; Hiram Cleveland, quartermaster. The new officers will be installed the first meeting in January.

The election was held during the annual Christmas dinner when members of the G. A. R., their wives and widows were the honored guests of the Sons and Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War. More than 80 were present in spite of the inclement weather.

Mrs. Rowena Grout, president of the Daughters, spoke briefly and presented a generous check to the G. A. R. post. The thanks and response were given by Commander Brown.

Decoration of the attractive tables was in charge of Luella Hill, chairman of the committee, assisted by Gladys Ward, Florence Perry and Pearl Nelson. The kitchen committee, comprised of Chairman Jessie Overton and Bren Baker, Olive Baird, Esther Gardner, Geralding Beall and Media Brayton, served an excellent chicken dinner.

Members of the transportation committee, of which I. F. Millen is chairman, assisted by W. J. Davis, E. J. Parker, J. H. Mitchell, J. F. Burke, F. E. Saylor, M. S. Palmer and Roy N. Pollock, were complimented for their services.

Rowena Grout, president of the Daughters, and Earl R. Elliott, president of the Sons, spoke briefly. Another speaker on the program was Mrs. Sarah Alford, of the Ladies of the G. A. R.

Mrs. E. J. Parker, Elizabeth Adams and Lena Hewitt constituted the reception committee while Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Moore and Minnie Cowan were in charge of arrangements for the annual dinner.

There were 13 members of the G. A. R. present at the dinner, and 27 dinners were sent out to G. A. R. members and widows not able to be present.

Appreciation was expressed to Chief of Police Floyd W. Howard for his help in keeping space clear at the hall entrance so G. A. R. members could have easy access to the hall.

JUNIOR POLICE OF CITY HOLD FIRST BANQUET

Featuring a talk by District Attorney S. B. Kaufman and bringing together members and guests of the Santa Ana Junior Police for the first banquet of the organization, a meeting was held by the youths last night in the high school cafeteria.

Chief Harold McCuistion presided at the banquet and introduced the guests, including T. P. McKee, high school adviser; W. P. Reed, Willard Junior High school advisor; Ferris Scott, Lathrop Junior Hight school advisor; Leon McMullen, high school instructor, Councilman E. G. Warner, police commissioner; Police Chief Floyd Howard and Kaufman. The district attorney spoke on the duties of the Junior Police to themselves and to the community, stressed the importance of having an object for which to work and said that future success depended on their own honest efforts.

The entertainment program included numbers by a musical trio of Harold Martin, guitar, John Vierra, harmonica and Harvey Luny, ukelele, from Lathrop school and vocal solos by Frank Marr of the high school, accompanied by Miss Joy Henderson. Parents of several of the members were present and were greeted by Warner, who complimented the organization in a short talk.

Major A. F. Moulton, advisor of the group, spoke briefly and announced that another banquet would be held in the near future.

THIEVES GET $50 FROM SAFE AT HIGH SCHOOL

Following investigations by sheriff's officers and checking by school officials, it has been determined that about $50 was stolen from the Newport Harbor Union High school when a thief broke into the office, robbed the safe and escaped with the cash Tuesday night.

Entrance to the office was gained by breaking a window and reaching inside to unlock it. The dial of the safe was knocked off with a heavy instrument and the vault completely ransacked. As far as could be determined, none of the records or valuable papers were missing and only the money taken. The suspect left the building by unlocking a window from the inside, it was learned.

The burglary was believed to be the work of school children at first but the absence of fingerprints and thoroughness of the safecracking has led Deputy Sheriffs Earl Nickles and R. R. Lutes, handling the investigation, to believe that an experienced thief perpetrated the job.

Police News

Arden Crawford, 23, Anaheim, was arrested in Los Angeles Tuesday for failure to provide for minor children and was returned to the county jail by Deputy Sheriffs G. F. McKelvey and Merle Dean.

Hall Crosley, 40, and Ray Tierney, 31, both of Los Angeles, has been booked at the county jail by federal officers on charges of counterfeiting.

Ruben Quezada, 20, Los Angeles, has been arrested in Los Angeles on investigation of grand theft of the automobile of L. Meza, Corona Camp, La Habra, who had his car stolen last week. Deputy Sheriffs G. F. McKelvey and Merle Dean returned Quezada to the county jail and recovered the car.

Arrested on Birch street near Third, S. Townsend, Santa Ana, was booked at the county jail at 12:30 a. m. yesterday for drunkenness. He was released on his own recognizance by police.

The bicycle of Lemoyne Strickland, reported stolen Sunday, was found abandoned yesterday by Mrs. E. E. Stevens, 205 North Birch street, and returned by police.

A sweater was stolen and gasoline siphoned from the parked car of Mrs. F. E. Kingsbury, 1112 North Olive street, Monday night, she reported to police yesterday.

New Ford V-8 for 1934

Greater power at still lower cost through new Dual Carburetion . . . Increased motoring comfort because of simplified Clear-vision Ventilation . . . Easier riding through more flexible springs, deeper seat cushions and softer cushion springs . . . Distinctive new appearance . . . Many other features

1 More Miles Per Gallon—More Power, Speed and Efficiency with Dual Carburetion—Greater Oil Economy

The performance and economy of the 1933 Ford V-8 have been the talk of thousands of motorists. Owners said: "Leave it alone, don't change it." Dealers said: "Impossible to improve it!" But we have improved it — in every direction. We started with the engine. The Ford V-8 for 1934 is more powerful, more efficient, easier to start in cold weather, yet it is the most economical Ford to operate ever built — largely because of the new Dual Carburetor and Dual Intake Manifold. Even in the coldest weather the V-8 engine warms up quickly and maintains an efficient operating temperature because of new thermostats in the waterline.

Added engine refinements — get the details about all of them from the nearest Ford dealer — reduce oil consumption and further reduce operating and maintenance costs.

2 Clear-vision Ventilation—and the Windshield Opens

There's nothing to obstruct the view in the new Ford system of Clear-vision Ventilation. It's built-in — simplicity itself. The same handle that raises the window glass also slides it back horizontally to the ventilating position, and then the forward motion of the car draws the air out of the body. Drafts are eliminated, passenger comfort is assured, and windshield will not fog in cold weather. Another interesting feature of the Ford system — the windshield can be opened! This, and the cowl ventilator, provide the additional air needed for hot-weather comfort.

Put It to the Test

Ride in this New Ford V-8 for 1934 and find out — personally — what it can do. It is the one sure way to find out which car gives you the most for your money.

3 Greater Beauty—New Radiator Shell and Grille—Fenders in Color

A car to be proud of, the Ford V-8 for 1934 has newly designed chromium-plated radiator shell and grille, and other distinctive features. Interiors are more attractive, with new tufted upholstery, new mouldings, new cove-type headlining, new instrument panel, new arm rests and new hardware. Swivel-type sun visors in De Luxe bodies prevent glare from front or side.

Fenders on all De Luxe cars are in color to harmonize with body colors. New enamel finish on all bodies and fenders has greater wearing quality and more enduring luster.

4 Transverse Springs—Comfort with Stability and Safety

Ford transverse springs provide the utmost stability and safety. Placed crosswise, they tend to prevent the body from tilting on uneven roads, and turns can be taken safely at relatively high speeds. Free and easy action of all four wheels is permitted because the outer flexible tips of the springs are attached to the axles. Thus the most sensitive parts of the springs receive road shocks first and absorb them before they reach the body. The advantages of the solid axle are retained.

GRAND ARMY IN ANNUAL DINNER AND ELECTION

J. H. Brown, Tustin, was re-elected commander of Sedgwick Post No. 17, Grand Army of the Republic, at the annual meeting held yesterday afternoon in the K. of P. hall.

Other officers elected were: George D. Campbell, senior vice commander; G. W. Spencer, junior vice commander; W. J. Lieser, quartermaster; Hiram Cleveland, quartermaster. The new officers will be installed the first meeting in January.

The election was held during the annual Christmas dinner when members of the G. A. R., their wives and widows were the honored guests of the Sons and Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War. More than 80 were present in spite of the inclement weather.

Mrs. Rowena Grout, president of the Daughters, spoke briefly and presented a generous check to the G. A. R. post. The thanks and response were given by Commander Brown.

Decoration of the attractive tables was in charge of Luella Hill, chairman of the committee, assisted by Gladys Ward, Florence Perry and Pearl Nelson. The kitchen committee, comprised of Chairman Jessie Overton and Bren Baker, Olive Baird, Esther Gardner, Geralding Beall and Media Brayton, served an excellent chicken dinner.

Members of the transportation committee, of which I. F. Millen is chairman, assisted by W. J. Davis, E. J. Parker, J. H. Mitchell, J. F. Burke, F. E. Saylor, M. S. Palmer and Roy N. Pollock, were complimented for their services.

Rowena Grout, president of the Daughters, and Earl R. Elliott, president of the Sons, spoke briefly. Another speaker on the program was Mrs. Sarah Alford, of the Ladies of the G. A. R.

Mrs. E. J. Parker, Elizabeth Adams and Lena Hewitt constituted the reception committee while Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Moore and Minnie Cowan were in charge of arrangements for the annual dinner.

There were 13 members of the G. A. R. present at the dinner, and 27 dinners were sent out to G. A. R. members and widows not able to be present.

Appreciation was expressed to Chief of Police Floyd W. Howard for his help in keeping space clear at the hall entrance so G. A. R. members could have easy access to the hall.

JUNIOR POLICE OF CITY HOLD FIRST BANQUET

Featuring a talk by District Attorney S. B. Kaufman and bringing together members and guests of the Santa Ana Junior Police for the first banquet of the organization, a meeting was held by the youths last night in the high school cafeteria.

Chief Harold McCuistion presided at the banquet and introduced the guests, including T. P. McKee, high school adviser; W. P. Reed, Willard Junior High school advisor; Ferris Scott, Lathrop Junior Hight school advisor; Leon McMullen, high school instructor, Councilman E. G. Warner, police commissioner; Police Chief Floyd Howard and Kaufman. The district attorney spoke on the duties of the Junior Police to themselves and to the community, stressed the importance of having an object for which to work and said that future success depended on their own honest efforts.

The entertainment program included numbers by a musical trio of Harold Martin, guitar, John Vierra, harmonica and Harvey Luny, ukelele, from Lathrop school and vocal solos by Frank Marr of the high school, accompanied by Miss Joy Henderson. Parents of several of the members were present and were greeted by Warner, who complimented the organization in a short talk.

Major A. F. Moulton, advisor of the group, spoke briefly and announced that another banquet would be held in the near future.

THIEVES GET $50 FROM SAFE AT HIGH SCHOOL

Following investigations by sheriff's officers and checking by school officials, it has been determined that about $50 was stolen from the Newport Harbor Union High school when a thief broke into the office, robbed the safe and escaped with the cash Tuesday night.

Entrance to the office was gained by breaking a window and reaching inside to unlock it. The dial of the safe was knocked off with a heavy instrument and the vault completely ransacked. As far as could be determined, none of the records or valuable papers were missing and only the money taken. The suspect left the building by unlocking a window from the inside, it was learned.

The burglary was believed to be the work of school children at first but the absence of fingerprints and thoroughness of the safecracking has led Deputy Sheriffs Earl Nickles and R. R. Lutes, handling the investigation, to believe that an experienced thief perpetrated the job.

Police News

Arden Crawford, 23, Anaheim, was arrested in Los Angeles Tuesday for failure to provide for minor children and was returned to the county jail by Deputy Sheriffs G. F. McKelvey and Merle Dean.

Hall Crosley, 40, and Ray Tierney, 31, both of Los Angeles, has been booked at the county jail by federal officers on charges of counterfeiting.

Ruben Quezada, 20, Los Angeles, has been arrested in Los Angeles on investigation of grand theft of the automobile of La Meza, Corona Camp, La Habra, who had his car stolen last week. Deputy Sheriffs G. F. McKelvey and Merle Dean returned Quezada to the county jail and recovered the car.

Arrested on Birch street near Third, S. Townsend, Santa Ana, was booked at the county jail at 12:30 a. m. yesterday for drunkenness. He was released on his own recognizance by police.

The bicycle of Lemoyne Strickland, reported stolen Sunday, was found abandoned yesterday by Mrs. E. E. Stevens, 205 North Birch street, and returned by police.

A sweater was stolen and gasoline siphoned from the parked car of Mrs. F. E. Kingsbury, 1112 North Olive street, Monday night, she reported to police yesterday.

SOVIET JUSTICE FORUM SUBJECT OF DR. ROMAN

"Soviet law is not based upon equality before the law but upon the place of the individual in the social scheme and his responsibility to that social scheme," Dr. Frederick W. Roman declared at a forum meeting Tuesday night in the People's Forum, Third and Bush streets.

The speaker declared that Soviet law is not based upon thousands of years of precedent and technicality but upon a rough and ready justice which judges every case upon its merits.

Asserting that all other systems in the world today are founded upon thousands of years of accumulation of legal precedent and a maze of technicality which confuses justice and produces such actions as the San Jose lynchings, Dr. Roman claimed the Soviet system unique in the world today in that procedure was created out of whole cloth following the revolution of 1917.

"We have always represented justice in symbol and statue as being blind," he said, "and have taken great pride that she was blind and could not distinguish between the rich and poor, the powerful and the oppressed, and we have always claimed that impartial justice was administered. We no longer can fool ourselves that the impartiality exists and the blindness of justice might be interpreted in a different way.

"The Russian says that he does not want a blind Justice but one with both eyes wide open," said Dr. Roman. "Their codes are simple, direct and produce quick action, and insofar as they accomplish that, our Western codes could profit much in imitating them."

Dr. Roman claimed that little censure was attached to imprisonment and that the individual was accepted back into society without blame. "I told them that we were headed in that direction but that only our largest and most wealthy violators were accorded that recognition at the present time," said Dr. Roman.

VERDICT OF 1ST DEGREE MURDER ASKED OF JURY

Closing arguments to the jury by the prosecution and the defense today featured the trial of Jose Sanchez, Mexican, accused of the murder of Loren Eckles at a dance hall in El Toro, 16 years ago, with District Attorney S. B. Kaufman asking for a first degree murder verdict. Because of the fact that the accused did the the alleged shooting when under age, being but 17 years of age at the time, the death penalty cannot be imposed, though a murder verdict is returned, inquiries revealed.

Following instructions by the court, the case was given to the jury shortly before noon. The opening argument for the prosecution was presented by Deputy District Attorney Leo Friis who presented a strong plea for conviction. He was followed by Defense Counsel M. S. Spicer, who having previously failed to obtain an instructed verdict, asked the jury to free the accused of the murder charge.

SOVIET JUSTICE FORUM SUBJECT OF DR. ROMAN

"Soviet law is not based upon equality before the law but upon the place of the individual in the social scheme and his responsibility to that social scheme," Dr. Frederick W. Roman declared at a forum meeting Tuesday night in the People's Forum, Third and Bush streets.

The speaker declared that Soviet law is not based upon thousands of years of precedent and technicality but upon a rough and ready justice which judges every case upon its merits.

Asserting that all other systems in the world today are founded upon thousands of years of accumulation of legal precedent and a maze of technicality which confuses justice and produces such actions as the San Jose lynchings, Dr. Roman claimed the Soviet system unique in the world today in that procedure was created out of whole cloth following the revolution of 1917.

"We have always represented justice in symbol and statue as being blind," he said, "and have taken great pride that she was blind and could not distinguish between the rich and poor, the powerful and the oppressed, and we have always claimed that impartial justice was administered. We no longer can fool ourselves that the impartiality exists and the blindness of justice might be interpreted in a different way.

"The Russian says that he does not want a blind Justice but one with both eyes wide open," said Dr. Roman. "Their codes are simple, direct and produce quick action, and insofar as they accomplish that, our Western codes could profit much in imitating them."

Dr. Roman claimed that little censure was attached to imprisonment and that the individual was accepted back into society without blame. "I told them that we were headed in that direction but that only our largest and most wealthy violators were accorded that recognition at the present time," said Dr. Roman.

VERDICT OF 1ST DEGREE MURDER ASKED OF JURY

Closing arguments to the jury by the prosecution and the defense today featured the trial of Jose Sanchez, Mexican, accused of the murder of Loren Eckles at a dance hall in El Toro, 16 years ago, with District Attorney S. B. Kaufman asking for a first degree murder verdict. Because of the fact that the accused did the the alleged shooting when under age, being but 17 years of age at the time, the death penalty cannot be imposed, though a murder verdict is returned, inquiries revealed.

Following instructions by the court, the case was given to the jury shortly before noon. The opening argument for the prosecution was presented by Deputy District Attorney Leo Friis who presented a strong plea for conviction. He was followed by Defense Counsel M. S. Spicer, who having previously failed to obtain an instructed verdict, asked the jury to free the accused of the murder charge.

Some Questions on Harbor Bond Issue Answered

In order to clarify the Orange County Harbor District project to be voted on next Tuesday, voters are urged to read and study the following facts, as brought in these questions and answers which have been puzzling a few of the folks:

What will the Harbor Cost Orange County?

Only $640,000, at 4 per cent repayable over 30 years. The remainder, $1,195,441 will come as an outright gift from the National Public Works Fund, and does not have to be repaid.

What Is the Individual Cost to Taxpayers?

It will average 50 cents per year, or less, for the average small home owner. A home worth $3000 in ordinary times, and assessed at $1000, will pay but 26 cents per year, average.

What Does Orange County Get For the Money?

A Federal harbor, with future Federal maintenance, with a safe, protected entrance; main channel 20 ft. deep at low tide, 3½ miles long; 35 acre yacht anchorage basin 15 feet deep, and the entire lower bay dredged to 10 foot depth, making 700 acres of navigable water.

How Will Such a Harbor Benefit County Taxpayers?

By creating employment, it will reduce the tax cost for welfare [illegible]d enable hundreds of workers to become self supporting again. It will create new taxable wealth from yachts a[illegible]ovements in the harbor area, and thus reduce the proportion of future taxes to be paid by inland taxpayers.

Can the Proposed Harbor District Vote Future Bonds?

No. The district will have no such power. See ruling of District Attorney on this point.

Will There Be Added Taxes for Harbor Maintenance?

No. The Harbor District does not confer any added harbor taxing power other than that which already exists. Future maintenance will be by Government, as in all other harbors where Federal recognition has been granted.

Can Our Bonds Be Used Without the Federal Aid?

No. Unless the Federal government's promised gift is made, our own bond issue is null and void, and will cost us nothing. See legal ruling by District Attorney's office; resolution calling the election; and statement by members of the Board of Supervisors.

Why Must We Vote "FOR THE HARBOR DISTRICT"?

Because, in order to act with speed enough to get a portion of the Public Works fund, and create these jobs in Orange county, it is necessary to proceed quickly under the harbor district act of 1927, which is being done.

Is the Entire County Included in the District?

A small portion had to be left out of the district, legally, so that the district boundaries would not coincide with the county boundaries at all points. A small area of mountainous lands, assessed at only $80,000 and mostly included in the Cleveland National Forest in the southeast portion of the county, was excluded from the district for this reason.

Why Should Voters Unanimously Support the Harbor?

1. Because it will create much needed new employment.
2. Because the Federal Government wants this added harbor.
3. Because it will bring new outside money to Orange county.
4. Because it will attract many desirable new residents.
5. Because it will re-establish county-wide property values.
6. Because our harbor, a valuable asset, should be USED!
7. Because the harbor will bring industries and payrolls.
8. Because we must support the National Recovery program.
9. Because our harbor is needed for the national defense.
10. Because new harbor values will help to make up the deficit caused by reduced oil and orange valuations.

Think what it will mean to YOUR job, YOUR property, YOUR business! Think harbor. Talk harbor. And vote for the Harbor Tuesday. It's your most important business until this issue is assured.

What will the Harbor Cost Orange County?

Only $640,000, at 4 per cent repayable over 30 years. The remainder, $1,195,441 will come as an outright gift from the National Public Works Fund, and does not have to be repaid.

What Is the Individual Cost to Taxpayers?

It will average 50 cents per year, or less, for the average small home owner. A home worth $3000 in ordinary times, and assessed at $1000, will pay but 26 cents per year, average.

What Does Orange County Get For the Money?

A Federal harbor, with future Federal maintenance, with a safe, protected entrance; main channel 20 ft. deep at low tide, 3½ miles long; 35 acre yacht anchorage basin 15 feet deep, and the entire lower bay dredged to 10 foot depth, making 700 acres of navigable water.

How Will Such a Harbor Benefit County Taxpayers?

By creating employment, it will reduce the tax cost for welfare [illegible]d enable hundreds of workers to become self supporting again. It will create new taxable wealth from yachts a[illegible]ovements in the harbor area, and thus reduce the proportion of future taxes to be paid by inland taxpayers.

Can the Proposed Harbor District Vote Future Bonds?

No. The district will have no such power. See ruling of District Attorney on this point.

Will There Be Added Taxes for Harbor Maintenance?

No. The Harbor District does not confer any added harbor taxing power other than that which already exists. Future maintenance will be by Government, as in all other harbors where Federal recognition has been granted.

Can Our Bonds Be Used Without the Federal Aid?

No. Unless the Federal government's promised gift is made, our own bond issue is null and void, and will cost us nothing. See legal ruling by District Attorney's office; resolution calling the election; and statement by members of the Board of Supervisors.

Why Must We Vote "FOR THE HARBOR DISTRICT"?

Because, in order to act with speed enough to get a portion of the Public Works fund, and create these jobs in Orange county, it is necessary to proceed quickly under the harbor district act of 1927, which is being done.

Is the Entire County Included in the District?

A small portion had to be left out of the district, legally, so that the district boundaries would not coincide with the county boundaries at all points. A small area of mountainous lands, assessed at only $80,000 and mostly included in the Cleveland National Forest in the southeast portion of the county, was excluded from the district for this reason.

Why Should Voters Unanimously Support the Harbor?

1. Because it will create much needed new employment.
2. Because the Federal Government wants this added harbor.
3. Because it will bring new outside money to Orange county.
4. Because it will attract many desirable new residents.
5. Because it will re-establish county-wide property values.
6. Because our harbor, a valuable asset, should be USED!
7. Because the harbor will bring industries and payrolls.
8. Because we must support the National Recovery program.
9. Because our harbor is needed for the national defense.
10. Because new harbor values will help to make up the deficit caused by reduced oil and orange valuations.

Think what it will mean to YOUR job, YOUR property, YOUR business! Think harbor. Talk harbor. And vote for the Harbor Tuesday. It's your most important business until this issue is assured.

RECORD

Poor Senator Black of Alabama is in the toughest spot in the show.

He has a swell act but somebody always manages to steal the spotlight.

For some weeks now Black has run what amounted to a one-man investigation into ocean mail subsidies and Shipping Board contracts and hasn't yet crashed the front pages of the newspapers—at least in the East.

In ordinary times this energetic and efficient cross-examiner would be packing them in. Unfortunately for his publicity the New Deal has held the center ring while the Banking Committee's expose of Wall Street drew all the crowds on Capitol Hill.

But Black is building up a case for the record that will be heard from later.

Imagine not seeing headlines when the names of our highest officials, past and present, are being bandied about in almost reckless fashion by witnesses daily!

FRIENDLY

Yet that's what's happening. In an almost deserted committee room with only four or five newspaper men in attendance, Black fishes up testimony of huge profits made by the shipping interests at government expense.

A ship owner admits he was afraid he was not going to get the contract he had his eye on. Through a friend former Senator Watson was persuaded to see former President Hoover about it. Ex-Secretary of Commerce Chapin and ex-Assistant Secretary of the Navy Jahncke were prevailed on to call on ex-Postmaster General Brown.

Operators hurl sharp charges at each other. Those who lost out leave a broad trail of inference through the record that several men still in federal service were entirely too friendly and charitable in their dealings with certain ship companies.

Black has been relegated to the deuce spot in the pre-Congressional vaudeville. There are able men who are highly appreciative of this luck.

The first-string Senate reporters have been "covering" the Wall Street disclosures. Ship subsidies and contracts have been left to their assistants.

This blistering story is getting the treatment you might expect.

UNREFINED

The sugar interests are all fed up on trying to get together with AAA. They are threatening quietly to withdraw from further marketing negotiations and dump the whole scrap in Congress' lap.

One thing that has literally burned them up is the open charges by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Rex Tugwell and economic adviser Mordecai Ezekial that the refiners still constitute a trust ready to gouge the public. The two Brain Trusters have further alleged the refiners are using obsolete processes.

Inasmuch as the beet sugar growers are sore at Secretary Wallace for asserted reasons it may be Congress will be found fixing quotas for Cuba and the Philippines and otherwise regulating the industry.

Refiners are stomping around in their hotel rooms declaring the AAA had a six-month opportunity to settle the problem without injection of politics—and muffed it.

Now they're getting set to let their respective Congressmen fight it out for them.

As for the statement their processes are out of date as compared to Cuban refineries, the sugar men say it wouldn't make a difference of a cent a hundred pounds. Further they point out that the Cuban refineries run all year 'round whereas those domesticated operate about 45 per cent of the time.

But the "trust" and "gouging" are what really get under their skins. The refineries are about to invest in a nation-wide publicity campaign to prove to the people they're just hard-put business men trying to get along on a beggarly 4 to 6 per cent out of their investment.

A New York public relations counsel of high skill is going to give the public a liberal education.

He intends to review the old days of 15 and 20 years ago when there was a sugar trust and no doubt about it and then work up through the process of purging and dry-cleaning the industry.

LOYALTIES

From now on Assistant Secretary Steve Gibbons is going to handle all patronage matters in the Treasury Department.

No sign has been hung on his door saying "apply here for jobs" but those that are wangled in the future must be stamped with his okay. This is just another of the moves to make the Treasury set-up as nearly 100 per cent loyal to the President and Acting Secretary Morgenthau as possible.

All the blood-letting isn't over by a long shot. But coming changes in personnel are expected to be made so quietly as to be almost painless.

The Morgenthau clan is satisfied it now has proper men in the key positions.

It will be Gibbons' job to sort over the whole roll of Treasury employees.

Scouts have reported there are a lot of good jobs paying $4000 to $6000 that are being held by Republicans or by men not in accord with the administration's program.

As these leftovers turn up the axe will fall and deserving Democrats will step in.

NOTES

Acting Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau just laughs when anybody questions his appointment of Earle Bailie as Acting Under-Secretary because of Bailie's former Seligman connections. . . . "Sure," says Morgenthau, "I wanted one Wall Street man in my organization to tell me what they were trying to put over on me". . . . Because he has been sending out such voluminous inquiries for information about the weaknesses of our transportation system, Railroad Administrator Eastman anticipates a new nickname. . . . "I expect they'll start calling me 'Questionnaire Joe,'" he says. . . . Washington students of international affairs would correct the idea the League of Nations is on its last legs. . . . They assure one the League isn't in the slightest danger of passing out despite recent major withdrawals.

NEW YORK

FEUD

The growing feud between the New York banks and the Stock Exchange will burst into flame when the Senate Committee begins taking the Exchange apart to see what makes it tick.

Both the banks and the Exchange face stiffer Federal regulation. Each is anxious to get off lightly as possible, which means blaming the other fellow for speculative excesses. When the Exchange gets its innnings it will try to pin the works on the big-bad banks and the banks will retort in kind.

Local bankers believe Senator Glass will help their cause along because of paternal resentment against charges that the Federal Reserve system is responsible. His interest in the investigation is expected to register a sharp jump when he gets a chance to belabor the Stock Exchange crowd. He is credited with knowing more about the subject than any other member of the committee and local bankers hope he does a thorough job.

The Stock Exchange will insist that it can only control technique and that technique is not at fault. One banker says you will hear so much about the "mechanics" of the Exchange you will think you're in a machine shop.

The Curb Exchange is pleased to know it will get off lighter than its big brother in the matter of pools and margins—two of the liveliest bones of contention. But much of the November flight of capital was arranged by transfer of stocks between Curb houses and London and the Curb will hear plenty about that.

Wall Street credits Washington with deep stuff on the proposed change in the capital gains and losses provision of the income tax.

The proposal provides that the tax shall apply at its full rate on transactions less than a year old tapering down to 20 per cent if the transactions are five years old. See what happens. Financial big shots who have been saving stocks they bought in 1929 to sell for tax losses would only be able to claim one-fifth as much loss as they thought they could. This angle hasn't been played up but it's mighty important hereabouts.

Dozens of Wall Street strong boxes are loaded to the lids with '29 boom babies currently selling around a nickel to the dollar. Their owners had counted on them to offset future profits at Uncle Sam's expense. If the new proposal goes through all bets will be off—and are the boys distressed at the prospect!

Another effect would be to penalize in-and-out speculation by taxing short term profits at a higher rate than long term. Some experts think that would do more to curb the speculative mania as recovery progresses than any other measure that has been proposed.

Sniping at members of the President's entourage will get hotter from now on. The New York opposition will urge a Congressional investigation of the extra income activities of Cabinet members, secretaries and what not. The volume of such activities is locally reported as much greater than in any preceding administration.

SHIFTS

The actions of European big business as reported to their New York contacts show skepticism about disarmament talks. Siemens—the great German electrical concern—has quietly disposed of its Polish subsidiaries. What you don't own can't be confiscated in case of war.

Radio Corporation of America, which at one time employed over 3000 people in Germany, has transferred those particular departments to England. This may be coincidence.

TELL YOUR NEIGHBORS HOW HARBOR WILL HELP COUNTY

Every fact about the Harbor District project justifies its approval, in an overwhelming manner, by the voters of Orange County on Tuesday.

As election day approaches, it becomes of vital importance that those who have studied the plan and know the benefits it will bring, should talk to their neighbors and friends and associates about it, to be sure that they, also, understand.

Use every opportunity to express to others your approval of the harbor program, and then tell them why.

It will bring new wealth into the county and build up the coastline, which is our one remaining undeveloped asset. As the coast district grows, it will pay a greater proportion of county taxes, and reduce the proportion to be borne in the future by homes, ranches, and business properties in the inland districts.

It will create employment—a part of the national job-making program being carried on under the Public Works Fund—and will open up hundreds of permanent related jobs for the future. Unless we act NOW, the Government's gift of $1,195,441 and the jobs it will create, will go to some other community.

And when the development work is done, we will have a substantial, tangible, profit-making harbor to show for the expenditure, a thing bringing future progress and prosperity to the entire county. It's much wiser and better than spending tax money for welfare work which leaves no permanent value to the community when completed.

Tell them this is not "just another bond issue," for it is much more than that. Our very loyalty to the American government is at stake.

We MUST approve this project, not only to demonstrate our own intelligence and good business judgment, but also to show our loyalty to our country during this emergency period.

The Federal Government wants the harbor for use of the Navy and for national defense.

The Federal Government wants to create jobs in Orange County and will pay nearly two-thirds of the cost if we will cooperate.

The Federal Government will send the Army Engineers here to supervise and direct the expenditure of all money, and will finance our $640,000 worth of bonds at 4 per cent.

As good Americans, we must help Uncle Sam build our harbor NOW, when Federal recognition has been granted, when Federal funds are available to help pay the cost, and when our own citizens need the jobs and our own business men need the trade stimulation which the harbor project will inspire.

Tell your neighbors the harbor entrance will be made SAFE, so that boat tragedies there will not be repeated in the future.

Tell them Newport Bay will become the foremost yachting harbor on the Pacific coast, surrounded by fine homes—a recreational spot deluxe which will attract tourists and settlers from all over the world.

Tell them we will be preparing the way for commerce and industry, by opening our harbor to the fleets of the world.

Then wipe away their final objections by telling them these authentic and sustained facts:

The Harbor District will have no power to issue additional bonds.

The Harbor District bonds cannot be used except in conjunction with the Federal appropriations which have been promised.

The Harbor District will not confer any additional taxing power than that which already exists.

Future harbor maintenance will be by the Federal Government, as in all other harbors.

If any further information is desired, please phone, write, or call. Please volunteer if you will furnish car and driver to help get out the vote on election day.

It will bring new wealth into the county and build up the coastline, which is our one remaining undeveloped asset. As the coast district grows, it will pay a greater proportion of county taxes, and reduce the proportion to be borne in the future by homes, ranches, and business properties in the inland districts.

It will create employment—a part of the national job-making program being carried on under the Public Works Fund—and will open up hundreds of permanent related jobs for the future. Unless we act NOW, the Government's gift of $1,195,441 and the jobs it will create, will go to some other community.

And when the development work is done, we will have a substantial, tangible, profit-making harbor to show for the expenditure, a thing bringing future progress and prosperity to the entire county. It's much wiser and better than spending tax money for welfare work which leaves no permanent value to the community when completed.

Tell them this is not "just another bond issue," for it is much more than that. Our very loyalty to the American government is at stake.

We MUST approve this project, not only to demonstrate our own intelligence and good business judgment, but also to show our loyalty to our country during this emergency period.

The Federal Government wants the harbor for use of the Navy and for national defense.

The Federal Government wants to create jobs in Orange County and will pay nearly two-thirds of the cost if we will cooperate.

The Federal Government will send the Army Engineers here to supervise and direct the expenditure of all money, and will finance our $640,000 worth of bonds at 4 per cent.

As good Americans, we must help Uncle Sam build our harbor NOW, when Federal recognition has been granted, when Federal funds are available to help pay the cost, and when our own citizens need the jobs and our own business men need the trade stimulation which the harbor project will inspire.

Tell your neighbors the harbor entrance will be made SAFE, so that boat tragedies there will not be repeated in the future.

Tell them Newport Bay will become the foremost yachting harbor on the Pacific coast, surrounded by fine homes—a recreational spot deluxe which will attract tourists and settlers from all over the world.

Tell them we will be preparing the way for commerce and industry, by opening our harbor to the fleets of the world.

Then wipe away their final objections by telling them these authentic and sustained facts:

The Harbor District will have no power to issue additional bonds.

The Harbor District bonds cannot be used except in conjunction with the Federal appropriations which have been promised.

The Harbor District will not confer any additional taxing power than that which already exists.

Future harbor maintenance will be by the Federal Government, as in all other harbors.

If any further information is desired, please phone, write, or call. Please volunteer if you will furnish car and driver to help get out the vote on election day.

NEW BOOKS IN PUBLIC LIBRARY

BY VERNA RAMSEY

All who are interested in Russia read the works of Maurice Hindus. In "The Great Offensive," written during and immediately following his latest visit to Russia, he brings up to date his epochal narratives of Russia's great socialistic experiment which thousands of readers have followed in "Humanity Uprooted" and "Red Bread." Its publication shortly after the official completion of the first five-year plan and the beginning of the second, which have almost achieved the miracle of making Russia industrially independent of the rest of the world, comes at a time when every informed person's curiosity is aroused by disturbing reports from various sections of the Soviet front.

"The Great Offensive" is a dramatic and concrete account of what Russia means today—to the city dweller, the proletariat of the machine, the peasant on the community farm. It describes the gains that have been made in achieving economic self-sufficiency, and in altering almost beyond recognition or comparison with the old Russia, religion, the family, education, art and the growth toward a new mass culture. A chapter is devoted to the psychology of that strange and formidable creation of the Soviets, a new human being to whom all the old familiar words are losing their significance and whose body and mind have but one purpose, to serve the aim and the will of the new society.

Ann Axtell Morris is an enthusiastic archaeologist. Her professional interest is a development of a curiosity which we all share, that of a wonder as to what happened before the history books began their story. Her new book, "Digging in the Southwest," is a delightfully informal, yet definitely informational story of the achievements of the New World archaeologists in their efforts to turn pre-history into history.

Ann Morris defines archaeology as "a rescue expedition sent into the far places of the earth to recover the scattered pages of man's autobiography. Buildings of carved stone, rudely dug caves, carefully woven blankets, moulded bits of pottery, all have their tale to tell, when the scattered paragraphs are arranged in order." This stupendous arrangement may prove as absorbing a pastime as any detective ever put his wits to. It is like the solving of some enormous cryptogram, this arranging of the sequence of culture in America's past. The Basket Weavers; the Pottery People; the rovers of the plains; the cliff dwellers; the earliest members of the Navajo and Sioux Indian tribes and their impenetrable present-day descendants; the Missing Links have been forged into place by the most unexpected turns of fate or a spadeful of dirt.

The business of archaeology is an exciting one, even dangerous at times, but paralleling this sterner stuff runs a trail of quaint or humorous experience which Ann Morris never fails to find.

Haven't you often wondered about the knowledge your doctor has? What are the centuries of research and discovery and trial and error that are behind him? Logan Clendening in "Behind the Doctor" gives us the answer.

This is a brilliant narrative describing the progress of medicine from earliest times to the present. It tells of all those men and women, from primitive herbgatherers to skilled modern scientists, whose shadows stand behind the doctor whenever he treats you. Folk knowledge, for example, taught him the use of digitalis and quinine; tireless medical research or brilliant inference gave him the stethoscope, the hypodermic syringe, the pulse-watch, the anaesthesia apparatus, the X-ray machine; Pare showed him how to control compound fractures. to control compound fractures. Bright how to detect Bright's disease.

As he builds up the epic of man's fight against disease, Dr. Clendening takes you on a journey through all the ages and countries, among people with vivid personalities and queer notions and burning ideas. It is a fascinating story, told in language the layman can always understand, by an expert who is also a master of narrative.

Why Vote For a New City Hall?

Does Santa Ana Need This Structure?

Is It Good Business Policy to Build Now?

Will It Help the Unemployment Situation and Aid General Business?

How Much Will It Cost the Taxpayer?

Every citizen and voter of Santa Ana is vitally interested in the erection of the proposed New City Hall. If this new structure is good for the city . . . if the cost of its erection is a good business proposition any way you may look at it . . . then you want it and every forward looking citizen wants it and will vote YES for City Hall Bonds on December 19th.

The City of Santa Ana now owns the site at Third and Main street upon which the proposed new hall is to be erected. The City is now paying rent each month to house, in adequate quarters, the various departments such as: Police, Water Service, Licenses, etc. The erection of the New City Hall will eliminate at once this outlay of rental money; greatly enhance the value of the now vacant building site; and in addition give to the various City Departments larger, more adequate and efficient quarters to conduct city affairs.

This new building, when erected at Third and Main street, will place all the various departments in a most convenient location for everyone in the entire city. Public rest rooms would be provided and the hall's convenient location would make these rooms within one block of the business center of our city.

If these bonds are not approved on December 19th, the City Council has already definitely decided to move from present location and take up quarters at 10th and Main street in the old condemned school building, which is a most inconvenient location for approximately 75% of the residents of Santa Ana. Also, there will be a large expenditure to be made before the old school building could be put in condition for occupancy. And when located at that point the City will still be required to pay rent for this building.—Money that should be saved and used to build our new City Hall and give to Santa Ana an enduring modern structure that is in keeping with the progressive spirit that has made Santa Ana the enterprising city that it is today.

The small cost to taxpayers when considered over the life of the bonds (3½c per $100 assessed valuation) makes this new structure an improvement that is justified from a civic standpoint alone but its erection is justified by more than this: The cost of this building can stand the test of a good business proposition any way you consider it. It is a sound investment for the City and years to come will make more evident this statement.

HOW MUCH WILL THE PROPOSED NEW CITY HALL COST?

The proposed structure, which is the very latest in modern architectural design, will cost not to exceed $100,000. Of this amount $30,000 will come direct from the Federal Government—an outright gift to encourage Santa Ana to build now! The balance of $70,000 will be secured by the sale of Santa Ana city bonds to the United States Public Works Board. The Government has set aside Three Billion Three Hundred Million dollars to relieve unemployment through public works, which we must help to pay whether we use any of this money or not. Why not get a portion of this money . . . help relieve our local unemployment . . . by going forward and voting for these bonds on December 19th, so that work may start on this new building at once.

IF THE BONDS ARE APPROVED WHAT WILL IT COST IN TAXES?

On the present valuation, and with the cost spread over the entire city the cost will be exceedingly small. The cost over the life of the bonds will average only 3½c per $100 on assessed valuation. Therefore property assessed at $1000 would pay but 35c per year to give this convenience and much needed improvement to Santa Ana.

CAN THE BONDS BE SOLD? WHO WILL BUY THEM?

The United States Public Works Board will take the city bonds at par, and advance the money immediately, so there will be no delay in starting to build—putting unemployed men to work and benefiting the local economic conditions at once. The bonds will bear interest at only 4% per annum.

WHY BUILD NOW?

When Santa Ana votes for these bonds on December 19th they will be cooperating with the Administration in the Roosevelt recovery movement. They will also be securing aid of the United States government which could not be secured except on account of present conditions and desire on the part of our President to encourage public building as a method of relieving unemployment and aiding business. Also with present low cost of construction the city would be securing a fine building that would be impossible to build at any other time for the proposed amount.

ENDORSEMENTS:

Shrewd men and far-sighted women who can see the wisdom in building now are wholeheartedly for these bonds. They can see that a structure of this type adds value—not to a small district—but to the property of the entire city. Already over 2800 voters of Santa Ana have signed petitions requesting the City Council to build our new City Hall at Third and Main Streets. Every day sentiment becomes more and more pronounced that the opportunity for Santa Ana to get this new building with the aid of our United States government should not be passed. It's an opportunity that Santa Ana should not turn down! Vote December 19th for City bonds! Help yourself as well as the nation so that Santa Ana can truthfully say, "WE DO OUR PART."

ARSON

The Reichstag arson trial is causing Doctor Goebbels sleepless nights. Its propaganda value has long since reached zero and is dangerously near becoming a minus quantity.

Torgler's straightforwardness has won him more sympathy—even in Nazi circles—than the German authorities like. As a direct result of this public attitude German newspapers have been ordered to discontinue lengthy reports of the trial and foreign newspaper correspondents received similar hints. Why Vote For a New City Hall?

Does Santa Ana Need This Structure?

Will It Help the Unemployment Situation and Aid General Business?

How Much Will It Cost the Taxpayer?

Every citizen and voter of Santa Ana is vitally interested in the erection of the proposed New City Hall. If this new structure is good for the city . . . if the cost of its erection is a good business proposition any way you may look at it . . . then you want it and every forward looking citizen wants it and will vote YES for City Hall Bonds on December 19th.

The City of Santa Ana now owns the site at Third and Main street upon which the proposed new hall is to be erected. The City is now paying rent each month to house, in adequate quarters, the various departments such as: Police, Water Service, Licenses, etc. The erection of the New City Hall will eliminate at once this outlay of rental money; greatly enhance the value of the now vacant building site; and in addition give to the various City Departments larger, more adequate and efficient quarters to conduct city affairs.

This new building, when erected at Third and Main street, will place all the various departments in a most convenient location for everyone in the entire city. Public rest rooms would be provided and the hall's convenient location would make these rooms within one block of the business center of our city.

If these bonds are not approved on December 19th, the City Council has already definitely decided to move from present location and take up quarters at 10th and Main street in the old condemned school building, which is a most inconvenient location for approximately 75% of the residents of Santa Ana. Also, there will be a large expenditure to be made before the old school building could be put in condition for occupancy. And when located at that point the City will still be required to pay rent for this building.—Money that should be saved and used to build our new City Hall and give to Santa Ana an enduring modern structure that is in keeping with the progressive spirit that has made Santa Ana the enterprising city that it is today.

The small cost to taxpayers when considered over the life of the bonds (3½c per $100 assessed valuation) makes this new structure an improvement that is justified from a civic standpoint alone but its erection is justified by more than this: The cost of this building can stand the test of a good business proposition any way you consider it. It is a sound investment for the City and years to come will make more evident this statement.

HOW MUCH WILL THE PROPOSED NEW CITY HALL COST?

The proposed structure, which is the very latest in modern architectural design, will cost not to exceed $100,000. Of this amount $30,000 will come direct from the Federal Government—an outright gift to encourage Santa Ana to build now! The balance of $70,000 will be secured by the sale of Santa Ana city bonds to the United States Public Works Board. The Government has set aside Three Billion Three Hundred Million dollars to relieve unemployment through public works, which we must help to pay whether we use any of this money or not. Why not get a portion of this money . . . help relieve our local unemployment . . . by going forward and voting for these bonds on December 19th, so that work may start on this new building at once.

IF THE BONDS ARE APPROVED WHAT WILL IT COST IN TAXES?

On the present valuation, and with the cost spread over the entire city the cost will be exceedingly small. The cost over the life of the bonds will average only 3½c per $100 on assessed valuation. Therefore property assessed at $1000 would pay but 35c per year to give this convenience and much needed improvement to Santa Ana.

CAN THE BONDS BE SOLD? WHO WILL BUY THEM?

The United States Public Works Board will take the city bonds at par, and advance the money immediately, so there will be no delay in starting to build—putting unemployed men to work and benefiting the local economic conditions at once. The bonds will bear interest at only 4% per annum.

WHY BUILD NOW?

When Santa Ana votes for these bonds on December 19th they will be cooperating with the Administration in the Roosevelt recovery movement. They will also be securing aid of the United States government which could not be secured except on account of present conditions and desire on the part of our President to encourage public building as a method of relieving unemployment and aiding business. Also with present low cost of construction the city would be securing a fine building that would be impossible to build at any other time for the proposed amount.

ENDORSEMENTS:

Shrewd men and far-sighted women who can see the wisdom in building now are wholeheartedly for these bonds. They can see that a structure of this type adds value—not to a small district—but to the property of the entire city. Already over 2800 voters of Santa Ana have signed petitions requesting the City Council to build our new City Hall at Third and Main Streets. Every day sentiment becomes more and more pronounced that the opportunity for Santa Ana to get this new building with the aid of our United States government should not be passed. It's an opportunity that Santa Ana should not turn down! Vote December 19th for City bonds! Help yourself as well as the nation so that Santa Ana can truthfully say, "WE DO OUR PART."

DONS USHER IN BASKET SEASON WITH VICTORY

Ushering in a new basketball season, Santa Ana junior college edged out the Orange Concordia club reserves, 28-26, in a non-conference game at Andrews gymnasium here last night.

Coach Bill Cook's Dons, strengthened by the appearance of several football candidates, handled themselves exceedingly well against Coach Vic Baden's clubmen, whose lineup contained Schroeder, the club's star guard, and four experienced reserves, Struck and Walker at forward, Bosch at center and Bandick at guard.

Three points behind at the end of the first and second quarters, Santa Ana finished the third period with a 24-20 lead, then scored four points while the Orangemen gained six in the final quarter.

Ed Bragg, sophomore forward; Bob Schwarm, center, and Clair Preininger, forward, were the bright bulbs of the Don attack, Schwarm making 8 points to finish second behind Schroeder of Orange for high scoring honors. Schroeder accounted for 12.

In court togs for the first time, Walt Gunther, Frank Kroener, Horace Ritner and Ben Slavin of Santa Ana's championship football team performed surprisingly well. All are potential regulars, Gunther at forward, Kroener and Ritner at center and Slavin at guard.

Nelson Struck, small but fast forward, shared offensive honors with Guard Schroeder of the Conkordians. Struck earned 7 points in addition to constantly feeding the ball to his teammates.

Coach Reese Greene of the Santa Ana Saints and Assistant Ed Adams of the Dons officiated during the practice fray.

Nineteen Dons passed in review as Cook, their new coach, sized up his '33 material. Santa Ana, highly respected in court circles last winter, does not loom as an outstanding threat, but the Dons should win more games than they lose. Every position is wide open at present.

The lineups:

COLUMBIANS IN DRILL AGAINST INDIANS' PLAYS

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(UP)—Columbia university's varsity football team, training for its Rose Bowl clash with Stanford, was to receive its first test today against Stanford plays as run off by a heterogenerous group of grads, coaches, third-stringers and freshman.

The "Stanford" team sharpened its attack yesterday by playing against Columbia's second team in the 105th Field Artillery armory. The second-stringers found difficulty in breaking up Stanford's passing attack. While the scrimmage was going on at one end of the big armory, the varsity ran through its repertory of plays at the other end.

The Columbia squad will leave New York at 3:40 p. m. next Tuesday and return Jan. 8. The squad will occupy six special cars, three sleepers, a diner, a baggage car and a club car.

It is scheduled to arrive in St. Louis at 1:20 p. m Dec. 20, leaving for Dallas, Tex., at 6:30 p. m., after a workout at St. Louis. It will remain in Dallas from 12:15 to 7:30 p. m., Dec. 21. The Lions will arrive at El Paso, Tex., at 11:30 p. m., Dec. 22, and leave for Tucson, Ariz., at 11:58 p. m.

The Columbians will arrive in Tucson at 8:15 a. m., Dec. 3 and Tucson at 8:15 a. m., Dec. 23 and 30, when they will depart for Pasadena. They are to have a final workout at the Rose Bowl They expect to remain in California a couple of days after the game and return to New York by way of Denver and Chicago.

HOCKEY ACE'S SKULL FRACTURED IN FIGHT

BOSTON, Dec. 14.—(UP)—Irvin ("Ace") Bailey, Toronto Leafs hockey star, was in a critical condition from a fractured skull and probable cerebral hemorrhage, continued to hold his own today, while physicians deliberated the advisability of an operation.

Bailey was injured when thrown to the ice during a game between the Leafs and Boston Bruins Tuesday night, by Eddie Shore, Bruin defenseman. Shore, immediately after the incident, was knocked out by "Red" Horner, a teammate of Bailey.

X-rays revealed that Bailey received a skull fracture five inches long, beginning in the forehead, and extending along the side of his head beyond his ear.

Shore and Horner were suspended indefinitely last night by Frank Patrick, managing director of the National Hockey league.

BREA, ANAHEIM GRIDMEN RULE ALL-LOOP TEAM

Five coaches and three sport scribes co-operated in choosing this year's All-Orange league football eleven, and the eight failed to select a single unanimous player, although six players received votes for either the all-star eleven or the second string.

Ray Brown, Anaheim tackle, led the selection with seven first team votes and one for the second string. Captain Ed Zerbe of the Brea-Olinda champions was next with six firsts and two seconds. Benny Davis of Anaheim, received seven first and one second team votes but they were scattered between the quarterback, half and fullback positions.

Grant, running mate for Captain Zerbe of Brea-Olinda, with five first team votes won the berth opposite his captain on the wings. Richards of Brea-Olinda barely nosed out Wilson Seacord of Tustin for a tackle berth opposite Brown.

Vic DeBrouwer of Tustin and Bob Eley of Anaheim led the guards, each with six first team votes. Eley also got one second and a vote for center which he never played.

Late ballots gave Charles Dever of Orange the pivot position in a close race with Jack Key of Anaheim. The Colonist center polled one first and seven second team votes against five firsts and no seconds for Dever. Kermit Cannon of Brea-Olinda polled a pair of first team ballots.

Dick Johnston, dynamic little forward passer and "spark" of the sensational Newport Harbor Sailors, won the signal-calling berth over Oliver McCarter of Orange by a substantial margin, the Panther making the second squad.

Voting for the halves was scattered with some of the boys getting votes for the three backfield positions. By tabulating all votes, the two halfback berths go to Ray Thompson of Brea-Olinda and Dean Francis of Tustin, with Benny Davis of Anahcim winning the fullback spot.

Arkie Slayton of Brea-Olinda, and Bert Kidd of Anahcim, win the second team halfback berths. Slayton lost out on the first team to his own teammate by a single vote. Glenn Miller, plugging Anaheim fullback, completed the second team backfield.

Groeschner of Newport Harbor, a great pass-receiver but not as strong offensively as some of the other ends, and Vern Hylton of Anaheim, a powerful, if small, defensive player, captured the second team and berths.

The consensus team, compiled by Jimmie Heffron of Anaheim, is hardly as strong as some of the teams in past years but it is a truly creditable eleven which would not disgrace the league competition.

A game between the first and second teams, if played at the Santa Ana Bowl for some worthy charity, would draw a big crowd and would produce some fine football The coaches who aided in the selections could be pressed into service with the team on which they placed the most men.

Brea-Olinda, as befits a champion, placed four men on the first string and one on the second. Anaheim won three first team places, Tustin two, Orange and Newport Harbor each one. Anaheim put five men on the second squad, Newport Harbor and Orange two each, Brea-Olinda and Tustin one each.

Balloting indicated that Brown and Davis, both of Anaheim, were the year's outstanding players. Zerbe, Grant and Thompson of Brea-Olinda, Eley of Anaheim, Johnston of Newport Harbor and DeBrouwer, Tustin, were next in popularity.

Players who received honorable mention:

Ends, Stricklin, Huntington Beach; Perrin, Tustin; Spangler, Tustin; Dolan, Anaheim; Poage, Orange.

HUSKIES FEAR 13TH DATE

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 14.—(UP)—Coach Al Ulbrickson, of the University of Washington crew squad wants the date of the annual Washington-California regatta changed from Friday, April 13, to Saturday, April 14. While not admitting superstition had anything to do with his attitude, Ulbrickson insisted that "Saturday was the only feasible day so that fans can witness the races."

N. Y. Yankees Retain Ruth Next Season

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(UP)—Babe Ruth will play with the New York Yankees again next season but his salary will be slashed considerably from the $52,000 he received in 1933, Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, intimated today.

Asked directly if Ruth would be with the Yankees next year, Ruppert said:

"Ruth will be with us again next season. He says he still has another year or two of good baseball in him and he may surprise a lot of people who think he's through."

MACK'S DEALS REMOVE 'KICK' FROM MEETING

By DAVIS J. WALSH

CHICAGO, Dec. 14. — Having punched itself out in the first round Tuesday when the venerable Mr. Mack ups to everybody with a $275,000 haymaker that wafted Grove, Walberg and Bishop to the Red Sox; Cochrane to Detroit and Earnshaw to the White Sox, the annual major league convention came out of its corner, leg weary and tongue tied today. So it did the natural thing, it went into a clinch.

Another name for the latter is the joint meeting of the two leagues. Here they will consider the uniform ball, radio broadcasting and other unimportant matters, gravely, ponderously and possibly to no purpose.

Of course, there remained a few incompleted details, some of which in fact, probably never was started. Full many a trade has started in the newspapers—and finished there.

This is not necessarily true of the surmised Earl Averill-Oscar Melillo deal. That is, it may not have started in the newspapers, but it probably will finish there. The Indians, having moved back to their old park for next season, naturally figure Averill to start hitting them all the way off the landscape again.

Cleveland, at that, may make a trade of Willis Hudlin, pitcher, for Jack Hayes, second baseman of the White Sox. But this, on the possibility that the reported New York-Chicago transaction, involving Shortstop Luke Appling versus Lyn Lary, Charley Ruffing and Sam Byrd, is consummated.

Meantime Branch Rickey of St. Louis and Max Carey of Brooklyn, have been mumbling vaguely to each other about something for upward of three days, the general theory being that it has to do with Joe Stripp and Ernie Orsatti. But as far as Brooklyn goes, it can finish all it has to say about Stripp in three minutes. The Messrs. Stripp and Carey are understood, in fact, to be deeply estranged: so much so that the manager will have to dismiss either Joseph or himself and he may not feel that he ought to do that.

In the same way, the Cubs seem to have reached the inevitable impasse with a bellicose party known as Percy ("Pat") Malone. They said that the Braves wanted him. But it turned out that what the Braves wanted was the man the Cubs impulsively decided to take away from them, "Pinkey" Whitney. The Phillies also were mentioned, which established a precedent. The Phillies have been so inconspicuous here that their manager, Burt Shotton, stayed away and it took three days to miss him.

Anyhow, it is established that the Cubs no longer desire Malone and this seems to make it unanimous. Perhaps it would be simpler to have him destroyed.

HOLLYWOOD GETS JOLLEY, LEVEY, HEBERT

CHICAGO, Dec. 14. — (UP)—Adoption of a uniform baseball was one of the most important matters under consideration today as major league magnates closed their winter meetings with a joint session.

A compromise was expected between the American league ball, usually referred to as the "lively ball," and the National league sphere, commonly called the "dead ball."

Players exchanged in the second day's transactions follow:

Boston Red Sox: Outfielder Carl Reynolds for Pitcher Ivy Andrews and Outfielder Smead Jolley.

St. Louis Browns: Retained Andrews and sent Jolley, shortstop Jim Levey and Pitcher Wallace Hebert to the Hollywood Pacific Coast league for Shortstop Allan Strange. Also bought Outfielder George Puccinelli from the Rochester International league club.

Detroit Tigers: Traded Outfielder Jonathan Stone for Outfielder "Goose" Goslin of Washington.

SAINTS OPPOSE ORANGE; 24 VIE IN 3 DIVISIONS

Huntington Beach's fifth annual invitational basketball tournament opened today, with 24 prep schools, including Santa Ana, anxious to survive an elimination series leading to the finals in the Oiler gymnasium Saturday night.

Competition has been divided into three classes, A, B, and C, on the basis of enrollment, with eight schools entered in each division. Garden Grove and Newport Harbor, Class C entrants, were paired in the first game this afternoon at 3. Corona and Long Beach Poly's sophomores were to clash in a Class B game at 4, Whittier and Redlands in Class A at 5, and Bonita and Brea-Olinda of Class B at 6 o'clock.

Two games will be played tonight, Huntington Beach and Downey of Class B taking the floor at 7 o'clock, followed by a Class A match between Pasadena and Anaheim at 8.

Coach Reese Greene's Santa Ana Saints, who hold a 39-25 practice victory over Tustin, swing into action tomorrow afternoon against the Orange Panthers at 3 o'clock.

Greene said he would start the same lineup that downed Coach Bill Cole's Farmers. Walt Hendrie, will team with LeRoy Levens at forward. Fred Weimer will start at center, Tom Lacy and Myron Newton at guard. Lacy starred for the Saint middleweights last winter. Newton, star end on the football team, is playing his first year of basketball for the Saints. Levens is a former Class B player. Weimer was perhaps the outstanding center in the Coast league last season.

Santa Ana substitutes most likely to see action are Fred Erdhaus, Erwin Youel, Harris Warren, Leonard Lockhart, Fred Southworth, Roger McCune and Madden Detriech.

If victorious over Orange, the Saints will oppose the winner of the Chaffey-Fullerton game at 3:30 p. m. Saturday.

Other games scheduled tomorrow include, in Class B, Chino vs. Excelsior at 5 o'clock; in Class C, Placentia vs. North Long Beach at 4 p. m., Tustin vs. Claremont at 6 p. m., and San Juan Capistrano vs. Hemet at 7 p. m.

ACCUSE A. A. STAGG OF 'HIGH-HATTING'

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14. — (UP)—Old athletic wounds were healed and new ones possibly opened during the two-day meeting of the Far Western conference here.

Perusal of the football schedules adopted at the meeting indicated today that both Fresno State and San Jose State appeared on the 1934 program of University of Nevada, conference champion this season. The two California teams were not on the Nevadans' 1933 schedule because of a dispute over "unsportsmanlike conduct" which had carried over from the previous season.

The same schedule listings showed that the "Big Game" between the California Aggies and A. A. Stagg's College of Pacific with U. S. C., California and probably St. Mary's prevented a contest with the Aggies. Representatives of the Aggies denied that animosity existed but in some circles were heard reports that Stagg, former Chicago coach, had been acused of "high-hatting" the conference.

The rule that would have barred freshmen from varsity teams next season was rescinded in the face of protests from Chico, the Aggies and Stagg's team. The three schools were given permission to use first-year men until the 1936 season.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 14.—(INS)—A successor to Elmer Layden, who recently yielded his dual coaching-athletic direction post at Duquesne university for a like office at Notre Dame, may be named tonight at the annual alumni banquet.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

The Chicago White Sox did better by 100,000 witnesses in 1933 than in '32. . . . If Bob Quinn hadn't taken the post as Brooklyn's general manager, he might have been president of the American association. . . . Fred Lieb, New York baseball writer, is the new publicity director of the National league . . . and if Fred is ambitious to do a good job he can do no better than to pattern his efforts after the efficient Henry P. Edwards, the American league's publicist. . . . Burleigh Grimes is training this winter in the hope of coming back as a big league pitcher. . . . Marty McManus, who was shunted out of the Red Sox job, may line up with Bill McKechnie of the Braves.

OFF-SEASON BASEBALL

Ninety-eight players were involved in deals made by the baseball magnates at Galveston....Operatives at Cedar Rapids, Ia., say that it's true about Earl Whiteh bagging a moose and a couple deer in Canada recently, indicating the old eye is still as good as it was when he shut out the Giants in the world series.

Advices at hand are to the effect the Cincinnati Reds will train in Tampa, though for what isn't revealed....."Chuck" Klein's batting average on the road last year was .280....and his salary with the Cubs is being put down as 20 grand

CLINICAL NOTES

Joe Kuhel, first baseman of the Nats, has had a couple of wisdom teeth pulled since striking out so h dsomely in the world series.... and this probably will help him to refrain from cutting at curve balls next year....Speaking of operations, Mel Harder recently had one on his nose....and Firpo Marberry suffered the loss of his appendix....Wally Berger of the Braves was on his way to the Yale-Harvard football musical comedy when stricken with a pain in the appendix....he handed his tickets to a friend, hopped into a cab and soon parted from both pain and some pesos.

MUTUEL SYSTEM

Burt Shotton, manager of the Phils, is resting out the winter at Winter Haven, Fla.....and after that deal whereby he lost Klein rest is what he needs....Jake Atz, veteran Texas league pilot, has offered organized baseball a parimutual plan, patterned somewhat after the system used at the floss tracks....indicating Jakie hasn't lost his sense of humor.

The big shots of the Cleveland Indians are said to be getting ready ready to dispose of Wesley Ferrell....and Wesley Ferrell is said to be not exactly sorrowful about it...."Red" Lucas, acquired from the Reds by the Pirates, just about gives that club the edge in the National league.

OLYMPIC CLUB MAY GIVE UP FOOTBALL

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—(UP)—The Olympic club is considering abandoning its practice of sponsoring football teams each season. The report followed announcement that the Clubmen would not meet California next season, thus interrupting the West coast's oldest football rivalry after 43 years of competition.

PALO ALTO, Dec. 14.—(UP)—Stanford athletic authorities today announced that a squad of 39 players would be taken to Pasadena Dec. 23 to meet Columbia in the Rose Bowl game New Year's Day. The Stanford array held its final homefield workout yesterday.

KIPKE 'INTERESTED' IN BID FROM YALE

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 14.—(INS)—Harry Kipke, head football coach at the University of Michigan, today claimed he had received no "official" offer from Yale but would consider one that carried a substantial increase over his present salary.

"I have received several offers from colleges in various parts of the country. However, Yale is not one of them," Kipke said today. "I have received several letters from influential Yale alumni and will discuss the situation with them when I go east late this week." Kipke will leave Thursday night for New York.

Kipke's salary at Michigan is understood to be $5600.

DONS USHER IN BASKET SEASON WITH VICTORY

Ushering in a new basketball season, Santa Ana junior college edged out the Orange Concordia club reserves, 28-26, in a non-conference game at Andrews gymnasium here last night.

Coach Bill Cook's Dons, strengthened by the appearance of several football candidates, handled themselves exceedingly well against Coach Vic Baden's clubmen, whose lineup contained Schroeder, the club's star guard, and four experienced reserves, Struck and Walker at forward, Bosch at center and Bandick at guard.

Three points behind at the end of the first and second quarters, Santa Ana finished the third period with a 24-20 lead, then scored four points while the Orangemen gained six in the final quarter.

Ed Bragg, sophomore forward; Bob Schwarm, center, and Clair Preininger, forward, were the bright bulbs of the Don attack, Schwarm making 8 points to finish second behind Schroeder of Orange for high scoring honors. Schroeder accounted for 12.

In court togs for the first time, Walt Gunther, Frank Kroener, Horace Ritner and Ben Slavin of Santa Ana's championship football team performed surprisingly well. All are potential regulars, Gunther at forward, Kroener and Ritner at center and Slavin at guard.

Nelson Struck, small but fast forward, shared offensive honors with Guard Schroeder of the Concordians. Struck earned 7 points in addition to constantly feeding the ball to his teammates.

Coach Reese Greene of the Santa Ana Saints and Assistant Ed Adams of the Dons officiated during the practice fray.

Nineteen Dons passed in review as Cook, their new coach, sized up his '33 material. Santa Ana, highly respected in court circles last winter, does not loom as an outstanding threat, but the Dons should win more games than they lose. Every position is wide open at present.

The lineups:

KLEIN'S CONTRACT CALLS FOR $24,500

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—"Chuck" Klein, the ex-Philadelphia slugger, today was definitely a member of the Chicago Cubs, ending a salary dispute that threatened for a time to make Klein a holdout.

It was learned from sources close to Cubs management that Klein's contract calls for $24,500 for the year's work.

S. C., New York U. Off Georgia Sked

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 14.—(UP)—University of Georgia's tentative schedule, revealed today, drops Southern California and New York university from its intersectional opponents in 1934. Only Yale is retained. The Bulldogs of the North and the Bulldogs of the South clash at New Haven, Nov. 10.

COLUMBIANS IN DRILL AGAINST INDIANS' PLAYS

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(UP)—Columbia university's varsity football team, training for its Rose Bowl clash with Stanford, was to receive its first test today against Stanford plays as run off by a heterogeneous group of grads, coaches, third-stringers and freshman.

The "Stanford" team sharpened its attack yesterday by playing against Columbia's second team in the 105th Field Artillery armory. The second-stringers found difficulty in breaking up Stanford's passing attack. While the scrimmage was going on at one end of the big armory, the varsity ran through its repertory of plays at the other end.

The Columbia squad will leave New York at 3:40 p. m. next Tuesday and return Jan. 8. The squad will occupy six special cars, three sleepers, a diner, a baggage car and a club car.

It is scheduled to arrive in St. Louis at 1:20 p. m Dec. 20, leaving for Dallas, Tex., at 6:30 p. m., after a workout at St. Louis. It will remain in Dallas from 12:15 to 7:30 p. m., Dec. 21. The Lions will arrive at El Paso, Tex., at 11:30 p. m., Dec. 22, and leave for Tucson, Ariz., at 11:58 p. m.

The Columbians will arrive in Tucson at 8:15 a. m., Dec. 3 and Tucson at 8:15 a. m., Dec. 23 and 30, when they will depart for Pasadena. They are to have a final workout at the Rose Bowl They expect to remain in California a couple of days after the game and return to New York by way of Denver and Chicago.

HOCKEY ACE'S SKULL FRACTURED IN FIGHT

BOSTON, Dec. 14.—(UP)—Irvin ("Ace") Bailey, Toronto Leafs hockey star, was in a critical condition from a fractured skull and probable cerebral hemorrhage, contined to hold his own today, while physicians deliberated the advisability of an operation.

Bailey was injured when thrown to the ice during a game between the Leafs and Boston Bruins Tuesday night, by Eddie Shore, Bruin defenseman. Shore, immediately after the incident, was knocked out by "Red" Horner, a teammate of Bailey.

X-rays revealed that Bailey received a skull fracture five inches long, beginning in the forehead, and extending along the side of his head beyond his ear.

Shore and Horner were suspended indefinitely last night by Frank Patrick, managing director of the National Hockey league.

Fred Morrison, defending open titlist, was paired with Harry Westbrook in the preliminary event. Leo Diegel and Johnny Dawson were also paired. Other pairings included Olin Dutra and Charles Guard, Dr. Cliff Baker and Ben Coltrin, Willie Hunter and R. H. Nix, Abe Espinosa and Hal Knight, Ky Laffoon and Jack Dunphy, Fay Coleman and Jim Kern, and Dallas Jeffers and Jim Ross.

The open championship will reach the final rounds Sunday.

BREA, ANAHEIM GRIDMEN RULE ALL-LOOP TEAM

Five coaches and three sport scribes co-operated in choosing this year's All-Orange league football eleven, and the eight failed to select a single unanimous player, although six players received votes for either the all-star eleven or the second string.

Ray Brown, Anaheim tackle, led the selection with seven first team votes and one for the second string. Captain Ed Zerbe of the Brea-Olinda champions was next with six firsts and two seconds. Benny Davis of Anaheim, received seven first and one second team votes but they were scattered between the quarterback, half and fullback positions.

Grant, running mate for Captain Zerbe of Brea-Olinda, with five first team votes won the berth opposite his captain on the wings. Richards of Brea-Olinda barely nosed out Wilson Seacord of Tustin for a tackle berth opposite Brown.

Vic DeBrouwer of Tustin and Bob Eley of Anaheim led the guards, each with six first team votes. Eley also got one second and a vote for center which he never played.

Late ballots gave Charles Dever of Orange the pivot position in a close race with Jack Key of Anaheim. The Colonist center polled one first and seven second team votes against five firsts and no seconds for Dever. Kermit Cannon of Brea-Olinda polled a pair of first team ballots.

Dick Johnston, dynamic little forward passer and "spark" of the sensational Newport Harbor Sailors, won the signal-calling berth over Oliver McCarter of Orange by a substantial margin, the Panther making the second squad.

Voting for the halves was scattered with some of the boys getting votes for the three backfield positions. By tabulating all votes, the two halfback berths go to Ray Thompson of Brea-Olinda and Dean Francis of Tustin, with Benny Davis of Anaheim winning the fullback spot.

Arkie Slayton of Brea-Olinda, and Bert Kidd of Anahcim, win the second team halfback berths. Slayton lost out on the first team to his own teammate by a single vote. Glenn Miller, plugging Anaheim fullback, completed the second team backfield.

Groeschner of Newport Harbor, a great pass-receiver but not as strong offensively as some of the other ends, and Vern Hylton of Anaheim, a powerful, if small, defensive player, captured the second team and berths.

The consensus team, compiled by Jimmie Heffron of Anaheim, is hardly as strong as some of the teams in past years but it is a truly creditable eleven which would not disgrace the league competition

A game between the first and second teams, if played at the Santa Ana Bowl for some worthy charity, would draw a big crowd and would produce some fine football The coaches who aided in the selections could be pressed into service with the team on which they placed the most men.

Brea-Olinda, as befits a champion, placed four men on the first string and one on the second. Anaheim won three first team places, Tustin two, Orange and Newport Harbor each one. Anaheim put five men on the second squad, Newport Harbor and Orange two each, Brea-Olinda and Tustin one each.

Balloting indicated that Brown and Davis, both of Anaheim, were the year's outstanding players. Zerbe, Grant and Thompson of Brea-Olinda, Eley of Anaheim, Johnston of Newport Harbor and DeBrouwer, Tustin, were next in popularity.

Players who received honorable mention:

Ends, Stricklin, Huntington Beach; Petrin, Tustin; Spangler, Tustin; Dolan, Anaheim; Poage, Orange.

Tackles—Irwin, Newport Harbor; Sweet, Brea-Olinda; Myers, Anaheim; Jaggers, Anaheim; Craft, Orange; Richards, Tustin; Lundblade, Orange.

Guards — Stewart, Brea-Olinda; Hickman, Garden Grove; Irwin, Newport Harbor.

Halves—Skidmore, Tustin; Fee, Anaheim; Forbes, Tustin; Logsdon, Brea-Olinda; King, Newport Harbor; E. Black, Orange; Blanchar, Orange.

HUSKIES FEAR 13TH DATE

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 14.—(UP)—Coach Al Ulbrickson, of the University of Washington crew squad wants the date of the annual Washington-California regatta changed from Friday, April 13, to Saturday, April 14. While not admitting superstition had anything to do with his attitude, Ulbrickson insisted that "Saturday was the only feasible day so that fans can witness the races."

N. Y. Yankees Retain Ruth Next Season

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(UP)—Babe Ruth will play with the New York Yankees again next season but his salary will be slashed considerably from the $52,000 he received in 1933, Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, intimated today.

Asked directly if Ruth would be with the Yankees next year, Ruppert said:

"Ruth will be with us again next season. He says he still has another year or two of good baseball in him and he may surprise a lot of people who think he's through."

MACK'S DEALS REMOVE 'KICK' FROM MEETING

By DAVIS J. WALSH

CHICAGO, Dec. 14. — Having punched itself out in the first round Tuesday when the venerable Mr. Mack ups to everybody with a $275,000 haymaker that wafted Grove, Wallberg and Bishop to the Red Sox; Cochrane to Detroit and Earnshaw to the White Sox, the annual major league convention came out of its corner, leg weary and tongue tied today. So it did the natural thing, it went into a clinch.

Another name for the latter is the joint meeting of the two leagues. Here they will consider the uniform ball, radio broadcasting and other unimportant matters, gravely, ponderously and possibly to no purpose.

Of course, there remained a few incompleted details, some of which in fact, probably never was started. Full many a trade has started in the newspapers—and finished there.

This is not necessarily true of the surmised Earl Averill-Oscar Melillo deal. That is, it may not have started in the newspapers, but it probably will finish there. The Indians, having moved back to their old park for next season, naturally figure Averill to start hitting them all the way off the landscape again.

Cleveland, at that, may make a trade of Willis Hudlin, pitcher, for Jack Hayes, second baseman of the White Sox. But this, on the possibility that the reported New York-Chicago transaction, involving Shortstop Luke Appling versus Lyn Lary, Charley Ruffing and Sam Byrd, is consummated.

Meantime Branch Rickey of St. Louis and Max Carey of Brooklyn, have been mumbling vaguely to each other about something for upward of three days, the general theory being that it has to do with Joe Stripp and Ernie Orsatti. But as far as Brooklyn goes, it can finish all it has to say about Stripp in three minutes. The Messrs. Stripp and Carey are understood, in fact, to be deeply estranged: so much so that the manager will have to dismiss either Joseph or himself and he may not feel that he ought to do that.

In the same way, the Cubs seem to have reached the inevitable impasse with a bellicose party known as Percy ("Pat") Malone. They said that the Braves wanted him. But it turned out that what the Braves wanted was the man the Cubs impulsively decided to take away from them, "Pinkey" Whitney. The Phillies also were mentioned, which established a precedent. The Phillies have been so inconspicuous here that their manager, Burt Shotton, stayed away and it took three days to miss him.

Anyhow, it is established that the Cubs no longer desire Malone and this seems to make it unanimous. Perhaps it would be simpler to have him destroyed.

HOLLYWOOD GETS JOLLEY, LEVEY, HEBERT

CHICAGO, Dec. 14. — (UP)—Adoption of a uniform baseball was one of the most important matters under consideration today as major league magnates closed their winter meetings with a joint session.

A compromise was expected between the American league ball, usually referred to as the "lively ball," and the National league sphere, commonly called the "dead ball."

Players exchanged in the second day's transactions follow:

Boston Red Sox: Outfielder Carl Reynolds for Pitcher Ivy Andrews and Outfielder Smead Jolley.

St. Louis Browns: Retained Andrews and sent Jolley, shortstop Jim Levey and Pitcher Wallace Hebert to the Hollywood Pacific Coast league for Shortstop Allan Strange. Also bought Outfielder George Puccinelli from the Rochester International league club.

Morentin Charges Wife With Cruelty

SAINTS OPPOSE ORANGE; 24 VIE IN 3 DIVISIONS

Huntington Beach's fifth annual invitational basketball tournament opened today, with 24 prep schools, including Santa Ana, anxious to survive an elimination series leading to the finals in the Oiler gymnasium Saturday night.

Competition has been divided into three classes, A, B, and C, on the basis of enrollment, with eight schools entered in each division. Garden Grove and Newport Harbor, Class C entrants, were pairred in the first game this afternoon at 3. Corona and Long Beach Poly's sophomores were to clash in a Class B game at 4, Whittier and Redlands in Class A at 5, and Bonita and Brea-Olinda of Class B at 6 o'clock.

Two games will be played tonight, Huntington Beach and Downey of Class B taking the floor at 7 o'clock, followed by a Class A match between Pasadena and Anaheim at 8.

Coach Reese Greene's Santa Ana Saints, who hold a 39-25 practice victory over Tustin, swing into action tomorrow afternoon against the Orange Panthers at 3 o'clock.

Greene said he would start the same lineup that downed Coach Bill Cole's Farmers. Walt Hendrie, will team with LeRoy Levens at forward. Fred Weimer will start at center, Tom Lacy and Myron Newton at guard. Lacy starred for the Saint middleweights last winter. Newton, star end on the football team, is playing his first year of basketball for the Saints. Levens is a former Class B player. Weimer was perhaps the outstanding center in the Coast league last season.

Santa Ana substitutes most likely to see action are Fred Erdhaus, Erwin Youel, Harris Warren, Leonard Lockhart, Fred Southworth, Roger McCune and Madden Detriech.

If victorious over Orange, the Saints will oppose the winner of the Chaffey-Fullerton game at 3:30 p. m. Saturday.

ACCUSE A. A. STAGG OF 'HIGH-HATTING'

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14. — (UP)—Old athletic wounds were healed and new ones possibly opened during the two-day meeting of the Far Western conference here.

Perusal of the football schedules adopted at the meeting indicated today that both Fresno State and San Jose State appeared on the 1934 program of University of Nevada, conference champion this season. The two California teams were not on the Nevadans' 1933 schedule because of a dispute over "unsportsmanlike conduct" which had carried over from the previous season.

The same schedule listings showed that the "Big Game" between the California Aggies and A. A. Stagg's College of Pacific with U. S. C., California and probably St. Mary's prevented a contest with the Aggies. Representatives of the Aggies denied that animosity existed but in some circles were heard reports that Stagg, former Chicago coach, had been acused of "high-hatting" the conference.

The rule that would have barred freshmen from varsity teams next season was rescinded in the face of protests from Chico, the Aggies and Stagg's team. The three schools were given permission to use first-year men until the 1936 season.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

The Chicago White Sox did better by 100,000 witnesses in 1933 than in '32. . . . If Bob Quinn hadn't taken the post as Brooklyn's general manager, he might have been president of the American association. . . . Fred Lieb, New York baseball writer, is the new publicity director of the National league . . . and if Fred is ambitious to do a good job he can do no better than to pattern his efforts after the efficient Henry P. Edwards, the American league's publicist. . . . Burleigh Grimes is training this winter in the hope of coming back as a big league pitcher. . . . Marty McManus, who was shunted out of the Red Sox job, may line up with Bill McKechnie of the Braves.

OFF-SEASON BASEBALL

Ninety-eight players were involved in deals made by the baseball magnates at Galveston....Operatives at Cedar Rapids, Ia., say that it's true about Earl Whitehill bagging a moose and a couple of deer in Canada recently, indicating the old eye is still as good as it was when he shut out the Giants in the world series.

Advices at hand are to the effect the Cincinnati Reds will train in Tampa, though for what isn't revealed...."Chuck" Klein's batting average on the road last year was .280....and his salary with the Cubs is being put down as 20 grand

Joe Kuhel, first baseman of the Nats, has had a couple of wisdom teeth pulled since striking out so handsomely in the world series.... and this probably will help him to refrain from cutting at curve balls next year....Speaking of operations, Mel Harder recently had one of his nose....and Firpo Marberry suffered the loss of his appendix....Wally Berger of the Braves was on his way to the Yale-Harvard football musical comedy when stricken with a pain in the appendix....he handed his tickets to a friend, hopped into a cab and soon parted from both pain and some pesos.

MUTUEL SYSTEM

Burt Shotton, manager of the Phils, is resting out the winter at Winter Haven, Fla.....and after that deal whereby he lost Klein rest is what he needs....Jake Atz, veteran Texas league pilot, has offered organized baseball a parimutual plan, patterned somewhat after the system used at the floss tracks....indicating Jakie hasn't lost his sense of humor.

The big shots of the Cleveland Indians are said to be getting ready ready to dispose of Wesley Ferrell....and Wesley Ferrell is said to be not exactly sorrowful about it...."Red" Lucas, acquired from the Reds by the Pirates, just about gives that club the edge in the National league.

OLYMPIC CLUB MAY GIVE UP FOOTBALL

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—(UP)—The Olympic club is considering abandoning its practice of sponsoring football teams each season. The report followed announcement that the Clubmen would not meet California next season, thus interrupting the West coast's oldest football rivalry after 43 years of competition.

PALO ALTO, Dec. 14.—(UP)—Stanford athletic authorities today announced that a squad of 39 players would be taken to Pasadena Dec. 23 to meet Columbia in the Rose Bowl game New Year's Day. The Stanford array held its final homefield workout yesterday.

KIPKE 'INTERESTED' IN BID FROM YALE

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 14.—(INS)—Harry Kipke, head football coach at the University of Michigan, today claimed he had received no "official" offer from Yale but would consider one that carried a substantial increase over his present salary.

"I have received several offers from colleges in various parts of the country. However, Yale is not one of them," Kipke said today. "I have received several letters from influential Yale alumni and will discuss the situation with them when I go east late this week." Kipke will leave Thursday night for New York.

Kipke's salary at Michigan is understood to be $5600.

ORANGE, Dec. 14.—Fourteen new members were admitted into the Junior Woman's club at the regular meeting held yesterday afternoon at the clubhouse. Those admitted were Dorothy Finley, Lois Reeves, Maurine Moore, Erene White, Martha Stanfield, Betty Ross, Betty Kingsley, Betty Bergen, Doris Asher, Gladys Churchill, Lucina Maag, Leona Shell, Velma Kuechel and Marian Linnett.

During a brief business meeting at which the president, Miss Virginia Flippen presided, plans were made for a snow party to be held next Wednesday, with Miss Jane Walker in charge of the committee. Announcement was made concerning a party to be given in the clubhouse Saturday, December 30.

'PEACE' TOPIC AT SESSION OF ORANGE UNION

ORANGE, Dec. 14.—Pearl Kendall Hess was the speaker at a meeting of the Orange W. C. T. U. Tuesday, held in the Friendly Hand classroom of the First Presbyterian church. Mrs. Hess spoke on "Peace." The war cauldron seems to be boiling not only in America but in the whole world, Mrs. Hess said.

Summing up the international outlook and quoting from an article in the Union Signal, the speaker said that the attitude at Washington at least so far as can be gleaned, is a positive refusal to get mixed up in any possible foreign quarrel at this time. Whether or not such a position could be maintained if American holdings in foreign countries became involved is always a question, she said.

Mrs. Hess stressed the need for the people of this country to take themselves seriously as people of a nation which always has stood for Christianity and high ideals. She called attention to the approach of the season dedicated to the Prince of Peace and said that at this time, however, the international outlook included the result of Germany's abrupt withdrawal from the disarmament conference.

"Denmark and Switzerland, which are looked on as the most peaceful nations in Europe, are asking for stronger defenses," Mrs. Hess said. "The Swiss war department proposes the expenditure of $23,000,000 for airplanes and defenses for the nation's neutrality. Austria, which recently was granted permission to add 8000 soldiers to her defense forces, has erected barbed wire defenses along the border. Poland has assembled there her crack regiments, planes, tanks and artillery, all in plain view. France, Belgium and Great Britain are increasing defenses. Japan has a campaign for the largest war budget in its history."

Mrs. J. E. Park gave the devotionals, a Christmas message. Miss Elsie Parsons, accompanied by Mrs. Ida Putman, sang "Abide With Me." Mrs. R. W. Jones, director of temperance work in the Sunday schools, asked for the appointment of superintendents of this work in all church schools as have none.

Mrs. Minnie Neville, president, told of the finger printing system at the sheriff's office, where civilians may avail themselves of the privilege of this means of identification.

PASTORS ASKED TO PREACH ON FILM PROBLEM

ORANGE, Dec. 14.—C. G. Dowds of Santa Ana, was the speaker yesterday at a meeting of the Orange Ministerial union at the Y. M. C. A. Dowds is president of the Orange County Better Films association and he asked pastors of this community to give one service to a discussion of the motion picture problem and its relation to the child.

It was brought out that a number of pastors of Orange county discussed this question in sermons delivered last Sunday and that those who could not do so are to center addresses on this topic January 14. Dowds pointed out that an exhaustive survey of the subject extending over a period of years had been made under the supervision of Ex-President Lowell of Harvard university and that Lowell had been appointed by President Roosevelt to head the committee on the motion picture code. The four volumes which are a result of the survey are in the Orange county library, Dowds said.

The sermons in January are to be based on a book written by Fred Eastman, "Your Child and the Movies." The work of the Better Films association is directed toward raising the moral tone of motion pictures and against block booking, it was brought out.

Devotionals were led by the Rev. Franklin Minck, pastor of the Christian church, with the Rev. J. A. Shirley, rector of the Trinity Episcopal church, and president of the Ministerial union, presiding.

Announcement was made of a breakfast to be held in Santa Ana December 19 for all members of the organization.

It was voted that the Sunday school schedule at the Silverado C C C camp be continued until the middle of February.

Y.M.C.A. DIRECTORS VOTE TO CONTINUE FUND DRIVE MONTH

ORANGE, Dec. 14.—About $1000 more is needed to carry on the program of the Y. M. C. A. in this city, it was brought out at a largely attended board meeting of the organization, held at the Orange Union High school last night. Following a prolonged discussion, it was decided to continue the fund campaign next month in order to raise the amount necessary to maintain the headquarters of the association and pay other expenses.

A new plan for raising money was proposed and will be put in effect, and this plan included the solicitation of one dollar from parents of boys who are members of the 39 Y. M. C. A. groups functioning at present. Boys themselves are to be asked to help in the coming work for funds. At present, $2500 of the fund for Y. M. C. A. work has been raised.

Last night the budget was slashed as far as was deemed possible and the office of the assistant at the Y was eliminated. Janitor work in the future will be done by volunteer groups and board members are to aid in office work. A. Haven Smith presided. Six new "Y" groups are to be formed shortly if the program planned can be continued, it was stated, by J. B. Wilbur, secretary of the board.

The resignation of two board members, Vernon Valentine and Walter F. Kogler, were accepted with regret. Smith announced that a committee would be appointed to present nominations for members to fill these vacancies. The committee will report at the next board meeting on January 9.

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

BEGIN HERE TOLAY

EVE BAYLESS, pretty assistant to EARLE BARNES, advertising manager of Bixby's department store, marries DICK RADER, a construction superintendent. Dick is sent to take charge of a construction job in the Adirondacks. It will require at least a year to complete but Eve refuses to go with him.

MONA ALLEN, copy writer, dislikes Eve and is constantly causing trouble. She is responsible for several mistakes for which Eve is blamed. Mona is friendly with THERON REECE who forces unwelcome attentions on Eve.

ARLENE SMITH, stenographer at Bixby's, becomes engaged to SAM HOLERIDGE, advertising man employed by another store.

Following a misunderstanding at Christmas, several weeks pass in which Eve has no word from Dick. Too stubborn to admit that she was in the wrong, Eve refuses to apologize and begins to see herself as a martyr. She works harder at the office, trying to forget her troubles.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Chapter XLIII

Eve worked harder at the office. She put in longer hours, often took work home to finish and seemed to walk, talk and breathe advertising. It was the only way she could keep her thoughts from her personal worries.

"You'll have a nervous breakdown!" Arlene warned her. "The job isn't worth it. No job is. Honestly, Eve, I can't see what's come over you. And there's another thing you shouldn't overlook, Barnes is slated to leave soon; that's evident. He and Mr. Bixby have been in conference nearly every day. But you may not get his place after all. Mr. Bixby's old-fashioned, you know. He may not like the idea of giving a woman the managership. Lots of men think a married woman's interests are sure to be divided. And there's always the possibility that you might leave the office flat on its back in a rush season and go off to join that handsome husband. Of course we all think the job is yours for the taking but you ought to be planning what you will do if you don't get it."

Eve had not permitted herself to think of that. Now she saw the wisdom of Arlene's advice. Suppose she should come to the office some morning and find a new manager in Barnes' place! That would mean that she would probably have no more chance for advancement at Bixby's. It would mean that she had sacrificed Dick's wishes and comfort and imperiled her health, that she had risked a break in her marriage all for nothing. It was, indeed, high time to begin thinking about what she should do in that event.

Of course she could go on working as an assistant but that did not satisfy her ambition. She could go elsewhere and begin over again to work her way up in another office. But she felt too tired and nervous to face such a prospect.

Another possibility would be to resign from Bixby's and join her husband. Eve thought, with a little rush of happiness, what a relief it would be to leave behind all the hard work, the irritations and anxieties of Bixby's advertising office and let Dick take care of her. But her pride stood in the way of this solution of her problem. She was no longer certain that Dick loved her and wanted her to go to him.

It was with difficulty that she schooled herself to a wait the announcement of Barnes' successor. And Eve knew that Arlene's warning was based on sound sense. Mr. Bixby was old-fashioned. He would, no doubt, prefer a man as advertising manager. Perhaps he had never for one moment considered Eve for the place.

So tense did the strain become that Eve had to force herself to eat. She left the office one evening, too weary to remain down town for dinner, too weary even to stop at the delicatessen for something already cooked. It was toward the end of February—a blustering night following a gray winter day. The sort of night, Eve mused, when one should go home to a lighted house and a hot, savory dinner, with books and music afterwards before an open fire. And with the one you loved best to share the peace and comfort. She had read once this brief definition of happiness—"Four feet on the fender." And it was true. She knew, now that it was perhaps too late, that it was true.

The wind whipped sharply around the corner as she climbed the steps to the porch. Tears of self pity misted her eyes as she fumbled for her latchkey. She winked them back. If she permitted herself to cry she would be certain to meet Dorothy McElhinney in the entrance hall and she was determined that no one should guess her unhappiness.

There was a light shining from the crack under the door opening into her apartment. Mrs. Brooks must have lighted a fire on the hearth and perhaps put the teakettle on to boil. The kindly woman sometimes made these thoughtful preparations for Eve's return on particularly disagreeable nights. But before Eve's numbed fingers could find the right key the door was flung open and she found herself in her mother's arms.

Eve laughed and cried in blessed relief and Kate Bayless laughed and cried with her, meanwhile taking off Eve's hat and coat and pushing her gently into Dick's armchair by the fireside.

"But when did you come and why didn't you let me know? And how—?" Eve caught herself just in time. She had been going to say, "How did you know I needed you so!"

"Well, we hadn't heard from you for more than a week and that worried me. I thought you might be sick. So I just packed up and came. No, you sit right where you are! Supper is all ready to dish up."

Eve leaned back in delicious comfort and watched her mother, moving swiftly back and forth between the kitchen and the gateleg table which she had set between two easy chairs before the fireplace with its cheerful blaze.

Savory odors drifted in from the kitchen and Eve sniffed ecstatically, "Smells sort of Christmasy!" she said.

"That's the roast chicken and sage dressing, most likely," her mother told her. "And the mince pie. I had a jar of mincemeat left so I made you a mince pie. It's thawing out in the oven. I wish Dick was here to help us eat it. How is Dick?"

"He—he's well." If Kate Bayless noted the hesitation in her daughter's voice she gave no sign.

"You got here at exactly the right time," Kate said as she placed the dish of fluffy mashed potatoes on the table." Another 10 minutes and these potatoes would have been spoiled."

"They're perfect!" Eve declared. "Everything you cook always is."

"M-m—homemade rolls!" she exclaimed a moment later, breaking one open.

"Yes, and here's some grape and orange marmalade that Esther sent you."

"Tell her it's simply luscious," Eve said, sampling it. "Isn't it surprising, Mother, what a good cook Esther is now? She knew very little about it when she was married."

"Why no—it doesn't surprise me. I've noticed that any intelligent girl can learn to cook in a short time, once she gets interested in it and really tries. Do you like to cook, Eve?"

Her mother's voice was quiet and casual, yet Eve sensed that the question was important. She made her voice casual, too. "I think I might like it," she answered, "If I were at home and had time to learn. Since Dick's gone I usually eat my meals down town. I'm too tired when evening comes to come home and cook."

"And when Dick was here?" Kate Bayless persisted.

"When Dick was here he did the cooking," Eve confessed. She had not told her mother this before. She was ashamed to have her know.

"Not all of it?" Kate Bakless plainly was shocked.

"Nearly all of it," Eve said slowly.

Abruptly Kate Bayless changed the subject. Eve almost wished she hadn't. She longed to speak of her husband; longed to cry out her heart in her mother's arms and hear her mother assure her that Dick still loved her. Yet that was the one thing she must not do.

Hours after her mother's regular breathing told that she was asleep, Eve lay, tense and dry-eyed, and planned to fill the week so full of sight-seeing and entertainment that there would be little time for confidences. She told herself that she must not discuss her difficulties, even with her mother, until she had decided exactly what she was going to do. Events were shaping more swiftly than she knew to force her to this decision.

Those admitted were Dorothy Finley, Lois Reeves, Maurine Moore, Erene White, Martha Stanfield, Betty Ross, Betty Kingsley, Betty Bergen, Doris Asher, Gladys Churchill, Lucina Maag, Leona Shell, Velma Kuechel and Marian Linnett.

During a brief business meeting at which the president, Miss Virginia Flippen presided, plans were made for a snow party to be held next Wednesday, with Miss Jane Walker in charge of the committee. Announcement was made concerning a party to be given in the clubhouse Saturday, December 30.

'PEACE' TOPIC AT SESSION OF ORANGE UNION

ORANGE, Dec. 14.—Pearl Kendall Hess was the speaker at a meeting of the Orange W. C. T. U. Tuesday, held in the Friendly Hand classroom of the First Presbyterian church. Mrs. Hess spoke on "Peace." The war cauldron seems to be boiling not only in America but in the whole world, Mrs. Hess said.

Summing up the international outlook and quoting from an article in the Union Signal, the speaker said that the attitude at Washington at least so far as can be gleaned, is a positive refusal to get mixed up in any possible foreign quarrel at this time. Whether or not such a position could be maintained if American holdings in foreign countries became involved is always a question, she said.

Mrs. Hess stressed the need for the people of this country to take themselves seriously as people of a nation which always has stood for Christianity and high ideals. She called attention to the approach of the season dedicated to the Prince of Peace and said that at this time, however, the international outlook included the result of Germany's abrupt withdrawal from the disarmament conference.

"Denmark and Switzerland, which are looked on as the most peaceful nations in Europe, are asking for stronger defenses," Mrs. Hess said. "The Swiss war department proposes the expenditure of $23,000,000 for airplanes and defenses for the nation's neutrality. Austria, which recently was granted permission to add 8000 soldiers to her defense forces, has erected barbed wire defenses along the border. Poland has assembled there her crack regiments, planes, tanks and artillery, all in plain view. France, Belgium and Great Britain are increasing defenses. Japan has a campaign for the largest war budget in its history."

Mrs. J. E. Park gave the devotionals, a Christmas message. Miss Elsie Parsons, accompanied by Mrs. Ida Putman, sang "Abide With Me." Mrs. R. W. Jones, director of temperance work in the Sunday schools, asked for the appointment of superintendents of this work in all church schools as have none.

Mrs. Minnie Neville, president, told of the finger printing system at the sheriff's office, where civilians may avail themselves of the privilege of this means of identification.

PASTORS ASKED TO PREACH ON FILM PROBLEM

ORANGE, Dec. 14.—C. G. Dowds of Santa Ana, was the speaker yesterday at a meeting of the Orange Ministerial union at the Y. M. C. A. Dowds is president of the Orange County Better Films association and he asked pastors of this community to give one service to a discussion of the motion picture problem and its relation to the child.

It was brought out that a number of pastors of Orange county discussed this question in sermons delivered last Sunday and that those who could not do so are to center addresses on this topic January 14. Dowds pointed out that an exhaustive survey of the subject extending over a period of years had been made under the supervision of Ex-President Lowell of Harvard university and that Lowell had been appointed by President Roosevelt to head the committee on the motion picture code. The four volumes which are a result of the survey are in the Orange county library, Dowds said.

The sermons in January are to be based on a book written by Fred Eastman, "Your Child and the Movies." The work of the Better Films association is directed toward raising the moral tone of motion pictures and against block booking, it was brought out.

Devotionals were led by the Rev. Franklin Minck, pastor of the Christian church, with the Rev. J. A. Shirley, rector of the Trinity Episcopal church, and president of the Ministerial union, presiding.

Announcement was made of a breakfast to be held in Santa Ana December 19 for all members of the organization.

It was voted that the Sunday school schedule at the Silverado C C C camp be continued until the middle of February.

Y.M.C.A. DIRECTORS VOTE TO CONTINUE FUND DRIVE MONTH

ORANGE, Dec. 14.—About $1000 more is needed to carry on the program of the Y. M. C. A. in this city, it was brought out at a largely attended board meeting of the organization, held at the Orange Union High school last night. Following a prolonged discussion, it was decided to continue the fund campaign next month in order to raise the amount necessary to maintain the headquarters of the association and pay other expenses.

A new plan for raising money was proposed and will be put in effect, and this plan included the solicitation of one dollar from parents of boys who are members of the 39 Y. M. C. A. groups functioning at present. Boys themselves are to be asked to help in the coming work for funds. At present, $2500 of the fund for Y. M. C. A. work has been raised.

Last night the budget was slashed as far as was deemed possible and the office of the assistant at the Y was eliminated. Janitor work in the future will be done by volunteer groups and board members are to aid in office work. A. Haven Smith presided. Six new "Y" groups are to be formed shortly if the program planned can be continued, it was stated, by J. B. Wilbur, secretary of the board.

The resignation of two board members, Vernon Valentine and Walter F. Kogler, were accepted with regret. Smith announced that a committee would be appointed to present nominations for members to fill these vacancies. The committee will report at the next board meeting on January 9.

For the LOVE of EVE

by Lucy Walling

BEGIN HERE TOLAY

EVE BAYLESS, pretty assistant to EARLE BARNES, advertising manager of Bixby's department store, marries DICK RADER, a construction superintendent. Dick is sent to take charge of a construction job in the Adirondacks. It will require at least a year to complete but Eve refuses to go with him.

MONA ALLEN, copy writer, dislikes Eve and is constantly causing trouble. She is responsible for several mistakes for which Eve is blamed. Mona is friendly with THERON REECE who forces unwelcome attentions on Eve.

ARLENE SMITH, stenographer at Bixby's, becomes engaged to SAM HOLERIDGE, advertising man employed by another store.

Following a misunderstanding at Christmas, several weeks pass in which Eve has no word from Dick. Too stubborn to admit that she was in the wrong, Eve refuses to apologize and begins to see herself as a martyr. She works harder at the office, trying to forget her troubles.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Chapter XLIII

Eve worked harder at the office. She put in longer hours, often took work home to finish and seemed to walk, talk and breathe advertising. It was the only way she could keep her thoughts from her personal worries.

"You'll have a nervous breakdown!" Arlene warned her. "The job isn't worth it. No job is. Honestly, Eve, I can't see what's come over you. And there's another thing you shouldn't overlook, Barnes is slated to leave soon; that's evident. He and Mr. Bixby have been in conference nearly every day. But you may not get his place after all. Mr. Bixby's old-fashioned, you know. He may not like the idea of giving a woman the managership. Lots of men think a married woman's interests are sure to be divided. And there's always the possibility that you might leave the office flat on its back in a rush season and go off to join that handsome husband. Of course we all think the job is yours for the taking but you ought to be planning what you will do if you don't get it."

Eve had not permitted herself to think of that. Now she saw the wisdom of Arlene's advice. Suppose she should come to the office some morning and find a new manager in Barnes' place! That would mean that she would probably have no more chance for advancement at Bixby's. It would mean that she had sacrificed Dick's wishes and comfort and imperiled her health, that she had risked a break in her marriage all for nothing. It was, indeed, high time to begin thinking about what she should do in that event.

Of course she could go on working as an assistant but that did not satisfy her ambition. She could go elsewhere and begin over again to work her way up in another office. But she felt too tired and nervous to face such a prospect.

Another possibility would be to resign from Bixby's and join her husband. Eve thought, with a little rush of happiness, what a relief it would be to leave behind all the hard work, the irritations and anxieties of Bixby's advertising office and let Dick take care of her. But her pride stood in the way of this solution of her problem. She was no longer certain that Dick loved her and wanted her to go to him.

It was with difficulty that she schooled herself to a ait the announcement of Barnes' successor. And Eve knew that Arlene's warning was based on sound sense. Mr. Bixby was old-fashioned. He would, no doubt, prefer a man as advertising manager. Perhaps he had never for one moment considered Eve for the place.

So tense did the strain become that Eve had to force herself to eat. She left the office one evening, too weary to remain down town for dinner, too weary even to stop at the delicatessen for something already cooked. It was toward the end of February—a blustering night following a gray winter day. The sort of night, Eve mused, when one should go home to a lighted house and a hot, savory dinner, with books and music afterwards before an open fire. And with the one you loved best to share the peace and comfort. She had read once this brief definition of happiness—"Four feet on the fender." And it was true. She knew, now that it was perhaps too late, that it was true.

The wind whipped sharply around the corner as she climbed the steps to the porch. Tears of self pity misted her eyes as she fumbled for her latchkey. She winked them back. If she permitted herself to cry she would be certain to meet Dorothy McElhinney in the entrance hall and she was determined that no one should guess her unhappiness.

There was a light shining from the crack under the door opening into her apartment. Mrs. Brooks must have lighted a fire on the hearth and perhaps put the teaketle on to boil. The kindly woman sometimes made these thoughtful preparations for Eve's return on particularly disagreeable nights. But before Eve's numbed fingers could find the right key the door was flung open and she found herself in her mother's arms.

Eve laughed and cried in blessed relief and Kate Bayless laughed and cried with her, meanwhile taking off Eve's hat and coat and pushing her gently into Dick's armchair by the fireside.

"But when did you come and why didn't you let me know? And how—?" Eve caught herself just in time. She had been going to say, "How did you know I needed you so!"

"Well, we hadn't heard from you for more than a week and that worried me. I thought you might be sick. So I just packed up and came. No, you sit right where you are! Supper is all ready to dish up."

Eve leaned back in delicious comfort and watched her mother, moving swiftly back and forth between the kitchen and the gateleg table which she had set between two easy chairs before the fireplace with its cheerful blaze.

Savory odors drifted in from the kitchen and Eve sniffed ecstatically. "Smells sort of Christmasy!" she said.

"That's the roast chicken and sage dressing, most likely," her mother told her. "And the mince pie. I had a jar of mincemeat left so I made you a mince pie. It's thawing out in the oven. I wish Dick was here to help us eat it. How is Dick?"

"He—he's well." If Kate Bayless noted the hesitation in her daughter's voice she gave no sign.

"You got here at exactly the right time," Kate said as she placed the dish of fluffy mashed potatoes on the table." Another 10 minutes and these potatoes would have been spoiled."

"They're perfect!" Eve declared. "Everything you cook always is."

"M-m—homemade rolls!" she exclaimed a moment later, breaking one open.

"Yes, and here's some grape and orange marmalade that Esther sent you."

"Tell her it's simply luscious," Eve said, sampling it. "Isn't it surprising, Mother, what a good cook Esther is now? She knew very little about it when she was married."

"Why no—it doesn't surprise me. I've noticed that any intelligent girl can learn to cook in a short time, once she gets interested in it and really tries. Do you like to cook, Eve?"

Her mother's voice was quiet and casual, yet Eve sensed that the question was important. She made her voice casual, too. "I think I might like it," she answered. "If I were at home and had time to learn. Since Dick's gone I usually eat my meals down town. I'm too tired when evening comes to come home and cook."

"And when Dick was here?" Kate Bayless persisted.

"When Dick was here he did the cooking," Eve confessed. She had not told her mother this before. She was ashamed to have her know.

"Not all of it?" Kate Bakless plainly was shocked.

"Nearly all of it," Eve said slowly.

Abruptly Kate Bayless changed the subject. Eve almost wished she hadn't. She longed to speak of her husband; longed to cry out her heart in her mother's arms and hear her mother assure her that Dick still loved her. Yet that was the one thing she must not do.

Hours after her mother's regular breathing told that she was asleep, Eve lay, tense and dry-eyed, and planned to fill the week so full of sight-seeing and entertainment that there would be little time for confidences. She told herself that she must not discuss her difficulties, even with her mother, until she had decided exactly what she was going to do. Events were shaping more swiftly than she knew to force her to this decision.

Check Reveals Heavy Increase In S. A. Motor Traffic

15,933 AUTOS IN 12 HOURS AT 1ST. MAIN

Motor traffic in Santa Ana has increased more than three times in the past 16 years, it was revealed today in comparing figures compiled by census takers working on the CWA traffic survey and a traffic count taken by George Peters, retired Santa Ana banker, in June, 1917.

When Peters took his figures on Sunday, June 17, 1917, he found that from 6 a. m. to 8 p. m. at First and Main streets, 5032 autos, 236 motorcycles and 465 bicycles entered the intersection. Latest figures show that the average travel at the same corner, figured from daily readings for the last week, totalled 14,200 motor vehicles in the 12 hour period from 6:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m., while the heaviest day was last Saturday when 15,933 vehicles were tabulated.

Using the 1917 survey, 359 cars passed First and Main streets each hour while in 1933, the total was 1183. No survey has been made so far this year on motorcycles and bicycles but it is believed that the total 16 years ago would be in excess of the present traffic.

Engineer Asks Figures

City Engineer J. L. McBride, supervising the CWA projects, said that news of the traffic survey had been received by S. V. Cortelyou, head of the state highway department of this district, and that Cortelyou had made a special trip to Santa Ana to secure preliminary figures and ask for a complete report on state highway routes through Santa Ana. The findings of the survey will offer valuable data on allocating funds from the state gasoline tax money used in developing roads, he said.

Next to First and Main streets, the intersection at Seventeenth and Main streets has the heaviest traffic outside of the business district, with a daily average of 10,000 vehicles during the 12 hour period. This is in excess of 12 cars per minute. On all intersections, the census takers chart the direction of each car entering and leaving the intersection. Figures were used on this corner to estimate the drop in traffic on cloudy days and it was shown that the flow was only 82 per cent of normal on Sunday, December 3, when the sun was hidden by clouds. The charts show that whenever a temporary cloudy spell comes, traffic decreases very perceptibly.

The third heaviest outlying corner is at Santa Ana boulevard and North Main street, where the daily average is 7825 cars. Edinger and South Main street, with 4800 vehicles, is anoth r busy spot while the Santa Fe railroad crossing on East First street, with traffic flowing only two ways, had average counts of 2500 cars going west and 2200 traveling east, for a total of 4700.

10,000 Cars Registered

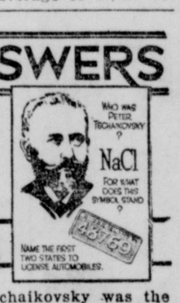

There are 10,000 cars registered in Santa Ana, McBride revealed. One of the next objectives of the census group is to station men at every road entering the city and compute the number of cars entering and leaving Santa Ana. Other counts will be made for a complete 24 hour period on main routes as well as complete tabulations on week end travel, from Saturday morning through Sunday night.

The first work of the crews was in the business district, where Fourth and Main streets showed the heaviest total, with a peak number of 1878 vehicles from 11 to 12 a. m. on a Saturday. Fourth and Broadway was next with a total of 1344, First and Main had 1262 and Sycamore and Fourth streets had 1056, all taken during the one hour period.

McBride pointed out that besides the aid in securing authentic information for the gas tax fund allocations, the census would be a guide for future road work, determining budgeting for additional highways, determine the highway plan of the city in relation to traffic needs, show the best routes for emergency situations, parking hours, pedestrian lanes, boulevard stops, sign posting and many other factors.

McBride also said that the task of counting the cars is far from simple and that many workers are unable to check steadily for six hours without becoming tired and inefficient.

Holiday shipping gives signs of being much heavier than last year as a result of the improvement in business conditions, according to H. W. Lee, agent of the Railway Express in Santa Ana.

Shipping this year already is ahead of last year, Lee said, indicating that more purchases have been made from local merchants and a resultant increase in business. He predicted that shipping and business would be even better as Christmas nears.

ENDORSEMENTS OF NEWPORT HARBOR PROPOSAL GROWING; LABOR HEARTILY APPROVES

General approval of the harbor improvement project as outlined to the voters in a proposition to be voted on next Tuesday, is voiced in the following comments by men and women, representing different interests and various lines of activities. An outstanding feature revealed in these opinions is the financial aid offered by the federal government as an unemployment relief measure. Another phase receiving attention, as disclosed in the statements, is that the influx of wealthy people, will provide employment in different lines and stimulate business.

William H. Aupperle, of Anaheim, president of Orange County Federated Labor Council:

"I have made a study of the harbor improvement program as presented to the voters, and I am in thorough sympathy with the undertaking.

"Every working man and his family should support the proposition at the polls next Tuesday. From the standpoint of labor the proposed development with the federal government paying two-thirds of the cost, is good business. It will create labor and stimulate business and put money into circulation. The undertaking of this job is merely the beginning to the building up of the entire coastline."

Charles J. Leimer, Santa Ana, president of Santa Ana local, No. 441, of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers:

"Both from the standpoint of relieving unemployment and that of stimulating business, I am 100 per cent behind the harbor project. Only with an improved harbor, capable of accommodating seagoing yachts, will we be able to capitalize to the fullest extent our natural playground assets."

Frank J. Lincoln, Santa Ana, business manager of Santa Ana local, No. 441, of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers:

"Had there been no want and suffering because of the present state of unemployment, there would have been no emergency relief appropriation nor would Orange county have been offered a million dollars for harbor improvement. We cannot afford to turn down this friendly gesture that means so much to the county."

R. E. McBurney, financial secretary, Santa Ana painters' union:

"Most lines of business are dependent upon the purchasing power of the wage earners. When this purchasing power is taken away by prolonged unemployment, business stops. That's why I am for the harbor improvement project, which, if carried into effect, will not only provide direct employment to hundreds of workers but only attract investments and thus pave the way for employment in other lines."

Harry Gerhart, manager of the People's Forum:

"In voicing my sentiments on the harbor proposition, I am speaking for myself, and do not speak for the supporters of the forum movement.

"I am in entire accord with the program as submitted to the voters, which, in its objective, reflects the efforts of the Roosevelt administration to put people back to work and restore purchasing power. This is not the time to stand still, we must go forward."

Mrs. Marie C. Ortwieg, dressmaker:

"We dressmakers are naturally interested in any proposition that will bring wealth into Orange county. The doings of wealthy people puts money into circulation and some of it goes to dressmakers.

B. Z. McKinney, attorney:

"As a supporter of President Roosevelt who made it possible for Orange county to receive this generous offer of financial assistance in developing the harbor, it goes without saying that I am for the harbor bond issue.

Marie Heinmiller, milliner:

"When my father came out here a few years ago on a visit, he was so impressed with the possibilities of the harbor district, that he bought two lots. What's more, he has no regrets. All of the Heinmillers are for the harbor bonds."

Gertrude Thompson Veeh, Vogue Beauty Salon:

"For obvious reasons I naturally favor any undertaking or project that will attract wealthy people and stimulate society activities, which in turn means the spending of considerable money for dresses and beauty aids. And Santa Ana will get its share of that patronage when the harbor is ready to welcome the yachtowners and their families.

P. A. Gettle, grocer:

"I am for the harbor project because it will contribute to the relief of unemployment. People with empty pockets have no purchasing power, and where there is no buying, there is no business."

Mrs. Lena Barmore, Barmore's Coffee Shop:

"A vote for the harbor bonds is a vote for President Roosevelt's program of relieving unemployment and restoring purchasing power among wage earners."

W B. Martin, real estate broker, president of Men's Community Bible class:

"It would be very foolish for us to turn down a $1,200,000 gift offered us by the federal government when we need the money for putting men to work, not to mention the urgent need of developing the harbor at this time."

Rev. Harry E. Owings, pastor of the First Baptist church:

"I think that the harbor improvement project with its offer of financial assistance from the federal government is a matter that should be viewed from the standpoint of its principal objective, that of relieving unemployment. Personally, I am in favor of the undertaking."

Mitchell D. Haskell, chairman official board, First Christian church:

"Because of the humanitarian feature linked with the harbor improvement project—that of providing employment for men with families depending upon them, and for which Uncle Sam is giving us more than a million, I favor the proposition."

Mrs. Susanna Bixby Bryant, large property owner:

"I hope the harbor bond issue carries because it will insure the success of a very fine project which will benefit the whole county."

Lester D. Steinkopf, drug store employe:

"With the completion of the proposed harbor improvement program, I have a vision of the Orange county coast line becoming the Riviera of the American continent, of the harbor being crowded with smart-looking yachts, of the countryside being studded with stately homes and beautiful mansions, and of Santa Ana being the shopping center with the downtown streets being filled with expensive limousines driven by liveried chauffeurs And people who live in palatial homes, sail yachts, maintain stables, and ride in expensive cars, have a habit of spending money. So, for this reason I am for the harbor bonds."

William "Bill" Wiebelt, journeyman barber:

"The harbor bonds means a touchdown for Orange county against unemployment and depression. It's time American barbers should get some of that millionaire patronage which has gone to Monte Carlo, Deauville, and what have you."

PLAN LOCAL UNIT OF VETS' LEAGUE

Plans for organizing local units of the newly formed Veterans Voters league, a national body of ex-service men, maintaining headquarters at 346 Broadway, New York, in Orange county are under consideration, according to Charles E. Dixon of Santa Ana, past department commander of the department of California, United Spanish War Veterans. Dixon is now acting as service officer for Spanish War veterans in the matter of adjusting pension claims.

According to an organization circular mailed out by the national headquarters of the organization, it is proposed to maintain centers of operation in every congressional district throughout the nation. While the aim and objective of the new organization, political in character as indicated by its name, according to circulars mailed out, is to promote and perpetuate the close and friendly ties of all men who served under the flag, it is pretty well understood among veterans that the main purpose of the new organization is to bring about the liberalization and modification of the provisions of the drastic veterans economy act, passed last March, according to Dixon.

Motor traffic in Santa Ana has increased more than three times in the past 16 years, it was revealed today in comparing figures compiled by census takers working on the CWA traffic survey and a traffic count taken by George Peters, retired Santa Ana banker, in June, 1917.

When Peters took his figures on Sunday, June 17, 1917, he found that from 6 a. m. to 8 p. m. at First and Main streets, 5032 autos, 236 motorcycles and 465 bicycles entered the intersection. Latest figures show that the average travel at the same corner, figured from daily readings for the last week, totalled 14,200 motor vehicles in the 12 hour period from 6:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m., while the heaviest day was last Saturday when 15,933 vehicles were tabulated.

Using the 1917 survey, 359 cars passed First and Main streets each hour while in 1933, the total was 1183. No survey has been made so far this year on motorcycles and bicycles but it is believed that the total 16 years ago would be in excess of the present traffic.

Enginere Asks Figures

City Engineer J. L. McBride, supervising the CWA projects, said that news of the traffic survey had been received by S. V. Cortelyou, head of the state highway department of this district, and that Cortelyou had made a special trip to Santa Ana to secure preliminary figures and ask for a complete report on state highway routes through Santa Ana. The findings of the survey will offer valuable data on allocating funds from the state gasoline tax money used in developing roads, he said.

PLAN LOCAL UNIT OF VETS' LEAGUE

Plans for organizing local units of the newly formed Veterans Voters league, a national body of ex-service men, maintaining headquarters at 346 Broadway, New York, in Orange county are under consideration, according to Charles E. Express Shipments In S. A. Reflect Better Business

Holiday shipping gives signs of being much heavier than last year as a result of the improvement in business conditions, according to H. W. Lee, agent of the Railway Express in Santa Ana.

Shipping this year already is ahead of last year, Lee said, indicating that more purchases have been made from local merchants and a resultant increase in business. He predicted that shipping and business would be even better as Christmas nears.

Newly Married Couple Making Home in Orange

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hively have returned from a honeymoon trip to Big Bear to establish their home at 122 Clark street, Orange, following their marriage of Saturday, December 9, in First Methodist church chapel of this city.

Miss Roberta West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. West, West Edinger street, and Mr. Hively, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hively of Orange, were united at a quiet ceremony at 11 o'clock in the morning read by Dr. George A. Warmer, pastor of the church.

The bride wore a pretty crepe frock in a new shade of blue, with matching hat and a shoulder corsage of gardenias. Her sister, Mrs. Joe Irwin, as honor matron, chose a deep blue ensemble with a corsage cluster of delicate-hued rosebuds. Mr. Irwin was Mr. Hively's best man.

Young Couple to Make Honeymoon Home in Long Beach

Already domiciled in their home in Long Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Conkright are planning to return to this city for the Christmas observance in the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Frances Morris, 403 East Myrtle street.

Mrs. Conkright was Miss Alice Morris, her marriage to the former Orange resident having occurred Sunday, Dec. 10 in the bride chapel of First M. E. church. Four o'clock in the afternoon was set for the rites, for which the church was garlanded in pink and blue blossoms intertwined with feathery smilax and asparagus fern, and lighted with innumerable wax tapers.

Contributing to the beauty of the musical interval preceding the ceremony were violin solos played by Miss Emmalena Richards. Miss Lois Clement played the wedding marches, Wagner's for the processional, and Mendelssohn's for the recessional, while Ray Archer accompanied Miss Richards.

Mr. Conkright, attended by his best man, Harold Chapman of Orange, stood at the altar with the Rev. Perry Frederick Schrock, pastor of First Congregational church, as the bride and her attendants approached.

Miss Morris was very lovely in her formal gown of larkspur blue taffeta whose long skirt swept in a pronounced train. Hat and slippers were in the same hue, and she carried a little muff of blue silk and waxen pink camellias. She moved to the altar on the arm of her brother, Ralph Morris, who gave her in marriage.

Miss Esther Loerch, maid of honor, wore satin in the most delicate posible tint of pink, with hat, slippers and dress accessories to harmonize, and carried a large cluster of pink sweet peas. Miss Lucille Morris, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Russell Baker of Los Angeles, sister of the bridegroom, completed the group with the two ushers, Messrs. Everett Conkright and Russell Baker. The girls wore pink taffeta frocks, fashioned exactly alike, and wide-brimmed pink taffeta hats. Each carried blue sweet peas.

Following the marriage service, Mr. and Mrs. Conkright and the bridal party were joined by the mothers of the two young people, Mrs. Frances Morris and Mrs. Lily Conkright, for a short reception hour in the church. Mrs. Morris wore a graceful gown of black chiffon velvet, and Mrs. Conkright was in soft black crepe with touches of emerald green. Each wore a corsage of gardenias.

For the formal reception, some thirty relatives and close friends gathered at the Morris home, where the pink and blue theme of the ceremony and church decorations, was repeated. The bride made a pretty ritual of cutting her cake to be served with other dainty refreshments.

Mrs. Conkright was born in Santa Ana and has spent her life here where she graduated from Polytechnic High school, later taking a secretarial position with E. M. Sundquist and Stanley Goode which she has held for the past four years. Her mother also is a native Californian, and has spent the greater part of her life in this city. Mr. Conkright graduated from Orange Union High school and has the management of an oil station in Long Beach, where the young people are established in a pretty Spanish home.

Junior Music Club

Stewart Gibson was leader at the latest meeting of the Junior Music club held in the home of Marie Stanton Eyerly, 501 South Van Ness avenue. Mildred Day, who was to have served in that capacity, was ill and unable to be present.

The program included piano numbers by De Lacy Cook, Richard Gibson, La Vonne Wells, Stewart Gibson, Ralph Tippin and Ruth Hawley. Ralph Tippin was winner in a musical game which followed.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Eyerly, with the assistance of Stewart Gibson.

Two Party Guests Find Special Plans for Their Birthdays

In a home that was gay with its bowls of cotoneaster and harmonizing holiday decorations, Mrs. Bess Simmons, 726 South Birch street, assembled a group of friends Saturday evening for a surprise celebration of the birthday anniversaries of Mrs. J. B. Stephenson and of Walter Henderson, both of which chanced to fall on that date.

Bridge and 500 offered entertainment during a part of the evening, with pretty prizes awarded by the hostess to winners in each event. But perhaps the most enjoyment was derived from a musical program, for Mr. Henderson, an accomplished pianist, is also a composer and played several of his own compositions. His daughter, Miss Joy Lee Henderson, gave other piano numbers, and with Messrs. Paul Simmons of the home, and Jack Ryan, sang several gay trios, and led in general singing of such old favorites as everyone knew.

Arranging the card tables around a long dining table bearing decorated birthday cakes, Mrs. Simmons completed her hospitality by serving a delicious refreshment menu which had as its climax, gift showers for the two honor guests. To Mrs. Stephenson was presented an assortment of lovely handkerchiefs, while Mr. Henderson received an equally desirable collection of socks.

Sharing the evening were Mrs. Anna Johnson and her daughter and son, Miss Trena and Tom Johnson, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nelson of La Mirada; Messrs. and Mesdames J. B. Stephenson, Harry Cook, Dick Terpstra, Beatty Crawford, Glenn Breeding, John Smith, Ray Boyd, Leslie Lawrence, Dean Laub, Mrs. C. B. Weekly, Mrs. Kirkpatrick, Miss Joy Lee Henderson, Messrs. Walter Henderson, Paul Simmons and Jack Ryan.

Homesteaders Lodge

Drill team members had charge of the meeting of Homesteaders Life association held recently in Hoffman hall. After seating the officers, the team put on initiatory work for two new members.

General arrangements were made for a Christmas observance. The next meeting is to be officers' night, with Harry Brookbank, past president, in charge. A report was read from President Harry Green of Des Moines, Ia., expressing his appreciation of a membership drive conducted in November, the month of his 20th anniversary as head of the company. P. A. Trickey, representative for the district, gave a report.

Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clayton and remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Breakfast

1-2 cup flaked cereal with
1-3 cup whole milk, no sugar
1 soft boiled egg with
1-2 tsp. butter
1 cup coffee with
1-4 cup hot skim milk, no sugar.

Calory total, 330.

Sugar is taboo on this menu, but you can always have saccharine, y'know. If cereal or coffee are unappetizing because of the sugar restriction a saccharine tablet crushed, takes the curse off the cereal (mix with the milk), likewise the coffee.

I have a new use for stale spice or devil's food cakes: I use them in chocolate ice-box cakes, and they are just worlds better than the tasteless little lady fingers. Particularly is this so if the cake has had dates in it (spice cake) or a rich chocolate frosting (devil's food).

TODAY'S RECIPE

Parker House Rolls

1 pint sweet milk, scalded and cooled
2 quarts sifted bread flour
3 Tbsps. butter
1 yeast cake dissolved
1-2 cup sugar
1 tsp. salt

Some time during the day scald a pint of milk and set it aside to cool.

Sift the 2 quarts of flour with salt, and rub the butter into it as if for pie crust.

Break a cake of yeast into 1-4 cup of tepid water and when soft smooth it into a paste with a spoon, add to the milk, with sugar and enough of the flour to make a batter like thick cream.

Scoop a deep hole in the bowl of prepared flour, taking out a cupful for the top. Pour the thin sponge into the depression, scatter the cup of flour over the top, cover the pan, wrap to keep it warm through the night. Please note: there has been no mixing or kneading so far, and there must not be.

In the morning slip the hands into the dry flour at the side of the pan and work it into the wet sponge in the middle. You may use a spoon to do this if you care to. Then turn the dough onto the moulding board, knead well and roll out to the thickness of 1-2 inch. Cut in rounds, brush each round with melted butter, fasten half over, pinching well, and place in a buttered pan to rise. Allow a little space between the rolls for rising.

When very light bake in a hot oven, brushing the rolls with milk and melted butter just before they are done.

Of course there will be scraps, so let's make some butter rolls. Work up small bits, press out, put a little chunk of butter in middle, fold up, and set to rise in muffin tins, scoring tops with a knife.

Each Parker House Roll has a calory value of approximately 75.

Newly Married Couple Making Home in Orange

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hively have returned from a honeymoon trip to Big Bear to establish their home at 122 Clark street, Orange, following their marriage of Saturday, December 9, in First Methodist church chapel of this city.

Miss Roberta West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. West, West Edinger street, and Mr. Hively, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hively of Orange, were united at a quiet ceremony at 11 o'clock in the morning read by Dr. George A. Warmer, pastor of the church.

The bride wore a pretty crepe frock in a new shade of blue, with matching hat and a shoulder corsage of gardenias. Her sister, Mrs. Joe Irwin, as honor matron, chose a deep blue ensemble with a corsage cluster of delicate-hued rosebuds. Mr. Irwin was Mr. Hively's best man.

PRACTICAL HOUSE FROCK

Pattern 1661

By ANNE ADAMS

Here's the house dress every woman has been waiting for — it's made like an apron, looks like a frock, and is absolutely the most comfortable thing you've ever worn. Women swear by the reversible coat-like fronts that allow one to hide splashes in a jiffy, and they know how easy laundering can be when a garment will open out flat. A printed percale, gingham or other tubbable fabric would be perfect, and fashion the pretty flared collar of lawn or organdie. The new sewing Instructor is included with the pattern.

Pattern 1661 is available in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 16 takes 4 3-8 yards 36 inch fabric and 3-8 yard contrasting.

Young Couple to Make Honeymoon Home in Long Beach

Already domiciled in their home in Long Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Conkright are planning to return to this city for the Christmas observance in the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Frances Morris, 402 East Myrtle street.

Mrs. Conkright was Miss Alice Morris, her marriage to the former Orange resident having occurred Sunday, Dec. 10 in the bride chapel of First M. E. church. Four o'clock in the afternoon was set for the rites, for which the church was garlanded in pink and blue blossoms intertwined with feathery smilax and asparagus fern, and lighted with innumerable wax tapers.

Contributing to the beauty of the musical interval preceding the ceremony were violin solos played by Miss Emmalena Richards. Miss Lois Clement played the wedding marches, Wagner's for the processional, and Mendelssohn's for the recessional, whole Ray Archer accompanied Miss Richards.

Mr. Conkright, attended by his best man, Harold Chapman of Orange, stood at the altar with the Rev. Perry Frederick Schrock, pastor of First Congregational church, as the bride and her attendants approached.

Miss Morris was very lovely in her formal gown of larkspur blue taffeta whose long skirt swept in a pronounced train. Hat and slippers were in the same hue, and she carried a little muff of blue silk and waxen pink camellias. She moved to the altar on the arm of her brother, Ralph Morris, who gave her in marriage.

Miss Esther Loerch, maid of honor, wore satin in the most delicate posible tint of pink, with hat, slippers and dress accessories to harmonize, and carried a large cluster of pink sweet peas. Miss Lucille Morris, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Russell Baker of Los Angeles, sister of the bridegroom, completed the group with the two ushers, Messrs. Everett Conkright and Russell Baker. The girls wore pink taffeta frocks, fashioned exactly alike, and wide-brimmed pink taffeta hats. Each carried blue sweet peas.

Following the marriage service, Mr. and Mrs. Conkright and the bridal party were joined by the mothers of the two young people, Mrs. Frances Morris and Mrs. Lily Conkright, for a short reception hour in the church. Mrs. Morris wore a graceful gown of black chiffon velvet, and Mrs. Conkright was in soft black crepe with touches of emerald green. Each wore a corsage of gardenias.

For the formal reception, some thirty relatives and close friends gathered at the Morris home, where the pink and blue theme of the ceremony and church decorations, was repeated. The bride made a pretty ritual of cutting her cake to be served with other dainty refreshments.

Mrs. Conkright was born in Santa Ana and has spent her life here where she graduated from Polytechnic High school, later taking a secretarial position with E. M. Sundquist and Stanley Goode which she has held for the past four years. Her mother also is a native Californian, and has spent the greater part of her life in this city. Mr. Conkright graduated from Orange Union High school and has the management of an oil station in Long Beach, where the young people are established in a pretty Spanish home.

Junior Music Club

Stewart Gibson was leader at the latest meeting of the Junior Music club held in the home of Marie Stanton Eyerly, 501 South Van Ness avenue. Mildred Day, who was to have served in that capacity, was ill and unable to be present.

The program included piano numbers by De Lacy Cook, Richard Gibson, La Vonne Wells, Stewart Gibson, Ralph Tippin and Ruth Hawley. Ralph Tippin was winner in a musical game which followed.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Eyerly, with the assistance of Stewart Gibson.

Two Party Guests Find Special Plans for Their Birthdays

In a home that was gay with its bowls of cotoneaster and harmonizing holiday decorations, Mrs. Bess Simmons, 726 South Birch street, assembled a group of friends Saturday evening for a surprise celebration of the birthday anniversaries of Mrs. J. B. Stephenson and of Walter Henderson, both of which chanced to fall on that date.

Bridge and 500 offered entertainment during a part of the evening, with pretty prizes awarded by the hostess to winners in each event. But perhaps the most enjoyment was derived from a musical program, for Mr. Henderson, an accomplished pianist, is also a composer and played several of his own compositions. His daughter, Miss Joy Lee Henderson, gave other piano numbers, and with Messrs. Paul Simmons of the home, and Jack Ryan, sang several gay trios, and led in general singing of such old favorites as everyone knew.

Arranging the card tables around a long dining table bearing decorated birthday cakes, Mrs. Simmons completed her hospitality by serving a delicious refreshment menu which had as its climax, gift showers for the two honor guests. To Mrs. Stephenson was presented an assortment of lovely handkerchiefs, while Mr. Henderson received an equally desirable collection of socks.

Sharing the evening were Mrs. Anna Johnson and her daughter and son, Miss Trena and Tom Johnson, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nelson of La Mirada; Messrs. and Mesdames J. B. Stephenson, Harry Cook, Dick Terpstra, Beatty Crawford, Glenn Breeding, John Smith, Ray Boyd, Leslie Lawrence, Dean Laub, Mrs. C. B. Weekly, Mrs. Kirkpatrick, Miss Joy Lee Henderson, Messrs. Walter Henderson, Paul Simmons and Jack Ryan.

Homesteaders Lodge

Drill team members had charge of the meeting of Homesteaders Life association held recently in Hoffman hall. After seating the officers, the team put on initiatory work for two new members.

General arrangements were made for a Christmas observance. The next meeting is to be officers' night, with Harry Brookbank, past president, in charge. A report was read from President Harry Green of Des Moines, Ia., expressing his appreciation of a membership drive conducted in November, the month of his 20th anniversary as head of the company. P. A. Trickey, representative for the district, gave a report.

Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clayton and remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Breakfast

1 large orange sliced, no sugar
1-2 cup flaked cereal with
1-3 cup whole milk, no sugar
1 soft boiled egg with
1-2 tsp. butter
1 cup coffee with
1-4 cup hot skim milk, no sugar.

Calory total, 330.

Sugar is taboo on this menu, but you can always have saccharine, y'know. If cereal or coffee are unappetizing because of the sugar restriction a saccharine tablet crushed, takes the curse off the cereal (mix with the milk), likewise the coffee.

I have a new use for stale spice or devil's food cakes: I use them in chocolate ice-box cakes, and they are just worlds better than the tasteless little lady fingers. Particularly is this so if the cake has had dates in it (spice cake) or a rich chocolate frosting (devil's food).

TODAY'S RECIPE

Parker House Rolls

1 pint sweet milk, scalded and cooled
2 quarts sifted bread flour
3 Tbsps. butter
1 yeast cake dissolved
1-2 cup sugar
1 tsp. salt

Some time during the day scald a pint of milk and set it aside to cool.

Sift the 2 quarts of flour with salt, and rub the butter into it as if for pie crust.

Break a cake of yeast into 1-4 cup of tepid water and when soft smooth it into a paste with a spoon, add to the milk, with sugar and enough of the flour to make a batter like thick cream.

Scoop a deep hole in the bowl of prepared flour, taking out a cupful for the top. Pour the thin sponge into the depression, scatter the cup of flour over the top, cover the pan, wrap to keep it warm through the night. Please note: there has been no mixing or kneading so far, and there must not be.

In the morning slip the hands into the dry flour at the side of the pan and work it into the wet sponge in the middle. You may use a spoon to do this if you care to. Then turn the dough onto the moulding board, knead well and roll out to the thickness of 1-2 inch. Cut in rounds, brush each round with melted butter, fasten half over, pinching well, and place in a buttered pan to rise. Allow a little space between the rolls for rising.

When very light bake in a hot oven, brushing the rolls with milk and melted butter just before they are done.

The recipe makes 3 dozen.

Of course there will be scraps, so let's make some butter rolls. Work up small bits, press out, put a little chunk of butter in middle, fold up, and set to rise in muffin tins, scoring tops with a knife.

Each Parker House Roll has a calory value of approximately 75.

Friday: Ham Souffle, another good way to use scraps of baked ham.

Chamber, Legion Post Urge Embargo On Fish Of Aliens

HARBOR GROUPS ASK PRESIDENT TO TAKE ACTION

NEWPORT BEACH, Dec. 14.—An absolute embargo on fish brought into U. S. ports, unless the boats, owners, skippers and crews are all American, was urged today upon President Roosevelt by the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce and the Newport Harbor post of the American Legion.

Owing to the condition of the industry, and the low standard of living of many aliens now engaged in fishing on the Pacific coast, it is deemed by these organizations that this action is necessary, if the American standard of living, and particularly the NRA standard, is to be maintained.

Copies of a resolution passed yesterday by the local chamber of commerce are being sent to President Roosevelt, Senators Johnson and McAdoo and Congressman Sam Collins, representing the 19th district. Owing to the low standard of living of some aliens, Americans have been practically driven from the industry, the resolution said.

A similar resolution was passed by the American Legion here and both organizations hope that similar action will be taken by others.

Jackson Kendall and C. A. Strutt, of Pasadena, urged at yesterday's chamber meeting that a float be entered in the Tournament of Roses parade January 1 by this community and President Jordan of the chamber named J. A. Beek, J. A. Siegel and Irvin G. Gordon as a committee to report on the matter.

Siegel was also named chairman of a committee to act with committees named recently by the Orange County Coast association in the campaign to light up the coast during the Christmas season. The local chamber has donated one of the prizes to be offered in the campaign.

Chamber, Legion Post Urge Embargo On Fish Of Aliens

HARBOR GROUPS ASK PRESIDENT TO TAKE ACTION

NEWPORT BEACH, Dec. 14.—An absolute embargo on fish brought into U. S. ports, unless the boats, owners, skippers and crews are all American, was urged today upon President Roosevelt by the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce and the Newport Harbor post of the American Legion.

Owing to the condition of the industry, and the low standard of living of many aliens now engaged in fishing on the Pacific coast, it is deemed by these organizations that this action is necessary, if the American standard of living, and particularly the NRA standard, is to be maintained.

Copies of a resolution passed yesterday by the local chamber of commerce are being sent to President Roosevelt, Senators Johnson and McAdoo and Congressman Sam Collins, representing the 19th district. Owing to the low standard of living of some aliens, Americans have practically driven from the industry, the resolution said.

A similar resolution was passed by the American Legion here and both organizations hope that similar action will be taken by others.

Jackson Kendall and C. A. Strutt, of Pasadena, urged at yesterday's chamber meeting that a float be entered in the Tournament of Roses parade January 1 by this community and President Jordan of the chamber named J. A. Beek, J. A. Siegel and Irvin G. Gordon as a committee to report on the matter.

Siegel was also named chairman of a committee to act with committees named recently by the Orange County Coast association in the campaign to light up the coast during the Christmas season. The local chamber has donated one of the prizes to be offered in the campaign.

SAN CLEMENTE FORMS P.-T. A. DECEMBER 21

SAN CLEMENTE, Dec. 14. — Mrs. G. D. Marvin, of Anaheim, Fourth District P.-T. A. president, addressed the parents and those interested in the San Clemente schools, relative to reorganization of a parent-teacher association, at a meeting in the school auditorium Tuesday afternoon. A meeting was set for December 21 for the election of officers.

A nominating committee comprising Mrs. Roland Peterson, Mrs. Alex Gajeski, Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Ralph Johnston and Principal Floyd Lindsley was appointed. The new organization will supersede the Mothers' club, formed last year at the suggestion of Mr. Lindsley.

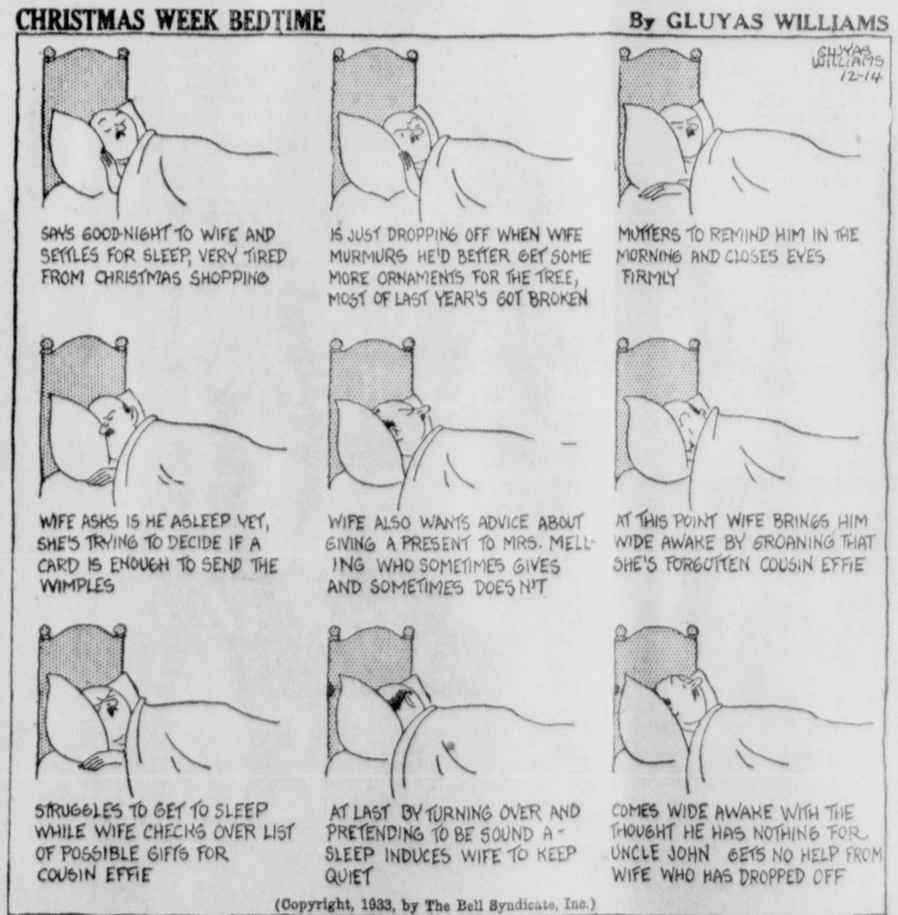

In a circular letter announcing the meeting, Mr. Lindsley stated he was satisfied with the work of the Mothers' club but "felt no school organization is complete without a full fledged co-operative P.-T. A. There is much to be gained from association with other clubs."

A musical program was a feature of the afternoon. There were several songs by the school, selections by the Glee club and Christmas songs by the intermediate room. A solo, "In the Garden," was sung by Robert Burhans with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Clara Berg.

Captain Thomas Drake, owner and pilot of "The Pilgrim," was present at the school gathering and spoke on "My Trip Around the World in a 35-foot Boat."

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KING

"Gee! You're a dandy traffic cop," cried Dotty. "All the autos stop when you turn that small semaphore. Hey, let me have a turn."

"Why, sure," said Coppy. "Here you are! Don't let the autos go too far. Just do exactly as I've done. It isn't hard to learn."

Just then ol' Santa walked up and exclaimed, "Who wants to lend a hand at putting dolls in boxes? I am picking them, right now.

"It really isn't hard to do. I'm calling, Lyds, for two of you. Decide among yourselves who'll come, but please don't start a row."

"Well, I can tell you right away," o' Santa heard wee Duncy say, "That job is not for me. I never play with dolls. No, sir!

"Now, Goldy is a little girl. Why don't you let her take a whirl? I'll bet she'd love to do it, 'cause 'twould be real fun for her."

Then Goldy jumped right up to That is our task. I love dolls, anyway.

"Off to the doll shop we are bound. We'll tuck the dolls in, safe and sound. It will not take us very long and it will be like play."

When they had disappeared from sight, brave Scouty cried, with all his might, "Ah, lads, I see some Boy Scout dolls and they give me a thrill.

"I'm going to take them from the shelf and see that they're all right, myself. Just watch me and you'll see how I can put them through a drill."

He put the Scout dolls on the floor, and soon the others heard him roar, "Now, forward march, you fine Boy Scouts. Walk straight as straight can be!"

He saw them march around and then he had to wind them up again. Said Coppy, "That's the nicest sight I ever hope to see."

PICKING a CHRISTMAS GIFT for FRIEND HUSBAND

By Mrs. Penrose Lyly

IT'S a wise wife who never lets her husband forget that she, for one, finds him physically attractive.

She knows, or for the sake of her own happiness, should know, that when a man begins to feel seedy and like an old house slipper, then he begins to act like an old house slipper. House slippers have their place, but they make tiresome life companions.

A man who is honestly proud of his masculine appearance, careful of his person, secretly convinced that he is not a bad-looking fellow, makes a far more satisfactory husband than a down-in-the-mouth creature who acts and feels as though he were no more than a slave for some extravagant woman. So now, with Christmas heading our way, why not take an afternoon off and look for a few gifts which will brighten father's eyes and make him throw out his chest? They really are not hard to find.

No, not socks, not handkerchiefs, not nice warm underwear! Why not get gay for once and give your favorite husband something which will seem almost indecently personal, something which will whisper that you find him quite a handsome and attractive devil and realize that he likes a few personal luxuries.

For example, there's a large, masculine-looking bottle of eau de cologne, with a grip for the hand—the same hand that grips the golf clubs or checks a spirited horse—in the middle and pasted across the front, on a gold strip are the reassuring words—"Men's Eau de Cologne."

This vigorous gift comes in a tailored brown box with a smart buff top. It's thrillingly suggestive, you see, and very much in the line of things every man secretly intends to buy for himself some day.

Then there is a Christmas set containing three personal items, handsomely boxed, and strikingly bottled. There is a tube of shaving cream in the center, the kind that needs no brush or rubbing; a hand-grip bottle of men's after shave powder, and a flask of men's eau de cologne.

Another set—and they are all within the price range of handkerchiefs and socks, remember—contains a smartly arranged combination of men's after shave lotion and a shaving bowl made of ivory-appearing composition, containing soap with lavender scent. All quite clubby, really, and personal enough to make Methuselah feel his oats.

The Prince of Wales, you know, dotes on lavender scent. In fact all well-groomed Englishmen use a little of it on their evening handkerchiefs, and many of them go in for pomade on the hair. Never, by any stretch of the imagination, could you call Englishmen effeminate.

One English house, noted for its lavender cosmetics, comes along with a few Christmas suggestions for the self-respecting male. They turn out an invisible talc and put it in an aluminum can with a gold sifter top which will add a stern and masculine note to any bureau top. Lavender? Why, of course.

They have an after shave lotion, too, and their shaving bowl is a winner of medals and male hussahs. The bowl is made of wood and the shaving soap is fragrant with the decidedly British scent we spoke of.

But your husband never uses anything like this! That may be because after you have bought all the cosmetics you think absolutely necessary, he hasn't money enough left to get anything better than kitchen soap for himself.

And one more thought on this Lavender and Brave Men theme. When you present him with some of these delightfully personal presents, try to look and act as though you had no intention in the world of using any of them yourself.

Lots of men, you know, pretend that they wouldn't have any use for this sort of thing—when, in the bottom of their hearts, they really have a strong yen for them. And Christmas gives you a fine chance to gratify that secret desire of your husband's.

There's Comfort In This New Dance Set

No matter how good a girl's line may be when she sits out a dance in the palm court, it's really the feminine lines that count when she is on the dance floor. This very feminine, very luxurious dance set is about as bewitching and as practical as you could expect.

It's made of dull-luster silk. The brassiere, closely fitted and with adjustable straps, is trimmed seductively with silk-corded imported lace. The back is of the low evening depth.

The step-ins have a firm lastex band around the waist which prevents the top from rolling over on itself. They, too, are trimmed with the imported lace, dark and alluring and expensive-looking.

And here's a point not to be overlooked for the maxixe enthusiast. The deep slit down the sides of the step-ins makes it possible for them to be invisibly brief, yet not binding.

Mrs. Penrose Lyly is glad to answer questions about her page. Send your queries to the editor of this newspaper, and make sure that each letter is accompanied by a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Sauces That Make A Meat Course Taste Better

SAUCES which make meat taste better serve also as definite parts of the meal. So in planning to use one of the following recipes, plan also to make the rest of your menu a little lighter than otherwise. After all, a sauce as good as these deserves lots of attention from the diners and doesn't appreciate too many other dishes on the table.

There can really be no honest-to-goodness winter without at least one chestnut dish. Try this sauce some cold night with steak or thick lamb or mutton chops. It's a blue ribbon dinner idea.

Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a large iron frying pan. Add 1 carrot and 1 small onion sliced fine. Brown. Then slowly stir in 3 tablespoons flour.

When the flour is all mixed up with the vegetables and thoroughly browned, slowly add 1½ cups of beef stock. Stir constantly. When it begins to boil, add 1 sprig parsley, ½ bay leaf, and salt and pepper.

Simmer 20 minutes. Then strain. Return to pan and add 3 tablespoons Madeira wine, 1 tablespoon butter and 1 cup boiled, shelled and chopped chestnuts. Heat and serve.

How does it sound? Well, it tastes just as handsome.

Cranberries, of course, both for color and seasonal excitement. Try them spiced for a change and see what spiced cranberries do to a roast, whether it be turkey or beef.

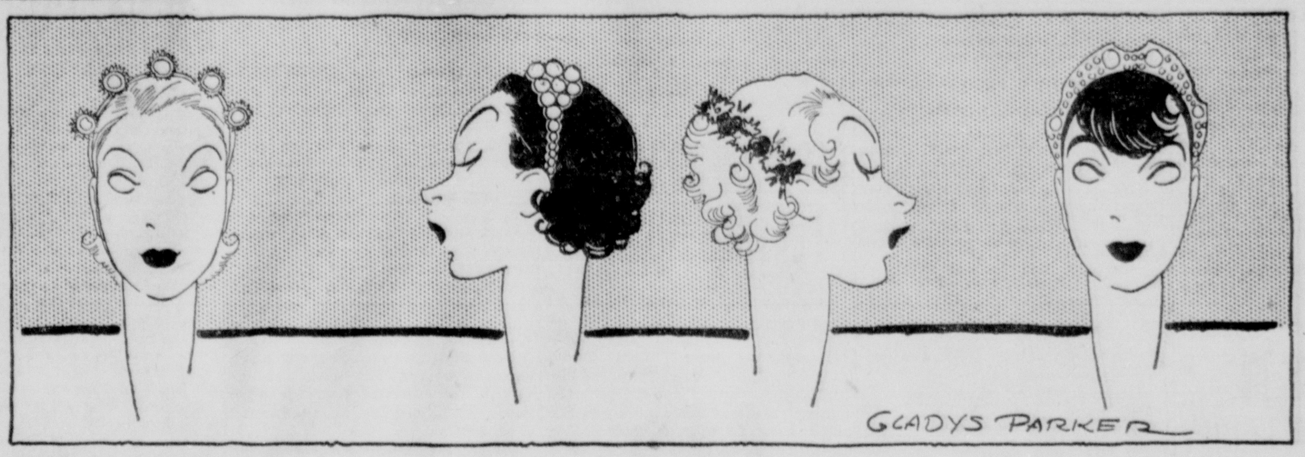

PICK over and wash 1 quart cranberries. Put in saucepan and add 1 cup boiling water, 1 stick cinnamon, 4 whole cloves, and a shake of allspice. Boil until berries are soft. Mash through a sieve. Then to the strained cranberries add ¼ cup cold vinegar, 2 cups brown sugar and a few grains of salt. Bring to boil and simmer 15 minutes. Turn into mold and chill.

Onion sauce, properly made, will put courage in the most discouraged of hearts. It's really a vegetable and starch dish all in one and should be regarded as a major contribution to the meal. So go easy on other things when you serve this.

Melt 3 tablespoons butter in a large iron frying pan. Add 1 large onion chopped fine. Brown delicately. Dust with 1 teaspoon celery salt, a shake of nutmeg, salt, pepper and a little paprika. Then add 2 tablespoons flour.

Mix well, and when the flour begins to brown, slowly stir in 1 cup sour cream. When all these things are friendly and smooth with each other, slowly stir in 1¼ cups hot water. Simmer for 20 minutes, then add ¾ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. There's a friend to any roast.

IF YOU WANT TO BE STATELY, PUT ON A TIARA

THE tiara is rapidly gaining an enormous following for formal evening wear.

With a simple gown, nothing is more effective. The tiara not only adds height and glamour, but also lends stateliness and dignity to the gayest young person.

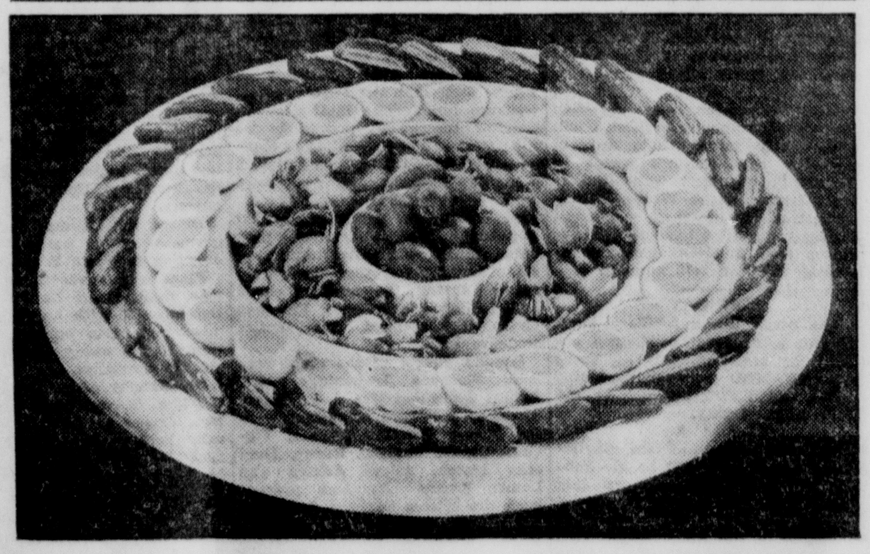

At the left of the sketch, large, flat gold roundels edged in tiny points are used at intervals on a narrow gold band encircling the top of the head.

Second from the left, graduated pearls form a rather flat tiara banding the top of the head. This is most effective with black hair.

Next to it, glass flowers form a rather neat arrangement used in pastel colors on blond curls.

At the extreme right there is a queenly tiara of silver, studded with jewels of varied sizes.

FOR INFORMAL ENTERTAINING

THE Relish Rosette shown in the photograph should make a delightful gift to the woman who goes in for easy and informal entertaining.

It consists of several circles of grooves, all in one piece of attractive light metal.

Behold what the guest will receive with a small glass of beverage before dinner is announced—a circle of assorted pickles, then a band of hard-cooked and stuffed eggs followed by a wide band of flowered radishes which have been soaked for half an hour in salted ice water to make them crisp.

In the dead center lies a mass of assorted olives. Now the grand part is this—when a guest selects a few of these hors d'oeuvres he doesn't have to disarrange all the other hors d'oeuvres and become covered with confusion.

How Russian Law Gives Women Equality

THE change in attitude of the United States toward the Soviet Union has caused many American women to wonder how their Russian sisters fare under modern Russian law.

"Russians boast that we regard women the equals of men in all things before the law," says F. E. Nurina, the only woman member of the Collegium of the Commissariat of Justice. "But in one respect, we must admit, the law is weighted in favor of women. It recognizes the preferential right of the mother over the child.

"That means that the position of the Russian woman in regard to her children is different from that in the legal systems prevailing in many countries. In most cases outside Russia, a woman has no legal rights over her child.

"In Russian industry, the policy of equal rights for women is strikingly carried out. Equal pay for men and women is established by law. All professions and trades are open to women.

"And a woman is not allowed to be handicapped by motherhood. Our laws establish the right of all women in industry to four months leave for childbirth. Furthermore, after her child is born and she has returned to work, she is entitled to half an hour's interval every three and a half hours for nursing her child."

PICKING a CHRISTMAS GIFT for FRIEND HUSBAND

There's Comfort In This New Dance Set

ARE you all ready for that round of holiday dances? Better not wait for Santa Claus to slip the dance set shown in the photo into your hopeful stocking. Better make it yourself from a smart pattern, or else trot downtown and buy it.

No matter how good a girl's line may be when she sits out a dance in the palm court, it's really the feminine lines that count when she is on the dance floor. This very feminine, very luxurious dance set is about as bewitching and as practical as you could expect.

It's made of dull-luster silk. The brassiere, closely fitted and with adjustable straps, is trimmed seductively with silk-corded imported lace. The back is of the low evening depth.

The step-ins have a firm lastex band around the waist which prevents the top from rolling over on itself. They, too, are trimmed with the imported lace, dark and alluring and expensive-looking.

And here's a point not to be overlooked for the maxixe enthusiast. The deep slit down the sides of the step-ins makes it possible for them to be invisibly brief, yet not binding.

Mrs. Penrose Lyly is glad to answer questions about her page. Send your queries to the editor of this newspaper, and make sure that each letter is accompanied by a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

By Mrs. Penrose Lyly

IT'S a wise wife who never lets her husband forget that she, for one, finds him physically attractive.

She knows, or for the sake of her own happiness, should know, that when a man begins to feel seedy and like an old house slipper, then he begins to act like an old house slipper. House slippers have their place, but they make tiresome life companions.

A man who is honestly proud of his masculine appearance, careful of his person, secretly convinced that he is not a bad-looking fellow, makes a far more satisfactory husband than a down-in-the-mouth creature who acts and feels as though he were no more than a slave for some extravagant woman. So now, with Christmas heading our way, why not take an afternoon off and look for a few gifts which will brighten father's eyes and make him throw out his chest? They really are not hard to find.

No, not socks, not handkerchiefs, not nice warm underwear! Why not get gay for once and give your favorite husband something which will seem almost indecently personal, something which will whisper that you find him quite a handsome and attractive devil and realize that he likes a few personal luxuries.

For example, there's a large, masculine-looking bottle of eau de cologne, with a grip for the hand—the same hand that grips the golf clubs or checks a spirited horse—in the middle and pasted across the front, on a gold strip are the reassuring words—"Men's Eau de Cologne."

This vigorous gift comes in a tailored brown box with a smart buff top. It's thrillingly suggestive, you see, and very much in the line of things every man secretly intends to buy for himself some day.

Then there is a Christmas set containing three personal items, handsomely boxed, and strikingly bottled. There is a tube of shaving cream in the center, the kind that needs no brush or rubbing; a hand-grip bottle of men's after shave powder, and a flask of men's eau de cologne.

Another set—and they are all within the price range of handkerchiefs and socks, remember—contains a smartly arranged combination of men's after shave lotion and a shaving bowl made of ivory-appearing composition, containing soap with lavender scent. All quite clubby, really, and personal enough to make Methuselah feel his oats.

The Prince of Wales, you know, dotes on lavender scent. In fact all well-groomed Englishmen use a little of it on their evening handkerchiefs, and many of them go in for pomade on the hair. Never, by any stretch of the imagination, could you call Englishmen effeminate.

One English house, noted for its lavender cosmetics, comes along with a few Christmas suggestions for the self-respecting male. They turn out an invisible talc and put it in an aluminum can with a gold sifter top which will add a stern and masculine note to any bureau top. Lavender? Why, of course.

They have an after shave lotion, too, and their shaving bowl is a winner of medals and male hussahs. The bowl is made of wood and the shaving soap is fragrant with the decidedly British scent we spoke of.

But your husband never uses anything like this! That may be because after you have bought all the cosmetics you think absolutely necessary, he hasn't money enough left to get anything better than kitchen soap for himself.

And one more thought on this Lavender and Brave Men theme. When you present him with some of these delightfully personal presents, try to look and act as though you had no intention in the world of using any of them yourself.

Lots of men, you know, pretend that they wouldn't have any use for this sort of thing—when, in the bottom of their hearts, they really have a strong yen for them. And Christmas gives you a fine chance to gratify that secret desire of your husband's.

Sauces That Make A Meat Course Taste Better

SAUCES which make meat taste better serve also as definite parts of the meal. So in planning to use one of the following recipes, plan also to make the rest of your menu a little lighter than otherwise. After all, a sauce as good as these deserves lots of attention from the diners and doesn't appreciate too many other dishes on the table.

There can really be no honest-to-goodness winter without at least one chestnut dish. Try this sauce some cold night with steak or thick lamb or mutton chops. It's a blue ribbon dinner idea.

Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a large iron frying pan. Add 1 carrot and 1 small onion sliced fine. Brown. Then slowly stir in 3 tablespoons flour.

When the flour is all mixed up with the vegetables and thoroughly browned, slowly add 1½ cups of beef stock. Stir constantly. When it begins to boil, add 1 sprig parsley, ½ bay leaf, and salt and pepper.

Simmer 20 minutes. Then strain. Return to pan and add 3 tablespoons Madeira wine, 1 tablespoon butter and 1 cup boiled, shelled and chopped chestnuts. Heat and serve.

How does it sound? Well, it tastes just as handsome.

Cranberries, of course, both for color and seasonal excitement. Try them spiced for a change and see what spiced cranberries do to a roast, whether it be turkey or beef.

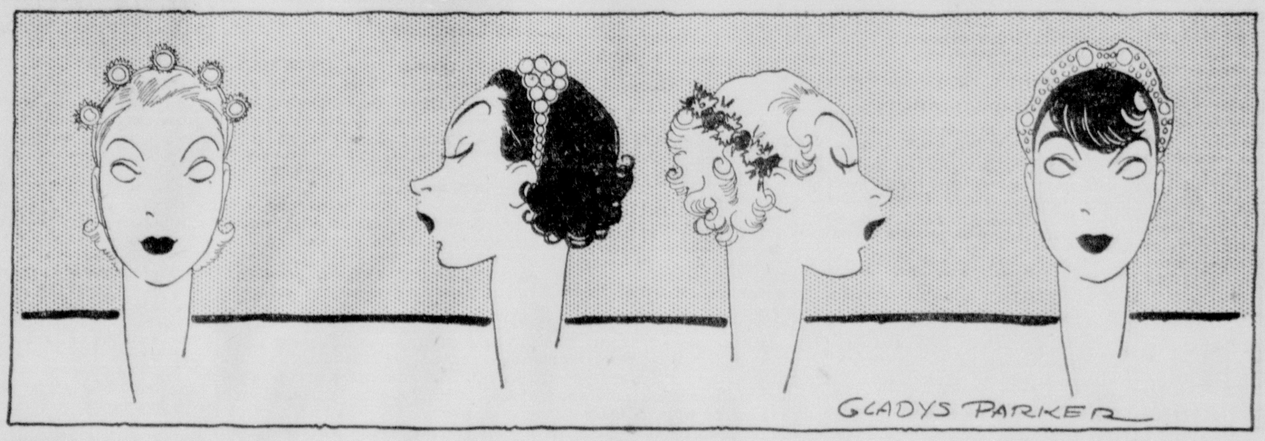

PICK over and wash 1 quart cranberries. Put in saucepan and add 1 cup boiling water, 1 stick cinnamon, 4 whole cloves, and a shake of allspice. Boil until berries are soft. Mash through a sieve. Then to the strained cranberries add ¼ cup cold vinegar, 2 cups brown sugar and a few grains of salt. Bring to boil and simmer 15 minutes. Turn into mold and chill.

Onion sauce, properly made, will put courage in the most discouraged of hearts. It's really a vegetable and starch dish all in one and should be regarded as a major contribution to the meal. So go easy on other things when you serve this.

Melt 3 tablespoons butter in a large iron frying pan. Add 1 large onion chopped fine. Brown delicately. Dust with 1 teaspoon celery salt, a shake of nutmeg, salt, pepper and a little paprika. Then add 2 tablespoons flour.

Mrs. W. A. Marymee was honored at a surprise stork shower planned by the group. Gifts were arranged in a cradle prettily decorated in pink and blue.

Three Pledges Become Sorority Members At Ceremony

Three pledges, the Misses Martha Tadlock, Carol Smith and Charlene Kyte were initiated into Pi Theta Chi sorority Monday night at formal ceremonies conducted at 9 o'clock in the home of Miss Lucille Crawford on Grand avenue.

Brightened with roses and cotoneaster, and lighted with many tapers, the home provided an appropriate setting for the event. Miss Dorothy Johnson, president, conducted the ceremony, presenting each of the pledges with a corsage of gardenias.

Refreshments were served at a large table centered with cotoneaster. Individual lace doilies were used, and clever dolls marked each place.

Those present, other than the Misses Tadlock, Smith and Kyte, were Martha Sharpley, Lucille Crawford, Grace Middlebrook, Betty Niedergall, Mary Louise Niedergall, Mary Alice White, Dorothy Johnson and Lorene Shipe, the adviser.

The sorority will have an annual holiday dance December 27 at the Roosevelt hotel in Hollywood.

LIQUOR VENDORS CONTINUE TO PROTEST TAX

We hate to continue to comment upon the liquor issue, but there is more news upon this, and more changes and suggestions, than there is on any other item of public interest in the nation. And, in the light of the changes, suggestions should be made.

We commented two days ago upon the proposal to compete with the bootlegger for business by reducing prices. May we call attention to the fact that the liquor crowd, those who manufacture and sell it, are extremely anxious to reduce the tax, in order that they may sell more of their product. Any additional price that they can get from the consumer that would go into their pocket, they would hardly object to, but of course increased prices always reduce sales. If the increased price goes in the way of tax, the sales are reduced without any increase to the manufacturer or seller.

It is so much more popular for the manufacturer to have somebody else "pull his chestnuts out of the fire," than it is for him to come out in the open and do it himself. Instead of his coming out boldly and rawly, declaring that he wants to increase his sales, and therefore wants to decrease the tax, and he is working for his own interest, he says: "The fight is against the bootlegger, and in the interest of law and order, we want to decrease the tax. Make it more difficult for the bootlegger. Drive the bootlegger out. Reduce the tax and you reduce the bootlegger." He might say: "Well, reduce the tax and you increase our sales. Reduce the tax and you increase any sales. Reduce the tax and more people buy, and they buy more. Reduce the tax and drunkenness will probably increase."

It is very rarely that the people who are interested, give the real reasons for their activity. It is a very strange thing that the people, who are so anxious to head off the bootlegger, are the fellows who are anxious to get liquor into the hands of the consumer. When liquor was illegal, the same group was defending and encouraging the bootlegger.

It is a fight between the two classes of liquor sellers for the people's dollars, and the one is working under the slogan of "patriotism" to "get his." The experience we used to have was that the bootleggers in the "dry" towns had back of them the brewers and distillers. As we have no "dry" towns in California, it is different now. But if and when we do, you will find the "bootleg" liquor will be shipped in by the otherwise legal manufacturer, unless the "leopard changes his spots and the Ethiopian his skin."

DISPENSING SOAP TO PUBLIC SPEAKERS

A columnist, signing himself Quintius Quiz, relates a story of the Rev. "Dick" Sheppard, the very popular rector of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields in London. He was to speak before the king, and when he went into the pulpit he found he had mislaid his notes. They had been dropped alongside the service paper prepared for the use of the king. The first note on the memorandum read, "Loyal and sincere gratitude to H. M., but no soap."

The king was a good sport, and appreciated the reference. A public speaker who is naturally modest must be offended many times when some voluble, but rather insincere, presiding officer pictures him as a marvel, or a great expert, or a mighty genius, when he knows down deep in his heart that he is just the ordinary garden variety of a man. It is a piece of the practice indulged in by petty attorneys who make heroes or saints of their criminal clients. The story has been told of one of these clients whose lawyer was summing up for the defense. As he drew the picture of a fine gentleman, a noble spirit, the defendant whispered to one of his relatives, "Who is he talking about?"

The flattery of presiding officers is well meant, and a certain amount of it may be tolerable, but when it runs into nauseating soft soap, the real modest speaker knows it is not so; or his audience, if they were not gentlemen, would be inclined to say, "Blah, Blah." A reform of introductory speeches at banquets and on public occasions is quite as imperative as a new deal in politics and economics.

Perhaps an allowance should be made for the kindly, friendly presiding officer whose heart on occasions runs away with his judgment. A story is told of Phillips Brooks, one of our most celebrated of American preachers of a generation ago. When he was consecrated as bishop of his diocese, a banquet was given to him by all the ministers of the city of Boston. The presiding officer was one of Boston's most distinguished clergymen. He naturally introduced Phillips Brooks with great fulsomeness, all of which on that occasion was deserved. In his reply, the distinguished bishop said, "I know that all the fine things Dr. Herrick has said about me are not true. But it is delightful to know that he thinks they are true." In that case there happened to be sincerity and truth on the part of the presiding officer and a fine modesty on the part of the distinguished bishop.

As a general rule, however, the words of "Dick" Sheppard are commended to all presiding officers in the introduction of speakers, "Loyal and sincere gratitude to his Majesty, but no soap."

SUGGEST MERGING COMMUNICATION FACTORS

It is noticed that a wire unity is suggested. It is planned that, in some manner, the methods of communication, represented by the radio, telephone and telegraph, shall be under some strict governmental control.

It is time this was done. The broadcasting stations, particularly the small ones, are terrifically handicapped by conditions as they are at present. They are dependent upon the telephone systems, and the telephone systems charge such high prices for connections and rentals that the small broadcasting stations, if they are doing very much remote control work, are working "their heads off" to turn money over to the telephone companies.

The telegraph companies do supply wires and have helped cut the price down very greatly. With the monopoly that has been created through the public utilities, there ought to be a protection for those who could use such service as the broadcasting companies.

With the development of broadcasting in various ways, those owning rights now and who are dictating may have competition in the future, that will put them in a position, where they are putting the broadcasting companies now. But the government, a part of which we all are, and which is endeavoring to act justly, should work this and other problems out in relation to these means of communication.

LYNCHING A CRIME AGAINST STATE

Some of the people in San Jose, we notice, object to the Civil Liberties' Union taking up the matter of the lynching in that city. They say it should be left to local authorities.

We would remind the people of San Jose that San Jose is a part of the state of California. The crime was not committed against the people of San Jose, but against the state, and the rights and interests of every other citizen were affected by the denial of rights in that episode.

One of the difficulties in this whole crime mania has been the thought that the crime affects only those people who suffer personally because of the particular act. It was the restraints and protection of society that were invaded, the society of the state and even of the nation. When these two men were hung, the majesty of the state of California was hung. Justice was flaunted.

We imagine that the people who are making these objections have not thought this thing through clearly.

Riverside Daily Press

Passing a big truck on the highway is one of those problems which the average driver does not know just how to solve. Now comes a French inventor with a device which has been adopted in France and seemed to have solved the problem.

It is an "electric eye" which is placed on the back of a truck. When a following automobile blinks its headlights, the signal is carried forward to the driver, who thereupon is supposed to move over.

We have watched the electric eye open garage doors, turn on the lights in the garage, and so forth, but this idea of the Frenchman is something all of us have prayed for on numerous and sundry occasions.

It may not work in France. Everybody there, according to a French traveler, who recently visited that country, insists on driving in the middle of the road. Some do in this country, you know. But it ought to work here.

Our truck drivers, on the whole, are accommodating. They move as far to the right as they can with safety when they know somebody wants to pass. It is hard for them to see behind, with trucks and trailers grown to such a freight-train size.

If they wouldn't obey an electric-eye signal, there certainly would be a new argument for barring freight trains from the highways.

Health and Vitamins

New York Times

When the late Dr. Alfred Hess, with other investigators in the same field, established a connection between cod-liver oil and ultra-violet rays, it was one more example of the way in which the science of organic chemistry has recently been vindicating the immemorial wisdom of the race. Without the slightest knowledge of vitamins early man got on to the truth that cod liver builds bone and tissue, that fruits and green vegetables are the answer to scurvy, and that milk is the most ideal of foods.

We are unfair to our distant ancestors in remembering chiefly their superstitions and forgetting their permanent discoveries. We remember that savages try to cure the sick by beating on tomtoms to drive away the devils of disease, and swallow powdered mummy philtres to stave off blindness. But we are not so ready to remember the vast contributions of their medicine men and their wise women to the modern pharmacopoeia.

Entire philosophies of religion have been based on primitive man's fear of the dark. But perhaps it is not so much fear of the dark as a great hunger for sunshine. Early sun-worship may have been less due to fear of devils than to an instinctive appreciation of ultra-violet rays.

For the Mexicans

Hollywood Citizen-News

With the holding of a Presidential election in Mexico next year the citizens of that country will be asked to approve a program of intensive economic nationalism.

The program, known as the "Six-Year Plan," is now being completed by President Rodriguez with the support of ex-President Calles, "strong man" of Mexican politics.

The trend toward economic self-sufficiency in Mexico can be traced to the fact that for years the greater part of Mexico's vast supply of natural resources has been extensively exploited by foreign interests with great foreign profit.

Only a scant proportion of the wealth taken from the ground has remained in Mexico, and despite low taxes on foreign capital, local labor has for the most part been forced to accept starvation wages.

Mexico's policy may prove injurious to some American corporations and investors. But since it was American business that did much of the greedy exploiting of Mexican resources in the past, the leaders of this business have only themselves to blame.

At the North Pole

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

ATTENTION: S. CLAUS

Put on a fresh team of deer,
Then over the snowdrifts and forth and away—
You have got to be busy this year.
You may fancy, perhaps, you're in need of a rest
From sliding down flue after flue,
But this is the time for the sleigh bells to chime,
And there'll be no vacation for you.

Hunt out the tenements, seek for the cots
In the dull, grimy factory town,
Write down the names of the blizzard-swept spots
Where the wolf grimly stalks up and down
Bring hope to the hopeless, bring laughter and light
As down from the heavens you fare,
Till the bells that ring out as you hurry about
Bring relief from distress and despair.

You well are assured of a welcome today
Wherever your journey may lead;
Here, there and yonder, and over the way
You will meet with the spectre of Need.
Whenever you wander, wherever you pause
As you travel along through the night,
You will not fail to hear, as you scatter fresh cheer
The shouts that betoken delight.

So let the old blizzard howl loud as it may,
Let the frost pictures cleave to the pane,
Let the snow in the shadows lie somber and gray
Where the winds sweep the long country lane.
Warm up the fleet reindeer that patiently wait
In their pasture far up beyond Nome,
Then forth and away in your well laden sleigh—
This year you just cannot stay home.

Remembering the Forgotten Man

By Perry Frederick Schrock

I was a dinner guest, recently, where Upton Sinclair was the guest of honor. As we took our places at the table our host requested me to "say grace," which I did. I did the conventional thing—thanked God for the gift of food and fellowship and asked His blessing upon us. It was sincere enough but terribly conventional and orthodox. After the ceremony was over Mr. Sinclair said to me: "I once wrote a socialist grace and I want to give it to you; you might like to use it some time." I expressed my interest, of course, and he repeated the following grace: "To the service of those whose unrequited toil has made possible this food, we dedicate the energy that we received from it."

These words made a great impression on me. I have thought about them a great deal. We are indebted to those who toil, as much as we are to our Creator, for the food that comes to our tables. We have remembered God but not those who have joined their toil with Him to provide the food. It would be just as appropriate to remember the toiler when we partake of food as it is to remember the Creator.

But unless our grace to the forgotten man leads us to a more substantial way of remembering the toiler, it is not going to do him, or us, any particular good. President Roosevelt used the forgotten man as a campaign slogan. You and I ought to use him as a guiding principle in our social thinking and activity. Those who toil comprise the larger part of the population. What is good for the forgotten man is quite likely to be for the good of all—for the common good. It ought to be our concern that the new economic setup that is likely to emerge out of our present chaotic condition shall remember the people we forgot when we have said grace at our tables. When we go to the polls, whether to elect a high official or to vote on bonds, we ought to go with the purpose that our vote is in the interest of the common good and not merely in the interest of some small group or some small section. When we are confronted by a critical issue, such as the attitude we ought to take on the lynching of kidnapers, the thing that ought to guide us in our thinking and action is the common good. What is the effect of mob violence on the welfare of the great mass of people Are we hurting or helping those who toil by approving lawlessness and brutality? When we come to the Christmas season we ought to remember those who toil. It will not be enough to contribute some food and cast off garments with a discarded toy for the kiddies. We ought to solemnly dedicate our influence and our energy, to the bringing in of an order of living that will enable those who toil to provide their own food and clothing and toys; an order of living that will be an expression of peace, goodwill and justice among men on earth.

Perhaps remembering the forgotten man when we "say grace" might help us remember him in these larger and more substantial ways.

GOOD ENGLISH SPEECH

It is important that children learn to speak well. That means that they learn to choose their words, to utter them clearly, to express meaning in simple direct speech. Desirable as this seems to us it is less so to the children. They are accustomed to hearing all sorts of speech, on the streets, in care and trains and boats, on the wharves, in the movies, all about them. Speech follows activity and children and activity are about synonymous. Hearing dramatic, picturesque talk they adopt it as their own. Then we have to put the whole power of example and family influence on the other side.

Children imitate speech. The first they hear is that of the family. Mother sets the first words, tones, inflections, in the speech of the child. The rest of the family come after her. As the family talk the children talk. They gather words and phrases from outside but these will be after thoughts, embroideries, on the basic fabric. The speech that remains with him always is that which he got from his people.

The best time to learn language is during the first five or six years. Then language power is at high tide. The mind is eager for new words, new ideas and ways of expressing them. This is the time to set a good taste on and in his tongue. Teach him good poetry, fine prose. Select the simplest words in the beginning and keep adding to them as the years pass. Help the child acquire a fine vocabulary by selecting bits of good writing for his enjoyment. Use as good English as you can master in his hearing.

Why all this trouble about so simple a matter as speech? Because speech is an index to mental quality, to character, to social achievement. Speech classifies one as clearly as a uniform might. Speak that I may know you, shadows a mighty truth.

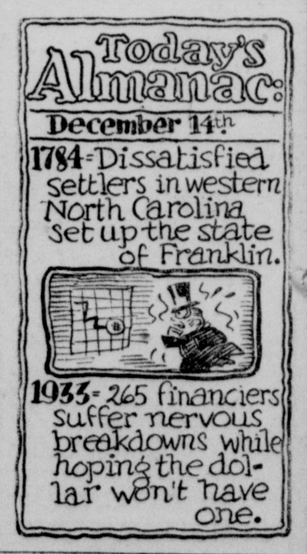

Children like to use slang. Some slang creeps into every language and becomes a part of it. Here the rule ought to be the old one, never be the first nor yet the last, to adopt the new. Children can afford to be conservative in their speech. There is a whole lifetime ahead of them in which to choose what they shall say. While they are learning to talk it is better for them to use the accepted words.

This is against playground practice. There it is the thing to use slang, adopt strange phrases, weird intonations, queer inflections. When a child uses good English one of the picturesque talkers will deride him and call him Sissy and Susie. Then it takes all that home and school can do to maintain the standard. No child likes to be singled out for his good deeds even when they are no more than correct words used in their right places.

Be content with a child's speech if it is clear and fairly correct. Don't try to teach him big words. The easy simple ones are better. It is easier for him to say glad than it is to say delighted, easier to say got than received, left than remained, busy than preoccupied. Don't waste time and energy upon building up a vocabulary of four storied words. But do try to cultivate in him a love for, and appreciation of, good speech.

(Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing a three-cent stamped addressed envelope for reply.)

LIQUOR VENDORS CONTINUE TO PROTEST TAX

We hate to continue to comment upon the liquor issue, but there is more news upon this, and more changes and suggestions, than there is on any other item of public interest in the nation. And, in the light of the changes, suggestions should be made.

We commented two days ago upon the proposal to compete with the bootlegger for business by reducing prices. May we call attention to the fact that the liquor crowd, those who manufacture and sell it, are extremely anxious to reduce the tax, in order that they may sell more of their product. Any additional price that they can get from the consumer that would go into their pocket, they would hardly object to, but of course increased prices always reduce sales. If the increased price goes in the way of tax, the sales are reduced without any increase to the manufacturer or seller.

It is so much more popular for the manufacturer to have somebody else "pull his chestnuts out of the fire," than it is for him to come out in the open and do it himself. Instead of his coming out boldly and rawly, declaring that he wants to increase his sales, and therefore wants to decrease the tax, and he is working for his own interest, he says: "The fight is against the bootlegger, and in the interest of law and order, we want to decrease the tax. Make it more difficult for the bootlegger. Drive the bootlegger out. Reduce the tax and you reduce the bootlegger." He might say: "Well, reduce the tax and you increase our sales. Reduce the tax and you increase any sales. Reduce the tax and more people buy, and they buy more. Reduce the tax and drunkenness will probably increase."

It is very rarely that the people who are interested, give the real reasons for their activity. It is a very strange thing that the people, who are so anxious to head off the bootlegger, are the fellows who are anxious to get liquor into the hands of the consumer. When liquor was illegal, the same group was defending and encouraging the bootlegger.

It is a fight between the two classes of liquor sellers for the people's dollars, and the one is working under the slogan of "patriotism" to "get his." The experience we used to have was that the bootleggers in the "dry" towns had back of them the brewers and distillers. As we have no "dry" towns in California, it is different now. But if and when we do, you will find the "bootleg" liquor will be shipped in by the otherwise legal manufacturer, unless the "leopard changes his spots and the Ethiopian his skin."

DISPENSING SOAP TO PUBLIC SPEAKERS

A columnist, signing himself Quintius Quiz, relates a story of the Rev. "Dick" Sheppard, the very popular rector of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields in London. He was to speak before the king, and when he went into the pulpit he found he had mislaid his notes. They had been dropped alongside the service paper prepared for the use of the king. The first note on the memorandum read, "Loyal and sincere gratitude to H. M., but no soap."

The king was a good sport, and appreciated the reference. A public speaker who is naturally modest must be offended many times when some voluble, but rather insincere, presiding officer pictures him as a marvel, or a great expert, or a mighty genius, when he knows down deep in his heart that he is just the ordinary garden variety of a man. It is a piece of the practice indulged in by petty attorneys who make heroes or saints of their criminal clients. The story has been told of one of these clients whose lawyer was summing up for the defense. As he drew the picture of a fine gentleman, a noble spirit, the defendant whispered to one of his relatives, "Who is he talking about?"

The flattery of presiding officers is well meant, and a certain amount of it may be tolerable, but when it runs into nauseating soft soap, the real modest speaker knows it is not so; or his audience, if they were not gentlemen, would be inclined to say, "Blah, Blah." A reform of introductory speeches at banquets and on public occasions is quite as imperative as a new deal in politics and economics.

Perhaps an allowance should be made for the kindly, friendly presiding officer whose heart on occasions runs away with his judgment. A story is told of Phillips Brooks, one of our most celebrated of American preachers of a generation ago. When he was consecrated as bishop of his diocese, a banquet was given to him by all the ministers of the city of Boston. The presiding officer was one of Boston's most distinguished clergymen. He naturally introduced Phillips Brooks with great fulsomeness, all of which on that occasion was deserved. In his reply, the distinguished bishop said, "I know that all the fine things Dr. Herrick has said about me are not true. But it is delightful to know that he thinks they are true." In that case there happened to be sincerity and truth on the part of the presiding officer and a fine modesty on the part of the distinguished bishop.

As a general rule, however, the words of "Dick" Sheppard are commended to all presiding officers in the introduction of speakers, "Loyal and sincere gratitude to his Majesty, but no soap.'

SUGGEST MERGING COMMUNICATION FACTORS

It is noticed that a wire unity is suggested. It is planned that, in some manner, the methods of communication, represented by the radio, telephone and telegraph, shall be under some strict governmental control.

It is time this was done. The broadcasting stations, particularly the small ones, are terrifically handicapped by conditions as they are at present. They are dependent upon the telephone systems, and the telephone systems charge such high prices for connections and rentals that the small broadcasting stations, if they are doing very much remote control work, are working "their heads off" to turn money over to the telephone companies.

The telegraph companies do supply wires and have helped cut the price down very greatly. With the monopoly that has been created through the public utilities, there ought to be a protection for those who could use such service as the broadcasting companies.

With the development of broadcasting in various ways, those owning rights now and who are dictating may have competition in the future, that will put them in a position, where they are putting the broadcasting companies now. But the government, a part of which we all are, and which is endeavoring to act justly, should work this and other problems out in relation to these means of communication.

LYNCHING A CRIME AGAINST STATE

Some of the people in San Jose, we notice, object to the Civil Liberties' Union taking up the matter of the lynching in that city. They say it should be left to local authorities.

We would remind the people of San Jose that San Jose is a part of the state of California. The crime was not committed against the people of San Jose, but against the state, and the rights and interests of every other citizen were affected by the denial of rights in that episode.

One of the difficulties in this whole crime mania has been the thought that the crime affects only those people who suffer personally because of the particular act. It was the restraints and protection of society that were invaded, the society of the state and even of the nation. When these two men were hung, the majesty of the state of California was hung. Justice was flaunted.

We imagine that the people who are making these objections have not thought this thing through clearly.

Riverside Daily Press

Passing a big truck on the highway is one of those problems which the average driver does not know just how to solve. Now comes a French inventor with a device which has been adopted in France and seemed to have solved the problem.

It is an "electric eye" which is placed on the back of a truck. When a following automobile blinks its headlights, the signal is carried forward to the driver, who thereupon is supposed to move over.

We have watched the electric eye open garage doors, turn on the lights in the garage, and so forth, but this idea of the Frenchman is something all of us have prayed for on numerous and sundry occasions.

It may not work in France. Everybody there, according to a French traveler, who recently visited that country, insists on driving in the middle of the road. Some do in this country, you know. But it ought to work here.

Our truck drivers, on the whole, are accommodating. They move as far to the right as they can with safety when they know somebody wants to pass. It is hard for them to see behind, with trucks and trailers grown to such a freight-train size.

If they wouldn't obey an electric-eye signal, there certainly would be a new argument for barring freight trains from the highways.

Health and Vitamins

New York Times

When the late Dr. Alfred Hess, with other investigators in the same field, established a connection between cod-liver oil and ultra-violet rays, it was one more example of the way in which the science of organic chemistry has recently been vindicating the immemorial wisdom of the race. Without the slightest knowledge of vitamins early man got on to the truth that cod liver builds bone and tissue, that fruits and green vegetables are the answer to scurvy, and that milk is the most ideal of foods.

We are unfair to our distant ancestors in remembering chiefly their superstitions and forgetting their permanent discoveries. We remember that savages try to cure the sick by beating on tomtoms to drive away the devils of disease, and swallow powdered mummy philtres to stave off blindness. But we are not so ready to remember the vast contributions of their medicine men and their wise women to the modern pharmacopoeia.

Entire philosophies of religion have been based on primitive man's fear of the dark. But perhaps it is not so much fear of the dark as a great hunger for sunshine. Early sun-worship may have been less due to fear of devils than to an instinctive appreciation of ultra-violet rays.

For the Mexicans

Hollywood Citizen-News

With the holding of a Presidential election in Mexico next year the citizens of that country will be asked to approve a program of intensive economic nationalism.

The program, known as the "Six-Year Plan," is now being completed by President Rodriguez with the support of ex-President Calles, "strong man" of Mexican politics.

The trend toward economic self-sufficiency in Mexico can be traced to the fact that for years the greater part of Mexico's vast supply of natural resources has been extensively exploited by foreign interests with great foreign profit.

Only a scant proportion of the wealth taken from the ground has remained in Mexico, and despite low taxes on foreign capital, local labor has for the most part been forced to accept starvation wages.

Mexico's policy may prove injurious to some American corporations and investors. But since it was American business that did much of the greedy exploiting of Mexican resources in the past, the leaders of this business have only themselves to blame.

Warm up your overcoat, polish your sleigh,
Put on a fresh team of deer,
Then over the snowdrifts and forth and away—
You have got to be busy this year.
You may fancy, perhaps, you're in need of a rest
From sliding down flue after flue,
But this is the time for the sleigh bells to chime,
And there'll be no vacation for you.

Hunt out the tenements, seek for the cots
In the dull, grimy factory town,
Write down the names of the blizzard-swept spots
Where the wolf grimly stalks up and down
Bring hope to the hopeless, bring laughter and light
As down from the heavens you fare,
Till the bells that ring out as you hurry about
Bring relief from distress and despair.

You well are assured of a welcome today
Wherever your journey may lead;
Here, there and yonder, and over the way
You will meet with the spectre of Need.
Whenever you wander, wherever you pause
As you travel along through the night,
You will not fail to hear, as you scatter fresh cheer
The shouts that betoken delight.

So let the old blizzard howl loud as it may,
Let the frost pictures cleave to the pane,
Let the snow in the shadows lie somber and gray
Where the winds sweep the long country lane.
Warm up the fleet reindeer that patiently wait
In their pasture far up beyond Nome,
Then forth and away in your well laden sleigh—
This year you just cannot stay home.

No child likes to be singled out for his good deeds even when they are no more than correct words used in their right places.

Be content with a child's speech if it is clear and fairly correct. Don't try to teach him big words. The easy simple ones are better. It is easier for him to say glad than it is to say delighted, easier to say got than received, left than remained, busy than preoccupied. Don't waste time and energy upon building up a vocabulary of four storied words. But do try to cultivate in him a love for, and appreciation of, good speech.
